2 GRAND JURIES GET INTO FRAY FOR CAMPAIGN

One Under Swanson; Other Democratic.

Possibilities of a counterbalancing competition between two grand juries under rival control began to dawn yesterday. One of the juries is the regular panel under control of State's Attorney John A. Swanson [Rep.] The other is a special grand jury which was impaneled six months ago by Judge Michael Feinberg [Rep.] but is now under control of the group supporting Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for state's attorney.

A hint of activities of a counterpoise nature, which may hold one grand jury balanced against the other, was given yesterday when five city policemen were deputized by Coroner Frank J. Walsh [Dem.] as special assistant coroners. The detectives are John Howe, William Drury, John Ahern, Harry Miller and Harry Lang. A deputy coroner will have police power outside the city limits in behalf of the special grand jury, now known at the Criminal court as Judge Harry Fisher's [Dem.] special grand jury.

Several Democrats Indicted.

In the last few days State's Attorney Swanson [Rep.] has indicted several Democratic workers on varying election fraud charges. Reports have been current also that Mr. Swanson is almost ready to present evidence to the regular grand jury which may call for some explaining by a Democratic ward leader concerning transactions with a bank now closed.

The recrudescence of the special grand jury by attaching to it a detective staff yesterday was generally regarded as a possible balancing movement. For months it has been common gossip that the Democratic organization takes the view that Sheriff William D. Meyering [Dem.] has played close to State's Attorney Swanson. For that reason the detectives were made special deputy coroners, it was explained, rather than deputy sheriffs with county police powers.

As to Special Jury's Status.

Some complexities in the situation arose yesterday through the position announced by Chief Justice John Prystalski [Dem.], who insists on strict interpretation of the law. Judge Prystalski, who succeeded Judge Fisher [Dem.] as the chief justice was interviewed regarding the legal status of the special grand jury, which never held a meeting.

"A special grand jury is legal," said Judge Prystalski.

"What about a grand jury which was sworn in some six months ago as a special jury?" he was asked.

"I have expressed myself on that subject in no uncertain terms," he replied. "In the case of the People vs. Brautigan the Supreme court held that a grand jury expired with the term of court. A grand jury in my opinion is void with the end of the court term at which it was sworn in."

Might Assume Jurisdiction.

"When will you assume charge of the so-called Fisher jury?" he was asked.

"I have not assumed jurisdiction of that jury," he replied. "However, if a request is made for a new grand jury or for an extension of time of the old grand jury, that would be different."

Judge Prystalski indicated that Attorney Edmund D. Adcock, who was appointed a special state's attorney by Judge Fisher, might appear in the next few days and ask for a new grand jury. Such a jury, it was pointed out, could not operate more than two weeks as it would automatically expire with the end of the October court term on Nov. 5.

Meanwhile Mr. Adcock, according to the gossip at the Criminal court building, may face a contest to hold his special appointment. Reports were that both State's Attorney Swanson [Rep.] and Attorney General Carlstrom [Rep.] will oppose his reappointment on the ground that nothing has been shown to disqualify them. Under the law both prosecutors must be disqualified before they can be supplanted.

Supreme Court Decision.

Originally the special grand jury was impaneled by Judge Feinberg [Rep.] at the time when he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for state's attorney. Judge Fisher [Dem.], through a Supreme court decision, took control of the jury from Judge Feinberg. The Supreme court ruled the chief justice has charge of criminal matters. This same decision now takes the special grand jury from Judge Fisher's control and places it under jurisdiction of Judge Prystalski.

URGES COST OF GOVERNMENT BE SLASHED 25 PCT.

Assails Financing Under Hoover.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Gov. Roosevelt tonight announced his stand against immediate payment of the veterans' bonus, in an address here in which he pledged economy in cost of government.

Telling 50,000 Pittsburghers, more by many thousands than ever before came to a Democratic rally in this erstwhile Republican stronghold—that he proposes sweeping economies as a means of restoring business, Gov. Roosevelt declared, toward the end that he "had not changed" his views against the bonus payment.

Applause and cheers sounded from all corners of the immense Forbes field—the National league ball park—at Mr. Roosevelt's declaration. Other cheers greeted his statement that legalized beer is coming. The crowd's attitude was pictured in a great banner stretched across the entire front of the grandstand which said:

"What the country needs is a glass of good beer for a nickel."

Discussing the treasury deficit, Mr. Roosevelt mentioned Andrew Mellon's long political power in Pittsburgh, and boos and groans swept the throngs.

Part of Economy Policy.

Referring to his policy that a return of prosperity necessitated the slashing of present federal expenditures, Roosevelt said of the bonus:

"In accordance with this fundamental policy it is equally necessary to eliminate from federal budget making during this emergency all new items except such as relate to direct relief of unemployment.

"As a part of this phase of the problem I note that former President Coolidge is reported as having said in a speech in New York City:

"'An early and timely word from the Democratic candidate for President that he would reject the proposal to increase the national debt by $2,300,000,000 to pay a bonus would have been a great encouragement to business, reduced unemployment, and guaranteed the integrity of the national credit. While he remained silent economic recovery was measurably impeded.'

Told Views in April.

"That charge is baseless and absurd for the reason that last April my views on the subjects were widely published and have been subsequently frequently quoted. I said:

"'I do not see how, as a matter of practical sense, a government running behind two billion dollars annually can consider the anticipation of bonus payment until it has a balanced budget, not only on paper but with a surplus of cash in the treasury.'

"No one, for political purposes or otherwise, has the right in the absence of explicit statement from me to assume that my views have changed. They have not. So much for another effort by Republican leaders to preach an unwarranted gospel of fear and panic to the American electorate."

There was no mention of a relief program for veterans. The governor's associates, however, declare that in a short time, possibly in Indianapolis tomorrow, he will give his plan for that relief.

Halt on Government Extravagance.

For the rest of his speech—and Mr. Roosevelt in a press conference earlier had made it plain that he thought the bonus issue was but one component part of the vastly important general economy issue—the governor dealt with his pledge to bring a halt to governmental extravagance.

"I regard reduction in federal spending as the most direct and effective contribution that government can make to business," Mr. Roosevelt said. He made several specific promises, among which were:

That he would cut the current federal operating expenses by a full 25 per cent.

That he would abolish boards and commissions and effect a "realignment of the unprecedented bureaucracy" at Washington.

That he would make every one of his cabinet officers take the economy pledge before appointment.

That he would halt the extravagant centralization of control by

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Oct. 19.—The ancient bones of an animal belonging to the marsupial, or kangaroo family, the first ever found in Africa, have been unearthed in one of the famous marine terraces of Namaqualand by Dr. W. Beetz, chief geologist of the Anglo-American Corporation of South Africa. Hitherto only Australia, and to a lesser degree America with its opossum, could show species of marsupials.

The South African discovery revives the question of a lost continent that may have existed between the Cape of Good Hope and South America or the possible alternative of a vanished continent between Africa and Australia.

The bones were small and peculiarly shaped. The animal was about the size of a rat, had two long incisor teeth in its lower jaw and carried its young in a pouch. Whether it could hop like its Australian relative is not yet certain.

REVEAL ROBBERY OF ROSS HOME IN LAKE BLUFF

Chicago police were asked last night to help recover jewelry and other valuables stolen from the home of F. A. Ross in Witchwood lane, Lake Bluff.

Although the burglary was committed last Thursday afternoon it did not become known outside police circles until last night. Entrance was made through a window. Neither police nor Mr. Ross would estimate the amount of the loss. Mr. Ross said the loot taken was "not extensive." From another source, however, it was understood the loss amounted to many thousands of dollars.

Twenty-nine articles were taken, including twelve rings and other jewelry. In the loot were 225 shares of Stewart-Warner stock and 600 shares of Gardner Machine company stock. Another item was a Persian lamb fur coat.

ROBERT FINDS A JUDGE WHO'S GLAD TO HELP

Robert Campbell, 35 years old, 1609 Vincennes avenue, Chicago Heights, was sentenced to nine months in the county jail yesterday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward for violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act.

"Please, your honor," Campbell interrupted, "will you make it a year and a day so I can go to Leavenworth?" The year sentence in Leavenworth, court attaches pointed out, could be served in nine months with time off for good behavior.

Prosecutor Mary D. Bailey objected. "I am glad to oblige," Judge Woodward ruled. "We'll make it two years."

Count Boni Is Dead; Wasted Gould Fortune

PARIS, Oct. 2 [Thursday].—(AP)—Marquis Boni de Castellane, former husband of Anna Gould, the American heiress, died at 4:50 a. m. today. He had been seriously ill for a week following a paralytic stroke. Count Boni was 64 years of age. Members of his family were at the bedside at the end. They were his mother and brothers, Jean de Castellane, former president of the municipal council, and Stanislaus, a deputy.

LIVED AS BEAU BRUMMEL.

Marquis Paul Ernest Boniface de Castellane, who for a decade shortly before and after the turn of the century was one of the most conspicuous figures in French society, earned for himself the title of "prince of extravagance." This scion of an old Provence family was best known in Europe and America as Count Boni de Castellane, and his extravagant efforts to keep himself in the public eye made him a fit subject for journalists and society writers as the hero of amusing incidents or as an arbiter of fashions.

He was popular in Paris, where he strode the boulevards in dazzling waistcoats of pale blue, mauve, magenta, or heliotrope, and at the Longchamps race track, where his score or more of thoroughbreds were backed heavily but won few races. He was equally popular and welcome at the Deauville Casino baccarat rooms, where he dropped thousands of dollars.

Mixed in with his affairs with beautiful women and his strenuous society life he managed to dabble in journalism, politics, and art.

Was Destined for Arms.

Count Boni was born in 1868. His family intended him to be a soldier, but his autocratic spirit, his love of independence, and insistence upon keeping fine company were incompatible with the discipline of army life. When he had finished his period of compulsory service he left the army for society life in Paris.

His marriage to Anna Gould, daughter of Jay Gould, the American millionaire, in 1895 provided the substance to make his dreams come true. His was one of the first of the many alliances of European titles and American dollars. For ten years he proceeded to spend and entertain lavishly, building a marble palace, owning a yacht, and numbering kings among his friends.

But in 1906 his wife divorced him. It was shown that he had squandered $5,000,000 of her money in five years and was $5,000,000 in debt. Count Boni then lost the fight for guardianship of the three children of the marriage, so went to the pope to have the marriage annulled, but was repulsed there, too.

In working for a living after spending years with plenty he applied the same energy as he had expended in scaling the pinnacles of society. He wrote two books, one, "How I Discovered America," bitter memoirs of his prenuptial experience in United States, and the other book, "The Art of Being Poor," the philosophy of a man of wealth made comparatively poor.

He was elected deputy from the Basses Alpes in 1889 and 1902. He was elected again in 1906, but was refused his seat on charges of corrup-

STORM RAGES ON EAST COAST; DEATH TOLL 9

Boston, Mass., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Nine dead on land and sea, more than $100,000 worth of yachts ashore, and heavy property damage was the toll tonight as northeast gales and torrential rains lashed the New England seacoast.

Six deaths by drownings and auto accidents reported today which, added to the loss of three Rhode Island fishermen blown on the rocks yesterday, brought the total death list to nine.

Chile Suffers Heavy Loss from Volcanic Eruptions

TALCA, Chile, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Volcanic disturbances which have been going on in this region for two days have caused heavy damage to farm lands, bridges, and canals, principally in the vicinity of the volcano Descabezado Grande.

Chicago Looks to Upturn in State St. Day

Chicago's belief that times are going to get better soon will be given concrete form tomorrow in the observance of State Street day.

Advance reports indicate that huge crowds from the outer edges of Chicagoland will take advantage of low rail fares to visit the city, to view the World's Fair grounds, to attend the theaters and the two major football games of Saturday and to tour the loop stores which are offering unusual merchandise bargains.

In addition, residents of Chicago and the suburbs are expected to flock downtown in numbers greater even than those which appeared in the pre-depression years. Low parking rates for automobiles will prevail in the loop section.

Games to Attract Crowds.

The Northwestern-Purdue and Indiana-Chicago football games of Saturday are regarded as among the most interesting scheduled for the day. It has been stressed by the management of the celebration that these contests and the sight seeing tours can be comfortably combined with a shopping trip that will pay dividends.

The motivating thought behind the celebration was given expression yesterday by one of the managers:

"Chicago is leading now as it has always led. The time has come to prove that things can and will be brighter. Officials of our stores and of various manufacturing enterprises have reported in the last few months that demand for commodities is strengthening and that employment conditions are improving.

Bargain Prices Offered.

"We are recognizing these facts with action. Our buyers, in preparation for a State Street day, were sent out to scour the world's workshops and warehouses for the best that is in them—and at prices that are lower than we expect to see them at any time in the forseeable future.

"It is our firm belief that the impetus which will be given to business everywhere by our State Street celebration will hasten the recovery. Better still, if our customers enjoy themselves while enjoying the bargains this will be a brighter world to live in."

Those in charge of decorating State street have promised that the bustling thoroughfare will take on a carnival air. Throngs will surge along the sidewalks under great banners which will be hung across the street from store front to store front, and the lamp standards will be gay with flags. The interior of the stores will present a festival appearance.

It is promised that the State street windows, which have been famous for many years, will be particularly attractive and instructive on this occasion. The decorators will present the new fashions in striking settings.

Report Business Gains.

The managers of many of the stores participating in the shopping event announced that they would make sizable additions to their selling forces over the week-end. They said many of these workers would be retained until after the Christmas holidays.

Sponsors of State Street day pointed to many statements from store managers and manufacturers which indicate the trend of business conditions.

A large furniture company reported that on Oct. 11 it did a greater volume of business than on any day in its history. A well known rug company announced that it had employed 900 additional workmen to keep pace with orders.

The advertising manager of a department store said the packing room force was compelled to work all night recently when a buying wave began. Officials of another store stated that business in their women's apparel department had increased to such an extent that it was necessary to make a considerable addition to the sales force.

FORD IN APPEAL TO 'LET HOOVER FINISH HIS JOB'

Declares President 'Keeps His Head.'

Campaign Features

Hoover speech Saturday night in Detroit may touch on Roosevelt record as governor; New York's costs of government during his four years.

Secretary Mills of the treasury calls Democratic record in last congress worst in history of U. S.; charges tactics in house retarded recovery.

Al Smith, in opening campaign speech, urges election of Roosevelt and Garner as well as Democratic congress.

Secretary Doak calls Senator Norris "character assassin" for charging offer of judgeship to Donald Richberg, attorney for labor interests.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Henry Ford continued his efforts in behalf of Herbert Hoover tonight in a radio address in which he told why he urges the reelection of the President. He was introduced by Gov. W. M. Brucker. In the course of his speech the automobile manufacturer said:

"It is unusual for me to talk politics. I suppose I am like most Americans—we never bother about politics until it means something to us.

"Party politics have never meant anything to me, and they mean nothing to me tonight.

"I support the best man for the job.

"If Herbert Hoover were a Democrat, with his record during the last four years I should have to support him.

"So, you see, I cannot make much of a party speech tonight.

Points to Wilson's Service.

"Of course, Herbert Hoover's worst enemy would not have wished his administration to fall on these times. It is curious how providence turns all our plans. I supported Woodrow Wilson because I expected that he would devote himself to the improvement of the economic machinery of this country. He understood what was wrong with our money system. He wanted to change it. That was his program. But the sudden change of events compelled him to switch all his energies toward war and international problems.

"It was the same with Mr. Hoover. When he was elected he expected to organize the machinery of prosperity. But the sudden turn of events laid upon his shoulders the most terrible depression the world has every known.

"Woodrow Wilson was allowed to go ahead and carry out his program.

"And for the very same reason Herbert Hoover should be allowed to carry out his program, and I think he will.

"Knows All the Tactics."

"He has faced the enemy for three years now; he knows all the tactics of the forces of destruction. Why bring in a new recruit and retire this seasoned leader especially since President Hoover has already got the massive forces of defense and recovery into action?

"I have a great sympathy for Mr. Hoover. I know the size of the job he has been carrying. But he is not asking for sympathy. He is asking for help to complete his job and I believe he is going to get it.

"I am not saying that Herbert Hoover can work miracles.

"I have known a number of Presidents and I have never yet known one who could. Mr. Hoover is carrying a greater burden than Abraham Lincoln carried—and he is carrying it in a way that places him beside Lincoln in sacrificial service.

Praises "Common Sense."

"The American people are conservative. They do not run after every new fangled remedy. And when they do attempt to do anything radical they want to see it controlled by experience and common sense. Herbert Hoover is the very embodiment of common sense and reliability.

"There are no people in this country who know more about the depression than the automobile workers. We have felt the full force of it. I think the men engaged in the automobile industry are as intelligent as any class in the country.

"What do we automobile workers say? We say this:

"'Herbert Hoover cannot work miracles. But he had the opportunity to make some colossal and disastrous mistakes. He was clutched at from every side to do panic stricken things.

"'But Mr. Hoover kept his head when others lost theirs.

"'No act of his has been dictated by panic or politics.

"'And the result is that we are now beginning to feel the lifting power of his well thought out program.

"'Every act of the President has been in the interest of employment.'

"That is what we are saying.

"We have a congress which comes from the people and represents the people. It usually acts for the best interests of the people. It will be necessary for the President and congress to work together during the next four years. For that reason we need good men everywhere in office. We should not forget to elect a good congress in our effort to elect a good President.

Would Improve Money System.

"The next big job is to improve the money system. I would like to see it done by a man of practical experience like Mr. Hoover.

"Congress alone is given constitutional control of our entire money system. No private financial interest should have anything to do with it. The money question is coming to the front in this country, just as certain as can be, because the money question bears directly on our present difficulty.

"'Congress did not keep its constitutional control over money. It farmed out the national money system to private hands. It would never dream of farming out naval defense, tax collection, or the postal service in the same way.

"Congress should take back full control of money and give the United States a public service money system as opposed to a private profit money system.

Wants Congress to Control.

"A money system managed as our rivers and harbors are, for the promotion of the people's business; managed as our postal service is, for the service of the people's business; managed as our weather service is, for the protection of the people's business—that is what we need, and that is what we may have if congress will take over the control originally delegated to it by the constitution.

"I am convinced that our money system is antiquated. We have plenty of men. We have plenty of material. But money, which is not so important as men or materials, is holding up progress. This must be changed.

"If Mr. Hoover, during his next four years, will give his mind to this matter I think he will completely establish his fame as a great President.

"It is only common sense, when a man like Mr. Hoover has been educated by experience, when he has got control of the thing he is fighting, when he is beginning to show results—it is only common sense to let him finish his job.

"I think of him as human hearted, honest minded, hard working Hoover.

"Let me add a word about Gov. Brucker, who introduced me tonight. He is a type of the new young man in politics—clean, honest, courageous, and with one ambition, and that is to do something big and helpful for the people of the state. My friends, things will look better with men like Hoover and Brucker continued in public office."

RE-ELECT HOOVER, ROOT ADVISES, OR U. S. SUFFERS

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Elihu Root, in a statement broadcast tonight praised the policies of President Hoover. He declared that failure to reëlect the President would be "a serious misfortune for the people," and cause a setback, perhaps frustrate, the revival of business activity for which the Hoover reconstruction program has prepared the way.

"If Mr. Hoover is not reëlected," he said, "we may expect a practical abandonment of the plans devised by him for our relief and already in effect, while business will await some new plan as yet unformulated. If the people of the country vote for a change, that is the kind of change they will get."

The statement was read at the microphone by David Hinshaw, an aid of Senator H. Felix Hebert of Rhode Island, eastern campaign manager for Mr. Hoover.

MILLS BLAMES DEMOCRATS FOR 'WORST RECORD'

Says House Hindered Recovery Efforts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Speaking here tonight in the home state of Ritchie Democracy, Secretary Ogden L. Mills of the treasury, once more held up the Democratic record in the last session of congress as a warning of what he said the country might expect a Democratic administration to do.

Answering charges contained in Speaker Garner's recent New York broadcast, Secretary Mills launched a vigorous counter attack at the Democratic vice presidential candidate, declaring:

"In the long history of American congresses, the financial record of the Democratic house of representatives during the last session of congress is the worst ever made.

Cites Inflation Bill.

"They passed a bill to start the printing presses going; one directing the secretary of the treasury and the federal reserve board to manipulate prices; another guaranteeing bank deposits.

"They refused to cooperate in a program of economy. They tore their own revenue bill to shreds. They passed mensures which would have undermined the credit of the government upon which the whole adifice of reconstruction was being erected."

Despite Mr. Garner's assertions to the contrary, Mr. Mills said, the financial panic which began in September, 1931, was the outgrowth of the European collapse; and this country's credit structure and the integrity of its monetary system had come near crashing.

They were threatened, said the secretary, not only by the wave of panic abroad and at home, but by the measures which passed the Democratic house of representatives under the leadership of Speaker Garner.

Says Democrats Hindered.

"Except for the passage of the revenue law," Mr. Mills added, "the bills passed by the Democratic house, far from furthering a balanced budget, if enacted into law would have thrown it out of balance on a huge scale and threatened the credit of the national government itself."

Mr. Mills gave credit for bringing the panic to a halt to the "courageous ous and unfaltering leadership of President Hoover" and called Mr. Garner's claims of Democratic statecraft a "fairy tale." He described the European financial crisis and defended the treasury's estimates of income.

"In the beginning of March," declared Secretary Mills, "the confidence of the country again was terribly shaken by the disastrous collapse of the Democratic house organization in its handling of the revenue bill. From that day forward confidence was not restored until the Democratic house which continued to show an entire lack of stability, went home."

Mr. Mills explained that Speaker Garner did not rise to defend the tax bill until the wrecking was over.

"The speaker arrived on the scene with a brand new helmet, hose in one hand and shi ing axe in the other," said Mr. Mills. "But the house had been burned down."

W. W. ATTERBURY BACKS HOOVER FOR RE-ELECTION

As president of the Pennsylvania railroad company, W. W. Atterbury sent a message from Philadelphia to Republican national headquarters here yesterday saying that under leadership of President Hoover business recovery is beginning.

"The Pennsylvania railroad," said the message, "has over 250,000 stockholders, nearly half of them women, whose income has been materially decreased. Our payrolls consist of 115,000 employés working short time and about 50,000 additional have been furloughed. I feel a personal responsibility to each individual in these two great bodies of our citizens. The sources of their livelihood are at stake. Mr. Hoover is in no way responsible for the chaotic condition of the world nor its reaction on our own country.

"We are slowly but surely recovering the ground we have lost. Industry is picking up, carloadings are increasing, confidence is being regained and unemployment is decreasing. This is being accomplished under the leadership of President Hoover. His program is showing good results. If permitted to continue under his guidance I am convinced it will bring back normal conditions. Some of our employés have asked me to give them my best judgment as to the wise policy to follow. All of our employés are of course at liberty to vote as they think best. So far as I am personally concerned I expect to vote for Mr. Hoover and to work for his reëlection."

Von Hindenburg's Aids Deny His Health Failing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Rumors that President von Hindenburg's health is failing were denied by his aids today.

Once an Alderman

David W. Clark, 92 years old and a Republican leader in Chicago since his return from the civil war, announced yesterday that he will support Sanitary Trustee John J. Touhy, a Democrat, for reëlection. Mr. Clark is now honorary vice president of the Madison-Kedzie Trust and Savings bank. He was alderman from what used to be the 27th ward, just west of the Chicago river, from 1872 to 1876. Trustee Touhy was alderman from the same ward from 1917 to 1927.

LEADING DOCTORS ORGANIZE GROUP TO BACK HORNER

Announcement that more than 100 well known Chicago physicians, a large majority of them Republicans, are supporting the candidacy of Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, was made yesterday by the Independent Horner for Governor committee. The physicians have formed a group of their own with headquarters in the Hotel La Salle.

Dr. L. L. McArthur is honorary chairman of the committee. Dr. Harry E. Mock is active chairman and Dr. Nathan S. Davis III. is secretary. Vice chairmen are Dr. E. V. L. Brown, Dr. George W. Hall, Dr. Philip H. Kreuscher, Dr. John S. Harger, Dr. Hugh N. MacKechnie, Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, Dr. Charles A. Elliott, and Dr. S. W. McArthur.

Formation of the physicians' committee stands, it was said, as a memorial to Dr. Frank Billings, noted Chicago physician, who died recently. At the time of his death Dr. Billings was planning an organization of Illinois physicians to work for the election of Judge Horner.

NEW YORK G. O. P. LEADER VISITS WHITE HOUSE

May Affect Talk of Hoover at Detroit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Reports that President Hoover intends shortly to launch an attack on the state administrative record made by Franklin D. Roosevelt as governor of New York gained wide circulation today. They followed a visit to the White House by George R. Fearon of Syracuse, majority leader of the New York senate.

Senator Fearon arrived at the White House in the morning and immediately went into secret conference with Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries. On his departure after a six hour call, Mr. Fearon declined to comment on reports that he had been giving the President's aids first hand information on the economic and administrative record of the Democratic presidential nominee.

May Affect Detroit Speech.

The circumstance that Senator Fearon's visit came just as the President was blocking out the speech he will deliver at Detroit Saturday night inspired reports that Mr. Hoover may be planning to attack the administrative record of his rival for the presidency on the Michigan trip.

Senator Fearon said he had talked politics with Mr. Richey. He expressed the opinion New York would be won for the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

"If the President delivers a few more speeches like those at Des Moines and Cleveland, New York certainly will give him its electoral votes," Senator Fearon said. "I do not believe Gov. Roosevelt will run up as large a vote in the city of New York as Al Smith did four years ago. New York state has a habit of going Republican nationally every four years, and this year will be no exception."

Thirteen Short Talks.

In addition to working on his Detroit speech and approving an itinerary which calls for thirteen rear platform talks on the way to Michigan, President Hoover conferred with numerous political callers during the day. Robert H. Lucas, assistant to the chairman of the Republican national committee, advised the President that the latest surveys indicated that states controlling 270 electoral votes were now safe for him. Secretary of the Treasury Mills, Secretary of Labor William N. Doak and J. F. McDermott, vice president of the National bank of Omaha, were among the other callers.

Discussing the political situation with a group of reporters, Mr. Lucas said the President is now assured of sufficient votes to give him the election. He asserted that President Hoover in his speeches is reaching the people now as never before.

"Our greatest encouragement," Lucas said, "comes from the fact that business men are coming around to a realisation of the situation and are advising their customers, clients, and employés to consider seriously the effect on business of a change in administrations."

Lucas listed the following states as now safe for the Republicans: California, Colorado, Michigan, Utah, Idaho, Oregon, Indiana, and Kansas. Nebraska, Washington, and South Dakota were described as tending strongly toward President Hoover. He added that Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota, North Dakota, and Maryland were admittedly doubtful.

McDermott said Nebraska would go Republican, despite the defection of Senator Norris. He is treasurer of the state Republican committee. Representative Clarence J. McLeod [Rep., Mich.] advised the President that Michigan would be for the Hoover-Curtis ticket. He described Detroit as one of the worst spots in the country so far as unemployment was concerned.

The President's schedule for next Saturday calls for a maximum of rear platform campaigning. Places where the President will speak briefly include Huntington, Kenova, and Charleston, in West Virginia; Ironton, Portsmouth, Waverly, Chillicothe, Circleville, Columbus, Delaware, Marion, Fostoria, and Toledo, in Ohio.

Lammot Du Pont Urges the Re-election of Hoover

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Lammot du Pont, president of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., in a statement today contended that voting for President Hoover was the "only course" to follow on Nov. 8 for those who were "sincerely interested in the material prosperity of the United States" and who were "squarely behind the principles of American liberty."

Doak Denounces Norris' Story of Richberg Judgeship Offer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Secretary of Labor William N. Doak today characterized Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska radical, as a "well known professional character assassin."

He attacked as "utterly false" the assertion by Senator Norris in a pro-Roosevelt speech at Cleveland last night that the secretary had "dangled" a federal judgeship before Donald R. Richberg, labor lawyer.

Senator Norris was reported as saying that Secretary Doak had attempted to persuade Richberg to amend his stand on the then pending Norris anti-injunction bill by promising to use his influence to get Richberg a judicial appointment.

Visibly angry and drawing now and again upon expletives doubtless learned back in his railroading days, Secretary Doak issued from his office a statement in which he charged that Senator Norris, "being without the immunity which attaches to his libels when he speaks in the United States senate," had hidden behind a quotation from a third person.

Suggestion of Union Men.

The fact of the matter was, said Mr. Doak, that union officials had suggested that he bring attorneys for the labor unions and the railroads together in order that they might iron out differences of opinion concerning the anti-injunction bill.

Acting on this request he had called the meeting, Secretary Doak said.

"Senator Norris stated in his speech that I said this conference was called at the suggestion of the President," Mr. Doak declared. "The mere fact that I never made any such statement and that the whole thing is based on a lie did not deter Senator Norris, for, of course, his whole purpose was to strike at the President of the United States through the utterance of a libel against me."

Richberg and attorneys for the opponents of the bill came to Washington, said Mr. Doak. He entertained them at lunch, told them he hoped they could reach an agreement, and after lunch left the conference.

Not in His Province.

"Obviously," said Secretary Doak, "I could not have 'dangled' any judicial appointment before Mr. Richberg because I have nothing to do with judicial appointments, which are a matter wholly for the department of justice. Moreover, there would be no excuse for me or any one else, even had I been opposed to the legislation in question, which I was not, in making what Senator Norris is pleased to insinuate was an effort to corrupt the union attorney. Mr. Richberg could have delivered nothing in return for the appointment, and even had he withdrawn from the case this would have had no effect upon the legislation which had been pending before congress in one way or another for several years.

"Had Senator Norris had any desire to learn the real facts in this case he could have done so, but he had no such desire. His desire was to utter libels in an effort at character assassination. And the Democratic national committee became a party to his libel by becoming sponsor for his speech on the radio and widely circulating copies of it to the newspapers of the country.

"This speech at Cleveland, O., last night is not the first time that Senator Norris has engaged in the reprehensible practice of attempted character assassination. Nor in the past have his efforts been entirely confined to public officials or even to men."

FRANCE TO SEEK CUT IN 3 BILLION WAR DEBT TO U. S.

Aims to Divide Obligation Into Two Categories.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—France will continue to make debt payments to America until the $400,000,000 "commercial debt," incurred through the purchase of American war supplies, is retired, but will demand revision of the 3 billion dollar "political debt" incurred in fighting the war with American money.

That is the new French position on the debt problem as outlined by Premier Herriot today to the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies in a secret session.

It is believed that Herriot already has acquainted Washington with his intentions and that this is the basis of the present truce on debt negotiations prevailing throughout the world.

Will Make Dec. 15 Payment.

In explaining the government's position to the committee, Herriot is understood to have declared that France would make the debt payment which is due Dec. 15 under the Mellon-Berenger agreement. Answering the protests of a number of deputies, the premier declared that the Dec. 15 payment in no wise weakened the French claim for subsequent revision, and it was in elaborating on this idea that he revealed the provisions of the new French debt plan.

[The British government indicated several weeks ago that it would make a payment to America on Dec. 15. The British have since been building up dollar balances to make a transfer of the installment.]

The ingenious device of separating the debt into "commercial" and "political" obligations, which recalls the division of the German debt into reparations and postponable annuities, is the basis of the plan. The 400 and odd millions of dollars' worth of surplus war supplies that the United States sold to France and the interest upon this are to be America's reparations, and the French do not challenge America's right to payments on this score. This is similar to the German position a year ago—before they decided that they did not want to pay anything.

3 Billion Debt "Political."

The 3 billion dollars in cash advanced to France to continue the war and the interest upon this is considered as a political debt on the theory that the French held back the Germans until the American army was sufficiently strong to take the field, and that any sums advanced by the United States to the allies during this period were just the sinews of war.

THE SCALE OF PAYMENTS.

The Mellon-Berenger agreement [April 29, 1926] set France's debt to the United States at $4,025,000,000 and spread payment over 62 years, beginning with annual payments of $30,000,000 during each of the first two years $32,500,000 the next two years, $35,000,000 the fifth year, $40,000,000 the sixth, $50,000,000 the seventh, and increasing by jumps of from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000 in succeeding years until the seventeenth year, when it reaches the maximum of $125,000,000 annually, which it maintains through the sixty-first year, with a slight reduction to $117,674,104 in the last year.

The interest over the 62 year period amounts to an average of slightly more than 1¾ per cent, bringing the grand total which France is to pay to slightly more than $6,847,000,000.

A 59 Per Cent Saving.

This was estimated to be a 59 per cent saving to France over previous debt arrangements. At the time, France calculated that her receipts from Germany reparations would service the American debt.

By the Hoover moratorium the 1931 payment was postponed and it will be liquidated in 10 annual payments, beginning in 1933. The Lausanne agreement, reached during July, practically wiped out Germany's reparations obligations. The European debtors to the United States at that time signed a "gentlemen's agreement" providing that the Lausanne agreement was dependent on the United States agreeing to a revision of previous war debt arrangements.

MANY PRECINCTS MUST BE SPLIT BECAUSE OF HEAVY REGISTRATION

Several hundred Chicago precincts will have to be split and a larger number redistricted as a result of the heavy registration finished last week, the board of election commissioners announced yesterday.

The law provides that precincts shall contain as near 400 voters as is practicable. Inspection of registration figures showed that 331 precincts, as they are now constituted, have more than 600 registered voters. Of these 289 have between 600 and 700 voters, 35 have from 700 to 800, 3 have from 800 to 900, and 4 have more than 900.

The four largest precinsts are the 18th of the 26th ward, at Milwaukee and Grand avenues, with 966 registered voters; the 54th of the 48th ward, polling place at 937 Wilson avenue, with 917 voters; the 21st of the 42d ward, which includes the old county jail, now a lodging house, with 904 voters, and a Stickney precinct with 903 voters.

BRITISH RUM SHIP SINKING; REFUSES TO GIVE POSITION

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 19.—A wireless station here today established communication with the disabled British motorship Tetamageon and has learned that the vessel is slowly sinking. The ship refused, however, to give her position. She is said to be carrying an expensive cargo of choice liquors.

The French fishing craft Yvonne Joanne today picked up three members of the Tetamageon's crew. They were in a rowboat northeast of St. George and had left their ship fifteen hours before.

GANGS EXECUTE 2; POLICE HUNT RUM RING FOES

Victims Found Slain in "Ride" Style.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Martin Kelstrom, Frank Johnson, and Joseph Russo, larceny, sentenced to one year each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge John J. Sullivan.

Two killings of the traditional "ride" variety occurred yesterday in Chicago. In each instance, investigators believe, the victims were slain by enemies in the liquor and beer racket.

One of the slain men found in an automobile at 54th and Morgan streets was identified as Thomas P. Kane, 35 years old, a former county highway policeman and later bailiff for former Judge Joseph L. McCarthy of the Municipal court.

Kane left the highway police about five years ago and was connected with the Municipal court for about a year and a half. Recently, it was said, he devoted all his time to beer running and became a partner of Walter Zwolinski, boodlum who was shot and killed on the south side Sept. 2. The police learned he was also for a time a bartender in the saloon of Ed Donovan at 64th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Known as Auto Thief.

Samuel Dalaly, 19 years old, 633 South Paulina street, a 42 gangster and well known to the police as an automobile thief, was found dead in front of 2655 Flournoy street at daybreak. The theory of the investigators was that Dalaly was one of a gang which hijacked a load of sugar destined for a still late Tuesday, and that he was slain either for his participation or for double-crossing his companions.

Apparently Kane was killed several hours before the body was discovered. In the rear of his automobile, a coupe, was a compartment large enough to hold a barrel of beer. In it were a burlap sack and and a beer siphon. Evidence indicated the killing had been accomplished elsewhere and the body then carried to the car.

Shifts Gang Allegiance.

Kane was known to have shifted allegiance several times among the beer gangs of the south side, having been identified with the Saltis-McErlane, the Stanton and the O'Donnell factions at various times.

The sugar robbery believed to have furnished the motive for the Dalaly killing occurred at Superior street and Hoyne avenue. The sugar was the property of the V. Procaccio Cartage company of South Bend, Ind. After the driver had been put out of the vehicle the sugar was removed and the truck was found abandoned a little later.

Police informants said Dalaly had been assigned to drive the cargo to an agreed destination, but halted on the way and handed part of the sugar over to other friends. Resenting this, it was said, the other hijackers killed him.

Wheelbarrow Ride

Loyola university freshmen triumphed over the sophomores yesterday in the annual clash rush, a push ball contest, on the football field at 6525 Sheridan road. As a result of the victory Fred Brandstrader, freshman president, was pushed down Sheridan road in a wheelbarrow by John Hayes, sophomore president.

UNINVITED GUEST OF ELSIE JANIS BEATEN IN SUIT

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Superior Judge Elliott Sproul today agreed with Elsie Janis that differences at her 1931 dinner party were merely "a tempest in a teapot," and directed the jury hearing Francis Verhaeren's $60,000 damage suit to find in favor of S. H. Semple, defendant. Verhaeren, a New York hotel man who was an uninvited guest at the actress' party, charged Semple with slandering him after a valuable diamond ring disappeared from the finger of one of Miss Janis' guests.

U. S. Files $175,115 Tax Claim Against Paschen

A claim in bankruptcy was filed yesterday by the government against Christian P. Paschen, former city building commissioner, for $175,115 in unpaid income taxes and interest for the years 1927, 1928, 1929, and 1930. Paschen is at liberty in bond pending his appeal from a sentence of two years in the penitentiary for income tax evasion. An involuntary bankruptcy petition was filed against Paschen before his income tax trial.

Blame Financial Worry for Dr. West's Suicide

A coroner's jury decided yesterday that Dr. Stephen G. West, 69 years old, a physician with offices at 33 North State street, had ended his life because of worry over financial troubles. Dr. West shot himself Tuesday in his apartment at the Glengyle Apartment hotel, 941 Glengyle avenue, while his wife, Catherine, 23 years old, was out with their 6 month old baby.

APPEAL COURT UPHOLDS ORDER TO DEPORT RED

Kjar, Long an Agitator in Chicago, to Be Ousted.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday ruled that membership in the communist party or in an organization affiliated with that group is sufficient grounds for the deportation of an alien. The higher court ruling upheld a similar finding made by District Judge Charles E. Woodward.

JUDGE WOODWARD.

The case on which the Circuit court based its ruling was that of Niels Christian Mikkelsen Kjar, a Danish citizen who has been in this country ten years. He is 35 years old. Kjar was arrested a year ago on a warrant issued by William M. Doak, secretary of labor, and was ordered deported. The warrant charged him with being a member of a society that advocated the overthrow of the United States government.

Rearrested by the U. S.

Kjar, pending an appeal, was released in bonds of $3,000, but was rearrested by the immigration authorities in May on the request of the Chicago police department. The police stated that Kjar's activity as communist organizer created so many riots and so much dissension that he should be jailed in the interests of public safety.

In a hearing before Judge Woodward in June Kjar maintained that membership in a communist organization was not sufficient grounds for deportation. Judge Woodward denied a habeas corpus petition and sent Kjar back to the county jail. At the hearing Assistant United States District Attorney Robert D. Ross offered testimony to show that Kjar was a field organizer for the Trade Union Unity league, an organization which Kjar admitted was affiliated with the Red Internationale. He admitted he was a member of the communist party.

The Court's Opinion.

The Appellate court's opinion, written by Judge Will M. Sparks, said: "The Communist party believes and advocates the use of force and violence whenever and wherever sufficient power is present to accomplish its purpose.

"Appellant contends, however, that the right of revolution is inherent in every individual. That right, if it exists, depends upon where such individual attempts to operate in his effort to effect such right. Revolution presupposes an antagonism between a government and its nationals, not between a government and aliens. As a citizen of Denmark, the appellant has not right of revolution against the United States."

Prosecutor Ross said that Kjar had a long record as an agitator in Chicago. In 1922, he said, Kjar was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary for violation of the Illinois sedition law. He served two weeks and was pardoned by Len Small, then governor. Kjar will be deported in November unless the supreme court reviews the case.

Dentist and Patient Robbed by Two Bandits

While Dr. Manuel Sapoznik, a dentist with offices at 1900 West Division street, was examining a patient last night, two armed men entered and robbed him of $65. Michael Dokelsky, 2200 West Division street, the patient, was robbed of $7. The robbers fled after warning their victims not to leave the office for ten minutes.

MAY ALTER LAW TO BARE NAMES OF NEEDY ALIENS

Barbour Would Force J. L. Moss to Act.

Modification of a state law, if such action is necessary to force county authorities to turn over the names of aliens on the poor relief rolls to the government, will be proposed by State Senator James J. Barbour, he said yesterday.

Joseph L. Moss, director of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, has refused a request of the immigration bureau that it be given the names of aliens receiving county aid for investigation and possible deportation. There are 105,000 families on the rolls of the bureau of public welfare and immigration inspectors estimate that from 15 to 20 per cent of them are aliens.

Moss Fears Loss of Faith.

Moss refused to turn over the names because, under his interpretation of the law, he has no right to do so. He said he would oppose changing the law because questioning of the aliens "might destroy faith in the community."

"If any of these aliens can be deported for illegal entry or returned voluntarily under the indigent clause at the government's expense they should certainly go back to their own countries," said Senator Barbour. "In this country it is the duty of relatives to support members of their families if they are able, and we go to law to make them do so. It is likewise the duty of foreign governments to take care of their dependent nationals.

"I shudder to think what will become of us if we have to feed and house all these people for another fall and winter after this one, and if some of them can be taken to their homelands the county authorities owe a duty to the taxpayers to see that it is done."

Dispute Law's Meaning.

Senator Barbour disagreed with Director Moss' construction of the law, which says that the names of persons receiving relief shall be made public only at the request of the president of the county board or by some court of record, and then only in particular cases. Senator Barbour, who is also a lawyer, said that furnishing the government with such names would not constitute making them public.

"Certainly," he said, "the county authorities should grant the request of the federal officials, who have recognized their responsibility to the tax ridden public. I am astonished to learn that such a request was denied, because the federal authorities are superior to the county authorities, anyway, and the county, as well as Illinois, is depending upon the Reconstruction Finance corporation for relief funds."

A committee of the county board, headed by Commissioner Peter M. Kelly, is now investigating the government's proposal.

SUES TO BREAK HIS PARTNERSHIP WITH EX-SENATOR

Assistant State's Attorney Elmer N. Holmgren filed a bill in the Superior court yesterday asking dissolution of his law partnership with Attorney Daniel Webster, former state senator, and an accounting and an injunction restraining Webster from collecting any funds due the partnership.

Webster is reported to be in Australia. His partner's bill charges that Webster misappropriated about $10,000 belonging to his clients.

Mrs. Alice Webster, 2240 North Hamlin avenue, filed a bill for divorce several weeks ago against Webster, charging cruelty. She has since been unable to find him.

Attorney Harry A. Blossat, representing Holmgren, asked Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan to remove Emanuel H. Sherry as receiver for the affairs of Webster and Holmgren. Judge Finnegan appointed Sherry on the plea of Mrs. Webster that some one should conserve her husband's property pending disposition of her suit for divorce. Judge Finnegan set hearing on the motion for today.

AL SMITH OPENS CAMPAIGN WITH ROOSEVELT PLEA

Urges Naming Democrats for Congress.

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—An appeal for a complete victory for the Democratic ticket, national, state, and local, in order that the progressive reforms pledged in the party's platform may be enacted into law, was voiced tonight by Alfred E. Smith. He made his first address of the campaign at an enthusiastic rally in Tammany hall.

On behalf of "the rank and file," he said, he bespoke the loyalty of his old organization for Gov. F. D. Roosevelt and Speaker John N. Garner, mentioning them both by name.

Then the former governor, who was his party's candidate for President four years ago, urged the election of a Democratic congress to carry out the policies embodied in the Democratic platform. If that were done, he said, the "first order of business" in the senate might be Senator Robert F. Wagner's "own resolution for the outright repeal of the 18th amendment."

Speaks Again Monday.

The occasion for the "Happy Warrior's" address was the annual Tammany ratification meeting which formally opens the Democratic campaign in the city. Therefore Mr. Smith did not dwell long upon national issues. He would leave that, he said, for his Newark, N. J., speech next Monday night, and the windup of the campaign.

He devoted major attention to urging the election of Herbert H. Lehman, whose nomination for governor he and Roosevelt brought about over the opposition of John F. Curry, leader of Tammany hall. He also called upon Surrogate John P. O'Brien, the Tammany nominee for mayor, to lead the way toward charter reform and tax reduction.

Only a few minutes before Mr. Smith appeared before the throng Surrogate O'Brien made a statement which was interpreted as a declaration of independence.

"While I love my party," said the portly candidate who aspires to the office until recently held by the jaunty Jimmy Walker, "I love this city. While I'm mayor, be it for a brief interval or longer, I'll be mayor of the city of New York with all that it means."

Makes Plea for Ticket.

All the Tammany cohorts were given noisy receptions, but Al Smith took the customary lion's share. His mention of Roosevelt by name brought great cheers, but there was almost equal noise when he praised the state and local candidates. His references to the national campaign were confined to the following remarks:

"I have been privileged in the past, and from a Democratic standpoint I think the leaders of the party will extend to me the privilege of speaking on behalf of the rank and file of our great party in this city when I say that the loyalty and the devotion of the great Democratic organization of this city will be exerted to the last degree in favor of the election of Roosevelt and Garner.

"Complete victory is necessary to the carrying out of the party declaration of principles, and that means that we must control the national legislature because we are a government of laws, not of men. The President of the United States and the governor of the state of New York can carry out the progressive reforms suggested in the party platform only by law, and in order to have complete victory we must elect a complete Democratic legislature. And that brings me to something that I love to talk about [laughter], and that is what I consider, from the standpoint of the state, without respect to party, the absolute necessity for the overwhelming reelection of Bob Wagner."

Keep Up Spirit, He Urges.

"In conclusion," the former governor said, "let me make just one observation. The whole world today, not only New York City or New York state or the United States but the whole world, is being chastened by the fire of adversity, by the paralysis of business, of industry, and of agriculture, and with all the ills and all the things that grow from it—unemployment, sickness, starvation, and possible death—and the only thing for the American people to do is to keep up their spirit, to keep alive in their hearts their devotion to this country and its ultimate principles and what it can accomplish for them, and the bright star shining in the east, guiding us into the harbor and the haven, is complete and full Democratic victory in November."

All the candidates on the state and city tickets were present to receive their ratification by acclamation and make speeches. Col. Lehman challenged the sincerity of the prohibition uterances of his Republican opponent, Col. William J. Donovan, with the statement that "his heart is wet, his head is moist and on his feet he has the galoshes of the Anti-Saloon league."

JEAN HARLOW NAMED EXECUTRIX OF ESTATE OF BERN BY COURT

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19.—Jean Harlow appeared before Superior Judge Ida Lahey in Probate court today and rapidly ran through the formalities incident to being named executrix of the estate of her husband, Paul Bern, film executive.

A crowded courtroom awaited the appearance of the actress for the last act in the Bern suicide tragedy. Miss Harlow was named executrix without bond, in accordance with Bern's wish.

Bern's estate consisted of two pieces of property, personal belongings, and $37,500 in insurance. It is believed that after Bern's debts have been paid little will be left for the actress, who was named sole beneficiary. Bern's $60,000 home in Benedict Cañon was deeded to his bride prior to his death.

Agrees to Drop Charges Against Flute Player

Samuel Pirie, 39 years old, 3824 North Clark street, an unemployed flute player, and two teamster friends appeared yesterday before Judge Frank M. Padden on two charges of robbery and three charges of assault to rob. Pirie, with William Thomas and Henry McNeill, both of 1047 Belden avenue, went into the Crescent Grill at 4084 Broadway, to collect a debt of $80 and, it was charged, used threats against the owner, Jack Howard. Pirie pleaded that he had a job in the Portland, Ore., symphony orchestra, and Howard agreed not to press the charges. Prosecutor Russell Root, however, took a continuance till today.

GLENN ASSAILS PORK BARREL BILL OF 'JACK' GARNER

The pork barrel bill which gave the sobriquet "Postoffice Jack" to Speaker John N. Garner, running mate of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was declared by Senator Otis F. Glenn last night to typify a Democratic program of chaos that would set economic recovery back at least three years. At a meeting at La Grange, Senator Glenn said:

"In contrast to the measures of the Republican administration which are responsible for the present upturn, look at the record of the Democratic controlled house under leadership of Speaker Garner.

"They proposed a bond issue to build 2,300 unneeded federal buildings and other public works. Only ten Democrats voted against this Garner pork barrel bill and 194 of them voted for it.

"They proposed that the government engage in a huge banking business, through a proposal of Garner for loans to individuals, corporations, states, and municipalities on any conceivable security. It would have set up the greatest bureaucracy in history.

"The Democratic house refused to permit economies when they reduced savings in the economy bill from $200,000,000 to $40,000,000.

"At a time of national crisis in the federal treasury, the Democratic house passed a measure providing for the printing of $2,300,000,000 of fiat money. The Democrats also supported the dole bill and had Gov. Roosevelt wire his approval of that bill. They sponsored the plan to distribute $132,000,000 of public money to favored states for roads at the expense of other states; Illinois will pay $2 for every dollar which is returned to it out of this fund."

CERMAK LEAVES TO URGE SMITH TO SPEAK HERE

Pat Harrison Hits G.O.P. Straddle Plank.

A call for Al Smith to make a Chicago speech in the next fortnight is to be made in person by Mayor A. J. Cermak and E. J. Kelly, president of the south park board, who left yesterday for New York. Hundreds of requests received at Democratic headquarters led the mayor and Mr. Kelly to make the trip.

Other Democrats of nation-wide prominence are also to be invited to come to Illinois to aid in the Democratic drive to land Chicago and Illinois in the Roosevelt-Garner column.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi came to Chicago yesterday with word that Al Smith's tour of New England is giving momentum to the Democratic campaign in the east. Extravagance in the cost of government and prohibition were outstanding issues on which the Mississippian talked during the day. Last night he presented the case of the Democrats in a political forum at the Union League club.

Promises Cut in Expenses.

Charging that during the Hoover administration government extravagance has become a menace, Senator Harrison declared the Democrats will adhere to their economy plank of reducing annual appropriations at least 25 per cent.

"The President," he said, "achieved the spotlight of prominence through spending. The expenses of the White House in 1922 under Harding were $206,000. Last year under Hoover they were $532,000. President Harding and his predecessors were able to get along satisfactorily with one secretary, while Mr. Hoover finds it necessary to have four on the pay roll.

"In 1900 the per capita tax imposed upon American citizens was $9.25. Today it costs every American citizen $40 to run the federal government.

"When I was first elected to the house of representatives 22 years ago the expense of running the federal government had not reached a billion dollars. Last year the budget of the federal government called for more than 4 billion 200 million dollars.

"Government extravagance, not only in the federal government but other units as well, has become a menace to the progress and economic life of our people. With foreclosures everywhere, defaults unprecedented in number, and a depression that has wound its weary way along for now more than three years—all of this should have impelled the Hoover administration to economize and retrench, but not so.

"From the beginning of Mr. Hoover's administration, government expenditures were increased from $3,848,000,000 to $5,600,000,000 in 1932. During the last session of congress they were reduced $334,000,000, and that only because of the insistence and ax of retrenchment applied by the Democratic house of representatives and a minority in the United States senate."

SENATOR CUTTING'S G.O.P. BOLTERS QUIT IN FAVOR OF DEMOCRATS

Santa Fe, N. M., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Progressive party formed as an aftermath of the recent Republican state convention by followers of United States Senator Bronson M. Cutting has withdrawn its ticket from the field in New Mexico. Its members will support the Democratic party, Maurice Miera, state chairman, said tonight.

The ticket, headed by Frazer Miller of Roswell, as candidate for governor, was formed after a split in the Republican convention at Albuquerque last month. At that time Senator Cutting resigned as Republican national committeeman from New Mexico in protest against what he termed the "rule of the few within the party."

Senator Cutting declined to comment on Miera's announcement.

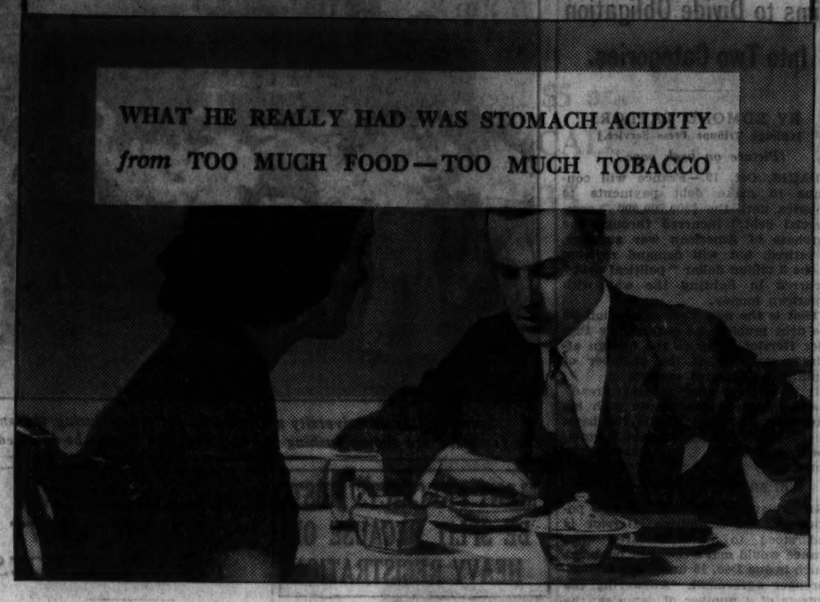
He Thought There Was Something "Queer" the Matter With Him



How by Doing One Simple Thing, You Can Minimize the After-Effects of Too Much Food — Too Much Tobacco — To a Remarkable Degree

MODERN science now throws a new light on the problem of overindulgence—eating too much, smoking too much, drinking unwisely. A way that millions are learning. And millions doing.

What you do is this:

"TAKE—2 tablespoons of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water before bed."

"TAKE—2 tablespoons of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water with the juice of a WHOLE ORANGE when you get up."

Or take six Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets the same way, which give an equivalent amount of Milk of Magnesia, for each Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablet equals one teaspoonful of the liquid Milk of Magnesia.

Tomorrow you'll feel great. Science says it is the Quickest, Simplest and Easiest way to overcome the effects of too much smoking, eating, drinking known.

How It Works

Results are quick and sure because this small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts to alkalize the system. And an alkalized system is largely impervious to the bad after-effects of too much smoking or other overindulgence.

It sweetens and purifies your stomach. Banishes the acid headache, sour stomach, deadly depression that mark the price of immoderations.

Take Every Night

Every person who smokes excessively should know this. And never go to bed without taking this minute quantity of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia before. And every person who lives too well—overindulges—should never forget it.

Try it—once. Feel how clear your head feels the next day—how free you are from headdullness and depression. You will be amazed.

When you buy, be sure you get the REAL article—Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Always ask for it by the name Phillips—for all "milk of magnesia" is not alike in effect. So take care to see you get Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—the kind doctors endorse; judged the most powerful neutralizer of stomach acids known.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA

Neutralizes Food and Tobacco Acids a few minutes after taking.

PROSPECTS for apartments are attracted to the Tribune Want Ad Section for much the same reason that State Street attracts by far the largest crowds of any market place in Chicago.

The market place that displays the largest, most varied stock always attracts more buyers. That's because almost everybody likes to compare values and to buy quickly with least effort.

Not only did the Tribune print more Rental want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper during the first nine months of 1932, but in each of the past twenty years it has led all Chicago newspapers in total want advertising.

The value of the volume of rental advertising in the Tribune to attract rental prospects is important to the advertiser, but not more so than the ability of the Tribune to place his offer directly before more families in Chicago and suburbs, daily and Sunday, than any other Chicago newspaper. Together, these two advantages, offered to advertisers only by the Tribune, give greatest assurance of results.

"HURRY UP" YOST URGES VOTERS TO RE-ELECT HOOVER

"Don't Change Quarter Back Now," He Warns.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Fielding H. [Hurry Up] Yost, director of athletics at the University of Michigan, carried the ball yesterday for President Hoover. In an address to the young voters and to the "folks in the bleachers and grandstands," he gave the campaign a new slogan: "Don't change quarter backs when the team is in scoring distance."

Tariff and depression, sound currency and fiat money were outstanding themes in the utterance of "Point a Minute" Yost, which was sent out by Republican national headquarters as the most important campaign document of the day and was later put on the air. He held that Democratic proposals in congress of fiat money are as fallacious as Bryan's free silver dream, and that it is "unsportsmanlike" to blame Hoover for the depression.

Recalls M'Kinley Campaign.

Beginning his address with a recollection of his first ballot forty years ago, when the protective tariff arguments of William McKinley, then a candidate for governor of Ohio, swung him to the Republican side, Yost said:

"I was serious enough to want facts then—not hokum—and I believe the young voter of today wants facts. Why should there be a Democratic clamor against the tariff now when we all, regardless of party, are instinctive protectionists? In fact, every one of us is for a protective tariff if our business, profession, or job is involved.

Two Important Questions.

"These are the two most important issues in this campaign: the protective tariff and sound, stable currency.

"The attitude of the Democratic candidate for President on tariff is most perplexing. He has in his speeches criticized the tariff as a 'wall' and a 'barbed wire entanglement,' but just where would Roosevelt cut the 'barbed wire' entanglements?

"What bricks would he take out of the tariff wall? Would he tell the Texans that the tariff on cattle should come off, letting into this country steers at one-half the price the Texas cattle raisers are getting? Roosevelt doesn't like the tariff wall with its solid protection, but he doesn't dare say what bricks he would take out of it.

"The Republican party is for a nationally equalized tariff, protecting labor, industry, and agriculture of all sections. On the other hand the Democrats are for sectional tariff protection."

Yost pointed to the Florida land boom, the stock market boom, the economic wreckage of the war as factors in depression and said if any man was in depression and said if any man had been in a position to curb the Wall street exchange it was Gov. Roosevelt.

Individual Responsibility.

"While we are on the subject of the woeful after effects of the war," he said, "let us point out briefly what we as individuals did that may have lessened our credit and financial abilities to absorb this shock from the outside.

"There was, for example, the Florida land boom. Millions on millions of dollars were 'invested' in lots and these will not be built up for a hundred years.

"In almost every town and city in the land people indulged in an unbridled spree of real estate speculation.

"What a tenacious grasp the spirit of gambling had on us following the war! I have seen some marvelous tackles on the football field, but nothing half so ferocious as those made by the gambling spirit. We fell all over ourselves running for the stock market. And right here it might be well to call attention to the institution known as the New York Stock exchange, which is organized under a charter from the state of New York and is located in the largest center of the Democratic party in the land.

Giant Machine Topples.

"The gigantic machine toppled and crashed. Surely if any man in the United States was in a position to control the New York Stock exchange Gov. Roosevelt was that man.

"And there are those who blame Herbert Hoover for the stock market crash and its almost unending trail of woe and hardship!

"Most of us gambled on the stock market. We didn't take the trouble or time to inquire as to the value of stocks. This was a great game as long as we could make a forward pass to some one in front of us so as to make a profit. But finally there was no one there to receive it; then we were left holding the ball and thrown for a loss."

As to whether conditions could be worse, Mr. Yost cited conditions in France, Germany, England, Japan and other countries.

Depreciation of Yen.

"It may interest you," he said, "to know that when we sent the University of Michigan baseball team to Japan last summer we specified that our guarantees should be on the dollar basis. Because of the weakness of the yen, the various colleges that had agreements were forced to pay twice as much as they would have had to pay if the yen had not depreciated in purchasing power between the date of the contract and the time set for payment.

"These are evidences of existing conditions in leading foreign countries. Are these people as well off as we are? It would be almost as absurd to say they are as it is for the Democrats to say that things, for us, could not be worse."

Hoover's reconstruction program is clicking, Mr. Yost set forth, adding that recovery is on its way. He concluded:

"If it had not been for that wise, patient, constructive, courageous man in the White House, our troubles would have been infinitely worse.

"Let us all go into a huddle with the truth and facts in this campaign and then adhere to the principles of Republicanism. Let us not substitute the quarter back who has led us to within scoring distance."

Plan Campaign

The executive committee of the Young Republicans' league at the University of Chicago met yesterday to discuss plans for arousing interest of students at the university in the candidacy of President Hoover. WARNS OF PERIL TO FREE PRESS IN CENSORS ABROAD

Censorship of news dispatches from foreign countries is more prevalent today than at any other time since the world war, James H. Furay, vice president of the United Press association, yesterday told more than 200 members of the Inland Daily Press association meeting at the Morrison hotel.

Mr. Furay, who has just returned from the International Radio-Telegraph conference at Madrid, said "A sword of Damocles hangs over the heads of American correspondents intrusted with the task of transmitting news from abroad.

"Censorship of this character is a direct challenge to the free press of the world and is particularly abhorrent to the press of our country," he added.

ESTIMATES LIFE OF SUN AT 15,000 BILLION YEARS

At its present rate of radiation the resources of the sun are sufficient to last 15,000 billion years, Dr. W. D. MacMillan, professor of astronomy at the University of Chicago, said last night in a talk at Northwestern university.

"It seems that the sun, like other stars, is deriving its energy at the expense of its mass, so that the sun is gradually wasting away, but so slowly that its present resources are sufficient to last 15,000 billion years," said Dr. MacMillan. "As the stars—and the sun is a typical star—travel through space, they gather in the nebulous material which exists there, and so renew their mass. Consequently, there is no upper limit to the life of a star."

Dr. MacMillan said that the universe was never "created," in the sense that nothing suddenly became something. Like everything else, he said, the stars have a past, and scientists of today are trying to discover what that past was.

CUBA SWEPT BY POLITICAL RIOTS; 3 DIE, MANY SHOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 19.—Political rioting throughout Cuba resulted today in three deaths, scores injured and many arrested.

At Cifuentes Alfonso de la Barca, a liberal, killed Jose M. Perez, a Populares nominee for congress. Five others were injured in street brawls. Five Conservatives killed two of a party of Liberals who ambushed them at Candelaria.

A Liberal alderman of Marianao, Havana suburb, fired six shots at Mayor Juan Gonzalez, Conservative, but none found a mark. Other riots and clashes occurred in Havana. Fifteen were wounded by stray bullets and scores were injured in clashes at Moron, Camaguey province, between supporters of rival candidates.

CERMAK COUNTY BOARD POST TO BE FILLED NOV. 8

Only City Residents Will Vote in Contest.

One of the offices to be filled at the Nov. 8 elections is the vacancy existing on the board of county commissioners by reason of the resignation of A. J. Cermak when he became mayor.

Democratic control of the board, however, is not at stake, that party holding twelve of the fifteen commissionerships and the Republicans only two.

Healy G. O. P. Nominee.

The Republican nominee is Thomas I. Healy, a former president of the Garfield Park Business Men's club and a member of the West Town Chamber of Commerce, who is in the drug business on the west side. Little has been heard of Mr. Healy among politicians, but one announced indorsement of him is that of the Wage Earners' league, which has been closely associated with the former Republican mayor who is campaigning for Len Small for governor. Mr. Healy lives at 5556 West Adams street.

John E. Traeger, son of the former Cook county sheriff, is the Democratic nominee. In 1930 he was elected a member of the board of assessors, but left that office before his term expired, along with his colleagues on the board and the reviewers, when the reorganization of the county taxing machinery by the general assembly became effective. He also served as an assistant sheriff for two years under the elder Traeger.

Only voters in the city will vote to fill the vacancy, as Mayor Cermak's former position was one of the ten commissionerships allotted to the city, the remaining five being elected in the county outside of the Chicago city limits.

County Surveyor to Be Named.

Another office, the contest for which has been overshadowed by the major battles, is that of county surveyor.

Henry Riedl, the Democratic nominee, is an engineer for the forest preserve district and has worked on country highways for nine years. Earlier he was connected with the Burlington and other railroads for a number of years. He is 42 years old and is a member of the Democratic organization in the 23d ward.

His Republican opponent, O. A. Rogers, is 30 years old. For ten years he has been actively engaged as a civil engineer and for four years has been recording secretary of the Technical Engineers, Architects and Draftsmen's union No. 14. He resides at 10616 Wallace street.

STRICKEN AT PHONE, DIES.

"I'm feeling dizzy," said Mrs. Belle Klokow, 59 years old, as she spoke to her daughter yesterday over the telephone. Failing to receive a further response the daughter notified police, who found Mrs. Klokow dead of heart disease in her home at 5903 North Campbell avenue.

SIX CANDIDATES SEEK ELECTION TO U. OF I. BOARD

Both Parties Offer Full Slates.

Overshadowed by the major joustings of the campaign, little attention has been paid to the race for three trusteeships of the University of Illinois. Each major party presents a slate of three candidates and each has one candidate from Cook county and two from downstate. The term is for six years.

The Republicans nominated last April are Dr. William L. Noble, 1560 Asbury avenue, Evanston, who is seeking reelection; Emma B. Rhea of Assumption, and William H. Wheat of Rantoul. The Democrats are Dr. Karl A. Meyer of Chicago, medical superintendent of the Cook county hospital; Mrs. Nellie V. Freeman of Mattoon, and O. M. Karraker of Harrisburg.

A Former President.

Dr. Noble was president of the board of trustees from 1923 to 1925 and is a former president of the Illinois State Medical society. He is a graduate of Rush Medical college, class of 1884, and has practiced medicine in Chicago since then. He has been superintendent of the Cook County Insane asylum, Cook county physician, and chief of staff of the Illinois Charitable Eye and Ear infirmary.

Emma B. Rhea is executive secretary of the Kemmerer orphanage at Assumption. She has been a school teacher and is a graduate nurse. For 20 years she was connected with Western Military academy at Alton, Ill., assuming her present post nine years ago. William H. Wheat has been president of the First National bank of Rantoul since 1914. His education included two years in business college.

Graduate of Illinois.

Dr. Meyer was graduated from the University of Illinois medical school in 1908 and held the chair of surgery in that institution from 1914 to 1926. He is at present associate professor of surgery at Northwestern university. He has been medical superintendent of the Cook county hospital for the last 13 years.

Mrs. Freeman of Mattoon was a public school teacher and for five years served as state vice president of the Parent-Teacher Association in Illinois. During the last year she was state president of the woman's auxiliary of the Illinois Medical society.

Mr. Karraker is a former mayor of Harrisburg and was president of its board of education for 15 years and principal of the Harrisburg High High school for two years. He is vice president of group 10, Illinois Bankers' association.

"King of the Wildcatters" Leaves $6,716,960 Estate

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Oklahoma estate of the late T. B. Slick, "king of the wildcatters," was appraised at a net value of $6,716,960.02 in a report filed in county court today. Mrs. Slick, widow of the oil millionaire, and Charles F. Urschell, whose late wife was Slick's sister. Under the will, the widow will receive three-ninths of the estate and each of the three children two-ninths.

SO. SIDE HOTEL ROBBERS ESCAPE WITH $2,000 LOOT

Three men early last evening entered the Carolyn hotel at 8480 Cornell avenue and obtained $2,000 after binding the auditor, William F. Uttig, with adhesive tape. The money had been drawn from a bank to meet the hotel pay roll. Uttig was held up in his office on the second floor. The bandits had come in a side door and climbed the stairs.

In the Hyde Park district at about the same time two men forced Alex Newman, owner of a meat market at 1013 East 53d street, to surrender $45, and two others took $30 from George Mathauser in his meat market at 4726 Dorchester avenue.

GOV. ROOSEVELT ASSERTS STAND AGAINST BONUS

Makes Pledge of Economy in Government.

federal authority and give it back to the states.

That he would really balance the federal budget. He condemned the huge deficits of the Hoover administration as draining the sources of credit needed by the farmer, the big and little business man, and the home owner.

In the balancing of the budget—which Mr. Roosevelt said is unbalanced this year [despite the Republican claims of balance] to the tune of $1,600,000,000—the candidate said he hoped it would not be necessary to increase "the present scale of taxes."

Mr. Roosevelt showed he relied considerably on a tax on beer to produce millions for the balancing of the budget, and thousands of thirsty Pittsburghers listening to the address in Forbes baseball field cheered as the New York governor said:

Points to New Revenue.

"I call definite attention to the fact that as soon as the Democratic platform pledge is enacted into legislation modifying the Volstead act, a source of new revenue amounting to several hundred millions of dollars a year will be made available toward the balancing of the budget.

"I refer specifically to a federal tax on beer which would be raised through the sale of beer in those states and those states only which by state law allow the sale of beer."

Gov. Roosevelt reiterated the Democratic pledge supporting state measures against the return of the saloon.

Mr. Roosevelt was unsparing in his condemnation of the record of spending established in Washington during the Hoover administration.

He found that after deducting debt service charges the expenditure for the business of the federal government was boosted from $2,187,000,000 in 1927 to $3,168,000,000 in 1931.

"That, my friends," he said, "represents an increase of actual administrative spending in those four years of approximately one billion dollars, or roughly 50 per cent; and that, I may add, is the most reckless and extravagant pace I have been able to discover in the statistical record of any peacetime government anywhere, any time."

Cites Department of Commerce.

The governor said "the air is now full of Republican deathbed repentance on the subject of economy, but we must look deeper than these eleventh hour pronouncements." He charged that Mr. Hoover's own department of commerce—a department which during the war time strain spent $13,000,000 annually—had boosted its expenditures to 39 millions when Mr. Hoover left it, and that in 1933 it would spend 43 millions.

This ought to explain, Mr. Roosevelt said, "why you can never expect any important economy from this administration."

The governor told of the rise of the total cost of all government to a total of 15 billions this year, which, he said, was one-third of the total national income of 45 billions.

"That is an impossible economic condition," the governor declared. "While apart from every man's own tax assessment, the burden is a brake on any return to normal business activity. Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors, because they are a burden on production and can be paid only by production. If excessive they are reflected in idle factories, tax sold farms, and hence in hordes of the hungry tramping the streets and seeking jobs in vain."

Attacks "Campaign of Fear."

The governor took some healthy wallops at what he called the guilt of the Republican leaders in spreading a gospel of fear. He declared that this was a "desperate, futile, last minute effort to dam the tide of popular disapproval that is steadily growing against the administration," and he added:

"It is an insult to the intelligence of the voter to think that he or she can be fooled by shifting the boast of the full dinner pail made in 1928 to the threat of the continued empty dinner pail in 1932."

FRIENDS ROBBED OF $2,600 AS THEY STOP FOR CHAT

A moment's chat lost more than $2,600 for Marcel Braun, president of the Advance Shoe company, and Mrs. Celia Bochner, 1447 South Springfield avenue, last night.

Braun drew his car up in front of his home at 1421 South Springfield avenue just as Mrs. Bochner passed on the way to her own home. They halted a moment to exchange greetings.

Just then a young robber, about 23 years old, accosted them. He forced Braun and Mrs. Bochner into the former's car, and drove them into an alley. From Mrs. Bochner he took a $100 pin, a $100 wedding ring, another ring valued at $500, a $450 lavaliere, and a $175 coat. From Braun he took $8, a ring and watch valued at $175, and then drove away in his car, valued at $1,100.

Federal Judge Carpenter Is 65 Years Old Today

Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, dean of the 7th circuit bench, will observe his 65th birthday today. Except for receiving congratulations of his friends, no ceremony will distinguish the day from any other in the 32 years he has served in the United States District court. "I am enjoying my work now as I have in the past," Judge Carpenter said, "and you can say I will be eligible for retirement in five more years." Federal judges may retire on full pay at 70 years of age.

Ex-Senator Lee Loses New Trial Appeal

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The North Carolina Supreme court today dismissed the appeal of Col. Luke Lea, former Tennessee senator, from a Superior court ruling denying him a new trial on a charge of violating the banking laws.

TEXT OF GOV. ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH ON COST OF GOVERNMENT AND PLEDGE OF ECONOMY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The text of Gov. Roosevelt's speech tonight at Forbes field follows:

"It is fitting that I should choose Pittsburgh to sound a solemn note of warning addressed not only to the Republican leaders, but also to the rank and file of American voters of all parties. There are some prices too high for the country to pay for the propaganda spread abroad in a presidential election.

"That is true when, as now, the Republican campaign management is guilty of spreading the gospel of fear.

"That is true when in a desperate, futile, last-minute effort to dam the tide of popular disapproval that is steadily growing against the administration, they become alarmists and panic breeders.

Selfish in Motive.

"This policy of seeking to win by fear of ruin is selfish in its motive, brutal in its method and false in its premise. It is a policy that will be resented as such by men and women of all parties in every section of the land on Nov. 8.

"It is an insult to the intelligence of the voter to think that he or she can be fooled by shifting the boast of the full dinner pail, made in 1928, to the threat of the continued empty dinner pail in 1932.

"I assure the badly advised and fear stricken leaders of the Republican party that Democrats and those of the rank and file of their own party who are properly dissatisfied with their leadership are still American patriots and cherish in their hearts, as I do, the safety of the country, the welfare of its people, and the continuance of our institutions.

"So much for the note of warning.

Won't Lose Temper.

"What is the normal and sensible thing to do when your neighbor gets excited and starts calling you and your friends bad names over the back fence? Nothing is gained by calling him worse names or by losing one's temper. The peace of the community is best served by sitting down and quietly discussing the problems without raising one's voice. That is why I decline to answer imprecation by vituperation.

"One of these problems—and a very vital one to my family and your family and the whole community—is the financial problem of making both ends meet.

"I want to discuss this problem with you tonight fully. To do so sincerely I must tell the facts as they are and conceal nothing from you. It is not a pretty picture, but if we know it and face it we have nothing to fear.

"This country is the richest and most resourceful nation in the world. It can and will meet successfully every problem which it faces, but it can do so only through intelligent leadership working unselfishly for the good of all people. That it has not had such leadership in its financial affairs will become obvious from the facts I shall relate to you tonight.

At Mercy of Government.

"We all know that our own family credit depends in large part on the stability of the credit of the United States, and here at least is one field in which all business, big business and little business, and family business, and the individual's business, is at the mercy of our big government down in Washington.

"Now, it is undoubtedly true that the mind of the average individual, man and woman, has been unable to keep pace in the last ten or twelve years with the intricacies of federal financing. In the first place, what used to be analagous to an old fashioned account book that all the family could understand, has become in Washington a maze of intricate double entry bookkeeping which only a few highly trained technical expert accountants could possibly understand.

"What I should like to do is to reduce, in so far as possible, the problem of our national finances to the terms of a family budget.

Must Live Within Income.

"Now, the credit of the family depends chiefly on whether that family is living within its income, and this is so of the nation. If the nation is living within its income, its credit is good. If in some crisis it lives beyond its income for a year or two it can usually borrow temporarily on reasonable terms. But if, like a spendthrift, it throws discretion to the winds, is willing to make no sacrifice at all in spending, extends its taxing to the limit of the people's power to pay and continues to pile up deficits, it is on the road to bankruptcy.

"For over two years our federal government has experienced unprecedented deficits, in spite of increased taxes. We must not forget that there are three separate governmental spending and taxing agencies in the United States—national, state and local. Because the apparent national income seemed to have spiraled upward from about 35 billions a year in 1913 to about 90 billions in 1928, all three of our governmental units became reckless and the total spending in all three classes rose in the same period from about three billions to nearly thirteen billions, or from 8½ per cent of income to 14½ per cent of income.

"Come Easy—Go Easy."

"But even then we did not greatly worry. We thought we were getting rich. 'Come-easy-go-easy' was the rule. It was all very merry while it lasted, but when the crash came we were shocked to find that while income dropped away like snow in the spring, governmental expense did not, with the result that it is estimated that in 1932 our national income will not much exceed 45 billions, while our total cost of government will be considerably in excess of 15 millions.

"This simply means that one-third—33 1-3 per cent—of the entire income of our people must go for the luxury of being governed.

"That is an impossible economic condition. Quite apart from every man's own tax assessment, that burden is a brake on any return to normal business activity. Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors because they are a burden on production and can be paid only by production. If excessive, they are reflected in idle factories, tax-sold farms, and hence in hordes of the hungry tramping the streets and seeking jobs in vain.

Workers Must Pay.

"Our workers may never see a tax bill, but they pay in deductions from wages, in increased cost of what they buy, or [as now] in broad cessation of employment. There is not an unemployed man—there is not a struggling farmer—whose interest in this subject is not direct and vital.

"Let me make it perfectly clear, however, that if men or women or children are starving in the United States I regard it as a positive duty of government to raise by taxes whatever sum may be necessary to keep them from starvation.

"What I am talking about are the taxes which go to the ordinary costs of conducting government and that is where the question of extravagance comes in. There can be no extravagance when starvation is in question; but extravagance does apply to the mounting budget of the federal government in Washington during these past four years.

"The most obvious effect of extravagant government spending is, then, its burden on farm and industrial activity, and for that nearly every government unit in the United States is to blame.

Even More Dangerous.

"But when we come to consider prodigality and extravagance in the federal government—as distinguished from state or local government—we are talking about something even more dangerous. For upon the financial stability of the United States depends the stability of trade and employment and of the entire banking, saving and insurance system of the country.

"To make things clear—to explain the exact nature of the present condition of the federal pocketbook—I must go back to 1929.

"Many people have believed the story which has been painstakingly circulated by this administration that the routine spending of our federal government has been kept on a fairly even keel during these last five years. It was perhaps easy to give this impression because the total outlay each year up to the emergency appropriations of this year did not increase alarmingly.

Joker in Floating Debt.

"But the joker in this is that total outlay includes interest and sinking fund on the public debt—a fixed charge which was declining during the days of national debt reduction and lower interest rates thereon. On the plain question of frugality of management, if we want to compare routine government outlay of 1927 with that of 1931, for example, we must substract this so-called 'debt service charge' from the total budget for both years. If we do this we find that the expenditure for the business of government in 1927 was $2,187,000,000 and in 1931 $3,168,000,000.

"That, my friends, represents an increase of actual administrative spending in those four years of approximately one billion dollars, or roughly 50 per cent; and that, I may add, is the most reckless and extravagant pace I have been able to discover in the statistical record of any peacetime government anywhere, any time.

"It is an ultimate fact which is the exact reverse of the thing announced as fact by Republican leaders.

Billion Dollar Increase.

"Let me repeat those figures so that the whole country can get them clearly in mind. Leaving out debt service charges in both instances, the cost of carrying on the government's business was $2,187,000,000 in 1927, $3,168,000,000 in 1931—an increase in four years of one billion dollars.

"That is the story on the spending side of the budget, but it is less than half of the whole appalling story.

"On the income side of the budget the record is worse. Unlike other taxing agencies, the federal government does not levy a direct tax on property. Therefore you don't have to be an expert to know that when anything happens that violently contracts sales and incomes and the prices of securities and commodities there is sure to be a similar violent contraction of federal income and that a government charged with maintaining the financial stability of the United States under all conditions is under a very solemn duty, in such an event, to take immediate steps to avoid a deficit.

Estimates Not Borne Out.

"Although six weeks had elapsed since the worst economic crash in history, the federal budget of December, 1929, did not even refer to it. It estimated receipts for the year ending June 30, 1931, at 4.2 billions, actually more than they had been in the preceding year of economic fantasy—a figure which obviously could not possibly be attained without immediate return to the exaggerated speculations of 1929.

"The administration advised no economy. On the contrary, it proposed a reduction of taxes and it blandly remarked, 'Our finances are in sound condition . . . Our estimated expenditures . . . are well within our expected receipts.'

"Against those estimated receipts placed at 4.2 billions by Secretary Mellon, the sad fact is that actual revenue turned out to be 3.3 billions—900 million dollars less than the estimate—a cool billion of overestimating.

"I recite the 1929 federal incident to clarify what happened at Washington in 1930 and 1931. In December of 1930 a new budget appeared. Vast declines in every form of business activity were now crystallized and certain. The national income was in a nose dive, and it was therefore certain that federal income was on the verge of a catastrophe.

Decline Not Considered.

"But that new budget of December, 1930, recommended neither increased taxes not decreased expenditure, although upon that recommendation depended the credit standing of this country. The budget message of the President asserted that the deficit for 1931 would be only $150,000,000, and contained the statements: 'Nor do I look with great concern upon this moderate deficit,' and 'our government finances are in a sound condition.'

"A surplus of $30,000,000 was estimated for 1932—that is to say, the net deficit for the two years together was estimated at $150,000,000. Now at this time the President and the secretary of the treasury had plenty of experience with falling tax receipts.

"The astonishing and inescapable fact is that no such results as those estimated could have been achieved without an immediate and complete business recovery from the practical paralysis then existing.

"In other words, this 1930 budget cannot fairly be called an estimate at all. It was an extreme hazard on the hope of an economic miracle—a gamble, if you please—on a highly improbable assumption, a gamble with your money and mine.

"There is something much more than mere error in this kind of thing. Our people and the world are entitled to reasonable accuracy and reasonable prudence, and above all they are entitled to complete frankness. They have a right and a duty to pass in retirement those who conceal realities and abuse confidence.

"Remember these simple facts. On Dec. 3, 1930, the administration of President Hoover estimated that on the following June 30 the government would have a total deficit of $180,000,000, but that during the following fiscal year, in other words on June 30, 1932, it would have had a profit of $30,000,000, thus reducing the total deficit by June 30, 1932, to $150,000,000.

"Now, my friends, I am going to give you a real shock. Instead of the estimated deficit of $150,000,000, the deficit on June 30, 1932, was for the two fiscal years three and three-quarters billion dollars.

"No, I fear we cannot call this budget an estimate—nor even a fair gamble. I don't know what to call this kind of representation of that kind of fact, but the name certainly is not candor.

Worst Year of Depression.

"Nineteen thirty-one proved to be the worst year yet experienced in the depression. For my distinguished opponent it was the year when all his distinctive 1928 economic heresies seemed to come home to roost together.

"Let us call the roll of them.

"[1] The loans of 'backward and crippled countries,' which he said would provide uninterrupted employment and industrial activity by expanding our export trade no longer could be made.

"[2] Retaliation against his monstrous Grundy tariff against which the best economic and industrial thought in the country had stood in almost unanimous protest and against which it once more protested within the last week, and which was to cure our agriculture and maintain our industry, had begun to strangle world trade, including our own.

"[3] Debtor nations [no longer sustained by our improvident loans and no longer able to export goods] were drained of gold for debts, and, one by one, were forced to abandon specie payments.

"[4] As a direct result of all these influences our export markets dried up, our commodity prices slumped, and our domestic business was declining at a more rapid rate than business in some of the backward and crippled countries. Unemployment also began to rise here in even greater proportions than in Europe. To top this ruin of all these seductive 1928 theories [which were to bring the millennium of abolished poverty] came the complete collapse of the 1929 and 1930 administration fiscal policy.

Truth Leaks Out.

"The truth about the shattering effect of all these homing heresies began to leak out as the summer of 1931 advanced. It is my opinion that in the conduct of national finances, as in the conduct of corporation finances, or family budgets, if things are not going as well as one had hoped, it is far better to face the truth than to try to hide it. That is why it was far more harmful to the nation last autumn, and all through this year, to have the facts leak out than it would have been to have had them boldly and frankly disclosed to us when they were actually happening.

"My friends, the result of such a combination of disquieting revelations was inevitable. The very basis of confidence in our economic and financial structure both here and abroad was impaired. A fresh wave of liquidation ensued. Foreigners took gold back to their now shattered 'backward and crippled countries' until a cool billion had been drawn from our reserves. It was the Stygian climax to the black business year of 1931.

"I emphasize this history because our opponents have now become almost frantic in their insistence that this entire sequence originated abroad—that no American policy was in the least to blame, and that to say otherwise is what they call 'hideous misrepresentation.' The 'foreign cause' alibi is like ascribing measles to its spots rather than to its characteristic germs.

Must Stand on Record.

"No, we need not look abroad for scapegoats. We had ventured into the economic stratosphere on the wings of Mr. Hoover's novel, radical, and unorthodox economic theories of 1928—the complete collapse of which brought the real crash in 1931. The Grundy tariff accentuated the drop. As hard reality rushed up to meet our fall this administration did not see fit to adapt its fiscal policies to this inevitable consequence. It is a responsibility which no campaign alibi can avert, and today the day of reckoning is here.

"The rcent administration strategy in this campaign is a direct appeal to public sympathy for their agony of spirit in the dark hours of 1931-1932, when retribution for our chasing after strange economic gods overtook us. They protest against any assessment of just blame. But they protest in vain.

"I want to say, with all sincerity, that I recite this record with reluctance. No man with a spark of humanity can fail to sympathize with our responsible leaders in hours of crisis. Politics or no politics, I pay my tribute to the devotion of the President. It is not true to say that he has not been unremitting in his efforts and I for one have never heard it said. But I do indict his administration for wrong action, for delayed action, and for lack of frankness and courage.

People to Make Choice.

"Before the administration partisans complain of this arraignment they must remember that the American people are now about to exercise their democratic right of self-determination of their own fate and future. They must make a choice.

"The administration's appeal for sympathy is not based on any frank acknowledgment of the failure of the policies so clearly portrayed by these tragic events. It is, on the contrary, a denial that these principles have failed. Indeed, it persists in the same course and even presumes to ask admiration for the stubborn suggestions of that persistence.

"In such circumstances I should fall utterly in my duty to the American people if I did not fearlessly portray these errors and link them directly to the havoc which they have brought and which they threaten to continue.

"The autumn of 1931 witnessed, then, the complete wreckage of the administration program to that date—the collapse of its entire economic philosophy. The convening of the 72d congress last December marked a new phase. The President appeared with his December, 1931, budget message.

"That was a fateful moment. That was the time for an honest demonstration to the world that might have set the whole world trend of economic events in an upward direction or at least checked the decline. All that it was necessary to do was finally to end the two years of vacillation and secretiveness—to tell the truth to the congress of the United States—to rely on it to balance the budget and establish American credit in the eyes of all the world.

"This administration specifically acknowledged the necessity for that. It said it was going to balance the budget. Then it said it was balancing the budget, and finally it said it had balanced the budget and now, months later, it insists that because it has balanced the budget it has saved the Gibraltar of world stability and prevented the overthrow of our form of government.

"If all this is true the administration has done well. If it is not true then the administration stands convicted of a new and fatal trifling with the welfare of our people and the credit of our country.

Quotes Treasury Statement.

"Let us not waste words. I now quote from the daily treasury statement at the end of the first quarter of the current fiscal year, made three weeks ago, on Sept. 30, 1932:

"'Excess of expenditures over receipts, $462,948,002.'

"For the corresponding quarter of last year the deficit was only $380,495,534, but at the end of the year it was $2,885,000,000. There is therefore strong indication that we are in for another staggering deficit. If the present rate continues the true deficit as of June 30 next year will be over $1,600,000,000, not as large as it was in the unprecedented fiscal year of 1932, but so great that it makes us catch our breath.

"I regret to say that the appeal of this administration for applause for its soundness and courage last winter is simply not based on facts. The budget is not balanced and the whole job must be done over again in the next session of congress.

Puts Blame on Administration.

"Who is to blame for this new blunder? I cannot answer that question better than to refer you to the dispassionate review of the last session of congress made last Friday by my running mate, the speaker of the house, John Garner. No one who will take the trouble to read that speech will doubt that the patriotic determination of a willing congress to balance this budget at any cost was frustrated by the same kind of concealment and vacillation that produced the staggering deficits of the years ended June 30, 1931 and 1932.

"It is very clear that, under repeated insistence that the budget was being balanced, congress gave our treasury—without hesitation or limit—every cent of revenue it asked for, and that, at the end, the administration assured congress and the country that the task had been accomplished.

People Not Trusted.

"I have already shown how unreliable these constant assurances are. It is not seemly to conjecture motives, but I think it is fair to say the whole record of administration policy in the last four years reveals that it has been afraid to trust the people of the United States with the true facts about their affairs. That is a fundamental error which shows unfamiliarity with the true basis of American character.

"While the President claims that he did finally recommend new taxes, I fear that this courage came two years too late and in far too scanty measure. It explains 'prosperity around the corner.' It explains two complete concealments of deficits and the insufficiency of the action taken last winter. It is an error of weakness and an error which I assure you I shall not make.

"Our federal extravagance and improvidence bears a double evil; first, our people and our business cannot carry its excessive burdens of taxation; second, our credit structure is impaired by the unorthodox federal financing made necessary by the unprecedented magnitude of these deficits. The latter is the more technical but to my mind the more immediately dangerous evil, and, at the risk of being tedious to many of my audience, I want to ask their indulgence while I talk, for a moment, straight to our financiers.

Lending Capacity Absorbed.

"Instead of financing the billion dollar deficit of 1931 in the regular way, our government simply absorbed that much of the lending capacity of banks and by so much impaired the credit available for business. In that year the amount of government obligations held by our banks increased by a little more than one billion dollars.

"You know as well as I do that this administration's claims that it has provided credit for industry and agriculture by pouring credit into banks are not frank. Commercial credit has continuously contracted and is contracting now. Most of this new government created credit has been taken to finance the government's continuing deficits. The truth is that our banks are financing these stupendous deficits and that the burden is absorbing their resources.

"All this is highly undesirable and wholly unnecessary. It arises from one cause only, and that is the unbalanced budget and the continued failure of this administration to take effective steps to balance it. If that budget had been fully and honestly balanced in 1930, as it could have been, some of the 1931 collapse would have been avoided. Even the extreme dip in 1932 would have been obviated. Our financial men know the unnecessary muddle that has accumulated and is still accumulating in Washington.

Would Clear Obscurity.

"Now how can we continue to countenance such a condition? In all conscience, can an administration which has so frequently failed in a matter so directly touching your own responsibilities ask for your support and trifle with your common sense by these campaign alibis about mysterious foreign forces and this specious talk about sound fiscal policies and administration?

"Would it not be infinitely better to clear this whole subject of obscurity—to present the facts squarely to the congress and the people of the United States and secure the one sound foundation of permanent economic recovery—a complete and honest balance of the federal budget? In all earnestness I leave the answer to your common sense and judgment.

"The other bad effect of this fiscal mismanagement is not at all technical. It is the burden of high cost on the backs of all our people.

Quotes Smith and Coolidge.

"I can state the condition best by quoting one paragraph from a document published a week ago and signed by both Alfred E. Smith and Calvin Coolidge:

"'All the costs of local, state and national government must be reduced without fear and without favor. Unless the people, through unified action, arise and take charge of their government they will find that their government has taken charge of them. Independence and liberty will be gone and the general public will find itself in a condition of servitude to an aggregation of organized and selfish minorities.'

"Every word of that warning is true, and the first and most important and necessitous step in balancing our federal budget is to reduce expense.

"The air is now full of Republican death bed repentance on the subject of economy, but we must look deeper than these eleventh hour pronouncements. You cannot go very far with any real federal economy without a complete change of concept of what are the proper functions and limits of the federal government itself.

Idea of Government.

"Perhaps we can get some glimpse of the President's underlying idea about the federal government from his 1928 speeches. He proposed, you remember, 'A new thing in government.' He says he 'reorganized the department of commerce on a greater scale than has ever been attempted or achieved by any government in the world.' In his book, 'The New Day,' he says, 'A nation which is spending ninety billions a year can well afford a few hundred million for a workable program.'

"I could go on quoting for a good many minutes, but perhaps the point could be made clearer by recalling that the department of commerce went through even the heavy war strain on about 15 millions a year. When Mr. Hoover left it, it was spending 39 millions and for 1933 it estimated it will spend 43 millions. It is now housed in what is facetiously called in Washington the 'Temple of Fact Finding,' which cost the people considerably more than the capitol of the United States.

May Explain Increase.

"That record may explain the 50 per cent increase in government overhead in four years, 1927-1931, and I am sure that the whole group of quotations reveal why you can never expect any important economy from this administration. It is committed to the idea that we ought to center control of everything in Washington as rapidly as possible. That was the idea that increased government cost by a billion in four years.

"Now, ever since the days of Thomas Jefferson that has been the exact reverse of the Democratic concept—which is to permit Washington to take from the states nothing more than is necessary to keep abreast of the march of our changing economic situation.

"In the latter philosophy and not in the philosophy of Mr. Hoover (which I think is responsible for so much of our trouble) I shall approach the problem of carrying out the plain precept of our party, which is to reduce the cost of the current federal government operations by 25 per cent.

"Of course, that means a complete realignment of the unprecedented bureaucracy that has assembled in Washington in the last four years.

"I am no stranger to Washington. I knew it at first hand during the administrations of Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft. I served in Washington for seven and a half years during the Wilson administration. I have some familiarity with the psychology of the administration of the national government. More than that, I have conducted for four years the administrative and executive affairs and the policies of a state that has 12,000,000 inhabitants.

Twofold Pledge.

"Now I am going to disclose to you a definite personal conclusion which I adopted the day after I was nominated in Chicago. Here it is: Before any man enters my cabinet he must give me a twofold pledge of:

"1. Absolute loyalty to the Democratic platform and especially to its economy plank.

"2. Complete coöperation with me, looking to economy and reorganization in his department.

"I regard reduction in federal spending as one of the most important issues of this campaign. In my opinion it is the most direct and effective contribution that government can make to business.

"In accordance with this fundamental policy it is equally necessary to eliminate from federal budget making during this emergency all new items except such as relate to direct relief of unemployment.

Repeats Bonus Stand.

"As a part of this phase of the problem I note that former President Coolidge is reported as having said in a speech in New York City:

"'An early and timely word from the Democratic candidate for President that he would reject the proposal to increase the national debt by $2,300,000,000 to pay a bonus would have been a great encouragement to business, reduced unemployment, and guaranteed the integrity of the national credit. While he remained silent, economic recovery was measurably impeded.'

"That charge is baseless and absurd for the reason that last April my views on the subject were widely published and have been subsequently frequently quoted. I said:

"'I do not see how, as a matter of practical sense, a government running behind two billion dollars annually can consider the anticipation of bonus payment until it has a balanced budget, not only on paper but with a surplus of cash in the treasury.'

Resents Assumption of Views.

"No one, for political purposes or otherwise, has the right in the absence of explicit statement from me to assume that my views have changed. They have not. So much for another effort by Republican leaders to preach an unwarranted gospel of fear and panic to the American electorate."

"I have sought to make two things clear: First, that we can make savings by reorganization of existing departments, by eliminating functions, by abolishing many of the innumerable boards and commissions which over a long period of years have grown up as excrescences on the regular system. These savings can properly be made to total many hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

Income from Beer.

"Secondly, I hope that it will not be necessary to increase the present scale of taxes, and I call definite attention to the fact that as soon as the Democratic platform pledge is enacted into legislation modifying the Volstead act a source of new revenue amounting to several hundred millions of dollars a year will be made available toward the balancing of the budget.

"I refer specifically to a federal tax on beer which would be raised through the sale of beer in those states and those states only which by state law allow the sale of beer. At the same time I reiterate the simple language of the Democratic platform which opposes the return of the saloon, as follows:

"'We urge the enactment of such measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon, and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the state.'

"The above two categorical statements are aimed at a definite balancing of the budget. At the same time, if starvation and dire need on the part of any of our citizens make necessary the appropriation of additional funds which would keep the budget out of balance, I shall not hesitate to tell the American people the full truth and recommend to them the expenditure of this additional amount.

Take Yoke Off Business.

"My friends, these have been unhealthy years for prophets and I hasten to disclaim that rôle. But one thing I know. A powerful cause contributing to economic disaster has been this inexcusable fiscal administration and the obscurity and uncertainty that has attended and grown out of it. There it remains for all to see—a veritable cancer in the body politic and economic. Is it prophecy to assure you that if we remove this destructive growth we shall move on to better things?

"To my mind this is so plain and persuasive as scarcely to be open to argument. As I said in the beginning, this is the one field in which business is wholly in the grip of government.

"By the same token, it is the one field where government can make the greatest possible present contribution to recovery. To this contribution I here pledge the utmost of my faith and my ability. I am as certain as mortal man can be certain of anything in the future that from the moment that we set our hands openly, and frankly, and courageously to this problem we shall have reached the end of our long, hard, downward road and shall have started on the upward trail. We shall have built for economic recovery a firm footing, on a path broad, true, and straight.

"Join me and 'let's go!'"

Well Fitting Evening Shirts

At the Opera, First-nights at the Theater, Banquets, and other Important Evening Functions there is a surprisingly large number of men in poorly fitting Evening Shirts. Thus, the smart effect of their otherwise correct attire is greatly impaired and also their pleasure is frequently spoiled after spending generously for an evening's entertainment.

Formal Attire should always reflect Impeccable Taste and Individual Becomingness. Styles in Shirts change just as in other Requisites and one cannot expect to be smartly dressed with shirts that are now passe. Evening Shirts require the utmost care both in designing and in expert fitting for which we are eminently renowned. Lower Prices are now in effect in our four Shops—New York, Chicago, London, Paris.

HORNER CROWD SETS RECORD FOR PARTY IN AURORA

1,500 Stand Outside Hall to Hear Speech.

A crowd of more than 4,000 gathered in Aurora last night to hear Judge Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, deliver a scathing speech against his Republican opponent, Len Small.

The meeting was said to be the largest ever held by the Democrats in Kane county, a center of Republicanism since the civil war. Judge Horner and other members of the state ticket spoke in the Paramount theater, which seats 2,500, and 1,500 others were outside listening to amplifiers. Small had less than 1,000 hearers when he spoke at Aurora recently.

Spikes Downstate Claims.

Judge Horner asserted that the enthusiasm in Lake and Kane counties proved that the voters were tired of Republican promises which meant nothing. He criticized Small for striving to array downstate counties against Chicago and campaigning as "the downstate governor." It was Cook county's vote that nominated Small in both 1920 and 1924, he added.

The Democratic nominee devoted a part of his speech to urging votes for Gov. Roosevelt for President, referring to him as a fearless humanitarian.

Earlier in the day Judge Horner had spoken at Geneva and Elgin, where he excoriated Small for forcing employés of the state hospitals to donate to his campaign and other funds. Tomorrow the nominee will speak from the same platform with Gov. Roosevelt at Springfield. Later he will speak at Dwight and in the evening in Small's home town, Kankakee.

"I am aware," said the judge, in his Aurora speech, "that my opponent is posing as the champion of downstate in this campaign, and that the Republican speakers are referring to him as the 'downstate governor.' A glance at his political history shows how glaringly false this claim is."

Instead of being the candidate of the downstate Republicans Small is actually the candidate of the old political machine headed by William Lorimer and a former Republican mayor of Chicago, "just as he always has been," the judge declared.

"Back in the old days," he continued, "when my opponent was only a county leader, his alliances were always with the Republican machine of Cook county—then known as the Lorimer gang. He always delivered his county to the candidates they favored.

"So well was this understood by the people of the state that in his first campaign for the nomination in 1920, my opponent got very few votes at the primary. John G. Oglesby, the candidate of the Lowden administration, polled a tremendous majority downstate, so large that it was generally conceded that Oglesby had been nominated.

Hold Up Chicago Returns.

"But my opponent's backers in Chicago prepared for this. They were in control of the election machinery of Cook county and also controlled the police force; the former Republican mayor of Chicago being in office at that time.

"To defeat Oglesby, the downstate candidate, the Republican mayor of Chicago and his henchmen suppressed the police returns on the Cook county vote for many hours, and it was not until it was known just how many votes were needed to overcome the downstate majority against my present opponent that the result in Cook county was announced.

"Then, as might have been expected, it was just enough to nominate my opponent, with a few thousand votes over to lend a semblance of plausibility to the affair.

"In the election that year my opponent received more than half his plurality in Cook county, with the assistance of the former Republican mayor, and that same thing occurred in 1924, when the same man was still the titular head of the Republican county organization and still in control of the election machinery. That is my opponent's record as a downstate candidate. I leave to the voters whom he is attempting to deceive the decision of how just his claim is."

Collects from Employés.

Judge Horner's parting shot at Small, given before he launched into a discussion of his platform, was the charge that Small has been "shaking down" the employés of the state institutions for campaign contributions.

"The fact that these public servants are in most instances civil service employés does not protect them against the political intimidation used by my opponent's managers," the judge said. "I would scorn to have my campaign aided by such methods. In Cook county, where the Democrats are in control, no pressure of that sort has been brought against public employés, and none will be brought. As governor I will do my utmost to make it impossible to levy this form of political blackmail against civil service employés of the state of Illinois."

MICHIGAN PLANNING SIMPLE GREETING TO HOOVER ON SATURDAY

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—President Hoover will be spared the rigors of a formal reception when he visits Detroit Saturday, it was announced today by Fred W. Green, former governor and chairman of the committee on arrangements which is perfecting plans at state Republican headquarters here for the welcome to be accorded the President.

"The demands upon the time of the President are so numerous and the strain upon him so great," said Mr. Green, "that the committee having the meeting in charge is endeavoring to lighten these burdens as much as possible. We therefore decided not to have a reception of any sort."

A huge motor cavalcade, symbolic of Michigan's leading industry, is being arranged as part of the Hoover welcome. It is anticipated that thousands of cars will join the huge caravan converging on Detroit Saturday afternoon. Demand for tickets for the President's address, to be delivered at the Olympia auditorium, which seats 18,000, has been heavy, members of the ticket committee said, and it is certain that many thousands will be turned away.

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

State's Attorney Swanson made two speeches yesterday, at noon before the Midland club and in the evening to the Illinois Institute of Accountants meeting at the Press club. To both audiences he recited the accomplishments of his office and related the high points of the Insull prosecution.

An appeal for the election of Senator Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, was issued yesterday by the United Depositors Association of Illinois, which, according to Roland W. Erickson, president, was formed by, of and for the depositors in more than 100 closed banks in Chicago and Cook county. The association was incorporated under Illinois laws in 1931 as a corporation formed not for profit.

An indorsement of all Republican candidates was made yesterday by Charles W. Hadley, who resigned as chairman of the Illinois commerce commission to run for attorney general last spring. He carried downstate Illinois but lost to John E. Northup in Cook county. "A Republican victory," Mr. Hadley said, "will restore confidence and result in an immediate improvement of conditions. Fear of a Democratic victory is one of the things that is holding industry back at present."

Three world war veterans, members of the executive committee of the War Veterans Association of Cook County, yesterday repudiated an alleged indorsement of Judge Henry Horner for governor, Republican headquarters announced. They were: Arthur "Jack" Poorman, past state commander of the American Legion; Alfred Wieck, past district commander [9th district] American Legion; and Raymond J. Thorn, junior vice commander of the Cook county council, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The three, headquarters stated, are working for the election of Len Small.

William T. Dieterich of Beardstown, Democratic candidate for United States senator, will address the Chicago Bar association at noon today.

Confident that Judge Henry Horner will be Illinois' next governor, City Sealer Joe Grein yesterday announced plans for a game dinner in his honor on or about Nov. 9. Sixty ducks, bagged by Mr. Grein and John P. Harding near Peoria the first two days of the shooting season, are in a refrigerator ready for the occasion. This supply will be augmented by further expeditions by the hunters.

Under the auspicies of the Southwest League of Women Voters, several state and county candidates will be heard at a nonpartisan meeting at 8 p. m. Friday in the Ridge Park field house, 96th street and Longwood drive.

The Hoover-Curtis sound car, carrying speakers and recorded addresses of cabinet officers, will tour the smaller cities and towns of Cook and Lake counties on Saturday, Oct. 29, and Monday, Oct. 31. Efforts are being made, according to the speakers' bureau of the Republican national committee, to reach the smaller communities throughout the country with the sound cars, which carry in a more informal and intimate manner the party's view on issues of the campaign.

Thomas D. Campbell, "wheat king" of Hardin, Mont., announced at Republican national headquarters yesterday that he is preparing to make addresses for President Hoover on the farm situation. Campbell was en route to Washington for a conference with the President.

The Danish-American Citizens' League of Chicago has indorsed Gov. Roosevelt for President; Judge Henry Horner for governor, and Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz of the 7th district for reelection. Waldemar Bauer is president; Louid Ljunberg, treasurer, and Charles L. Wilde, secretary.

Republican national headquarters issued a statement quoting Mrs. Eunice W. Stabler of Pawhuska, Okla., a member of the Omaha tribe of Indians, as saying, "President Hoover has done more for the American Indian during his term than has been done in the last 143 years."

CANNIBALISM IN RUSSIA REPORTED IN POLISH PRESS

(Copyright, 1932: By the New York Times.)

WARSAW, Oct. 19.—Cannibalism in the soviet Ukraine is reported to the Express Telegraph agency here. Thousands of peasants are said to be starving in the fertile plains of eastern Ukraine.

In the village of Molodeckie, near Buki, a peasant, Victor Fiwaenzenko, is said to have slain his two children, sold the human flesh, and eaten some himself. Fiwaenzenko was arrested and found to be insane.

In the village of Carkowuna a woman named Zacharesenko killed her son in order to feed her two other children. In Krisscewni a 4 year old child was found fried on a pan. Peasants lynched the cannibal.

The soviet legation here is protesting in a note to the foreign office.

DE VALERA SAYS BRITAIN IS ACTING ROLE OF SHYLOCK

Seeks Relief from U. S., but Presses Ireland.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Great Britain is "playing the part of Shylock" toward the Free State and at the same time petitioning the United States for relief from war debts, "which no one denies are morally and legally due," President Eamon de Valera declared before the Dail Eireann today.

The president was making his report to the legislature on the failure of last week's negotiations in London which had been aimed at terminating the Anglo-Irish tariff war. He said those negotiations failed because Britain insisted that members of a suggested arbitration committee should be limited to representatives of empire nations. This insistence, he added, ruled out any possibility of arbitration.

"Free State Not Obligated."

Mr. de Valera declared that the Free State was neither legally nor morally obligated to pay land annuities to Britain. These annuities were provided to cover transfer of land to Irish tenants. Dublin's refusal to remit them precipitated the economic warfare.

"While they [the British] are playing the part of Shylock as regards this country, they are pledged as petitioners with the United States and are playing the rôle of Lady Bountiful on the continent," the president said.

"They are petitioning for the release of debts which no one denies are morally and legally due. They recognize that—it is recognized on the continent—the whole world recognizes that if there is to be any restoration of economic life in this world then huge intergovernmental debts must cease.

Tariff War to Go On.

"We are not prepared to bind our people or to commit them to a burden that has been imposed in the past. We are not prepared to put the future of our country in bond in that respect. We believe the British demands to be neither legally nor morally due and we are prepared to defend our rights."

Asserting that the tariff war is bound to go on, Mr. de Valera predicted that eventually it would relieve Ireland from "dangerous dependence on British markets."

He informed the Dail that at the London discussions he claimed 400 million pounds (about $1,360,000,000) for overtaxation in the past as part of the final adjustment of the financial relations of the two countries.

He also claimed damage for Britain's going off the gold standard, he said, "in the same way that other governments made representations to Britain and Britain herself to France on a similar basis."

WAR HERO HELD AS RAPIST AND A HOLDUP MAN

Frank Rusdorf, 40 years old, 1622 East 74th street, who was cited for bravery several times while serving in the Argonne with the 33d division during the world war, is under arrest at the Burnside station. One woman has identified him as a rapist and nine have pointed him out as a robber.

According to Mrs. Eva Goodwin, 10731 Eberhart avenue, Rusdorf set fire to a garage in the rear of her home on Feb. 22, 1932, and then raised an alarm. When she opened the door of her kitchen, she added, he thrust a revolver at her and attacked her.

Eleven years ago Rusdorf was arrested on charges of setting fire to a number of buildings on the south side. He made a confession, stating that he wanted to be a fireman and only started the blazes to help put them out. Later this confession was repudiated, and he was never convicted. He was said to have been gassed and shell shocked during the war.

Nude Dancer in Fields Eludes North Shore Police

Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county and police of North Chicago and Waukegan were wondering last night if a nudist colony has moved into their midst. Dozens of complaints were received during the day of a man, sans clothing, dancing about in the fields west of both communities and near Green Bay road. Police expect a drop in temperature will discourage his appearance.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

New Health Badge

As a result of complaints regarding the improper use of health department stars, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health, has abandoned the old five-pointed stars worn by employes and has adopted a new emblem, which has been issued only to bona fide employes. The discarded five-pointed star and the new emblem are shown above. Official notice has been given that the old stars will no longer be recognized.

2 POLICE BATTLE FIVE ROBBERS ON BELMONT AVENUE

Detectives Edward Cole and Harry Schaef of the Sheffield avenue police station fought a sharp pistol battle at Belmont and Seminary avenues early last evening with five bandits, two of whom had attempted to rob the General Furniture company store at 1101 Belmont avenue.

More than a dozen shots were fired. The five men, at least two of whom, according to the police, were wounded, escaped.

Cole and Schaef had been stationed in the store after information had been received that the robbery was contemplated. They were concealed when the two robbers entered. One of the pair walked toward Gus Engelhardt, one of the store owners, and Carl D. Edwards, the manager, while the other bandit took his station at the door after shouting it was a stickup.

The policemen opened fire and the men fled toward the car which was parked outside. Following, Schaef was met with bullets from the automobile. One of the original pair staggered as he approached the vehicle and was helped in by his companions. Hospitals and physicians were asked last night to report promptly any men asking treatment for wounds.

Society Extortioner Will Seek a New Trial Today

Arguments for a new trial on behalf of Rudolph Diez, extortionist found guilty of sending threatening letters through the mails to the families of society brides, will be heard today by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Assistant United States Attorney Thomas Dodd Healy, who prosecuted the case—the first under the new law making it a felony to use the mails in an extortion scheme—will oppose the plea for a new trial. Diez, who is in the county jail, announced he would carry the fight to the higher courts.

PRINCESS WEDS SWEDISH PRINCE IN CIVIL RITES

Religious Ceremony to Be Held Today.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COBURG, Germany, Oct. 19.—Prince Gustav Adolph Oscar, heir apparent to the Swedish throne, and the Princess Sibbyle, daughter of the dethroned duke of Saxe-Coburg, were married today in a civil ceremony in the historic antler room of Callenberg castle.

White reichswehr soldiers presented arms, old coaches lumbered through the cobblestone courts. The first one carried Crown Prince Gustav Adolph of Sweden and Duke Leopold of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, witnesses to their children's wedding. The second brought the bridegroom and the young bride, who wore a wine red dress with a long train, the same one in which she received friends yesterday.

Mayor Performs Ceremony.

Mayor Schwede of Coburg performed the ceremony. The register which the couple and the witnesses signed, as prescribed by law, lay on a table which belonged to the father of the prince consort, spouse of England's Queen Victoria, who is an ancestor of both the newlyweds.

Immediately after the ceromony the young couple called on the highest ranking royalty living in Coburg, King Ferdinand, dethroned monarch of Bulgaria. Then all around formal calling between royalty of varying ranks started. The lesser nobility and prominent bourgeois engaged in the same pastime, but with more clicking of heels and rigid ceremonial than among the royalty proper.

Duke Arthur of Connaught, emissary of the king of England, was given an enthusiastic welcome by residents of Coburg and visitors from miles around. Former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria also was acclaimed enthusiastically. These two ran King Ferdinand close seconds when it came to reckoning the number of visits of respect paid to them.

Church Ceremony Today.

The bridesmaids and ushers, Princess Ingrid of Sweden, Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia, Princesses Feodora and Caroline of Denmark, Princess Marie Louise of Schleswig-Holstein, Countess Dagmar Bernadotte, and the grandsons of the ex-kaiser, Wilhelm and Alexander of Prussia; Princes Bertil, Sigvard and Carl Johnson of Sweden, Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, and Prince Hubertus of Saxe-Coburg, rehearsed today for the church ceremony, which will take place tomorrow noon.

Tonight Coburg clubs, including the Steel Helmet (war veterans) associations and Hitlerites in their uniforms, took part in a great torchlight procession. They paraded past big stands in which sat the members of royalty.

Gymnastic clubs showed their prowess, the youth of Coburg danced old folk dances, bands played Swedish march tunes, and local singing clubs sang old German songs. The Coburg burgher who organized the festivity made a speech which told of the undying love that ties the people of Coburg to their ducal house. At 10 o'clock tonight a huge fête started in which deputations of Coburgers mingled with royal guests.

MENJOUS SEPARATE; WIFE EXPECTED TO FILE DIVORCE SUIT

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Separation of Adolphe Menjou, screen star, and his wife, known in motion pictures as Kathryn Carver, was announced today by her attorney, Milton Cohen.

Mrs. Menjou is recuperating from a nervous breakdown in a hospital here.

Cohen said she probably will file suit for divorce shortly, and a property settlement is being arranged.

"Mr. Menjou is interested in his work and she is interested in hers," the attorney said. "The separation is an amicable one."

They were married in Paris in May, 1928. Mrs. Menjou formerly was the wife of Ira Hill, New York photographer.

CHICAGO FLYER BURNS TO DEATH IN PLANE CRASH

John Hovers, 28 years old, 3538 Herndon street, Chicago, was burned to death yesterday afternoon when his Waco biplane crashed near Morris, Ill., and burst into flames. The plane fell from between four and five hundred feet into a corn field. Hovers was pinned in the ship, and five corn huskers, who were nearby, were unable to extricate him because of the flames.

Hovers flew to Morris to visit a friend, Bert Holtenbeck, and shortly before the crash he is said to have throttled down his motor and leaning over the side called to Holtenbeck, "I'll see you tonight." Hovers is survived by his wife and a son.

Morris is 50 miles southwest of Chicago.

LIBBY HOLMAN INSISTS ON TRIAL TO 'CLEAR NAME'

Rejects Reynolds Family Offer to Drop Case.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Libby Holman today rejected the suggestion of the Reynolds family that the case against her be dropped, and demanded trial on charges she murdered her youthful husband, Smith Reynolds.

The Broadway bride of the tobacco heir declared she "cannot consider as vindication anything that does not exonerate me completely."

Through her attorney, Benet Polikoff, the blues singer asserted she would fight for her right to be tried; that she refused to be satisfied with the pigeon holing of an indictment that might be revived at any time to harass her.

Only by trial and acquittal can the stigma of suspicion that she killed her husband be removed, she insisted.

Insists She's Innocent.

Libby was informed by Polikoff via long distance phone of the family request that the prosecutor drop the case. The attorney told her of the plan to nol pros the case. Libby is quoted as replying: "What does that mean?" and the conversation then ran:

POLIKOFF—It means that the state may drop it now, but you might sometime again be indicted.

LIBBY—I don't want that. I won't stand for it. I'm innocent and they know it.

POLIKOFF—Then you want me to demand a trial?

LIBBY—That's exactly what I want and nothing less. I am entitled to complete exoneration.

The Reynolds family is believed to have decided to abandon the prosecution after the discovery of several letters and cablegrams sent by Smith Reynolds to Libby in which he mentioned "suicide."

Brother Issues Statement.

Meanwhile Richard J. Reynolds, brother of Smith, made known his approval of the letter sent to the prosecutor by his uncle, W. N. Reynolds, asking that the case be dropped.

"I do not believe my brother committed suicide. His death might have been accidental," the brother said.

"I believe a lengthy trial with the evidence now available would accomplish nothing toward clearing up the mystery surrounding my brother's death, and would only result in undue hardships for the accused and heartaches for all concerned."

WOMAN TO GET A NEW WARRANT AGAINST CON MAN

Mrs. Anna Sommers, wealthy operator of the Streeterville apartment hotel, 195 East Chestnut street, is expected to appear at the state's attorney's office today to swear out a new warrant for the arrest of a man known as Brown, now under surveillance in the east, who swindled her out of $12,000 in 1929.

The warrant probably will be issued in the Felony court, and forwarded to the proper eastern authorities, police said. Mrs. Sommers has identified a photograph of the swindler.

Her identification of the photograph on Tuesday almost resulted in the "arrest" of Lieut. John McGinnis and Sergt. Thomas Alcock when they took the picture to her apartment. Mrs. Sommers suspected the policemen were con men and summoned district police. Four squadmen responded and quickly satisfied Mrs. Sommers that McGinnis and Alcock were bona fide.

A COLD PASSES THRU 3 STAGES!

It is Twice as Easily Stopped in the First as in the Second or Third Stages!

A cold passes through three stages—the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. Once it gets beyond the Dry Stage it is far more difficult to relieve. Therefore, treat a cold promptly.

The best thing you can take is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, because it does the four things necessary, in the way required. It opens the bowels. Kills the germs and fever in the system. Relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

THE FALL OF TICONDEROGA

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by F. C. Yohn . . . inspired by that horror-filled dawn when the bloodthirsty savages fell on Ethan Allan's gallant "Green Mountain Boys" of Fort Ticonderoga fame. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

NEW YORK CITY MAY GET LOAN FOR PAY ROLL

Bankers Are Expected to Demand More Cuts.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special]—The financial crisis threatening New York City's credit likely will be postponed at least until after the November election, it was learned this afternoon. There was an air of optimism at city hall in marked contrast to the gloomy atmosphere of recent days as word was passed around that funds would be available to meet the next pay roll. Bankers, however, maintained silence, refusing to confirm the report they had agreed to a 35 million dollar loan.

The unofficial information obtained in the financial district was that the bankers, although far from satisfied with the 75 million dollar retrenchments, had decided to step in and save the city from having to skip a pay day for its civil service workers. At the same time, it was said, the bankers delivered a new ultimatum that further loans will not be made until approximately $50,000,000 in additional economies have been written into the budget.

Budget Public Today.

The budget is due to be printed and released to the public tomorrow. Tomorrow also is the last day for restoring items to the budget. The only lawful revision permitted between then and final adoption is downward, consequently the board of estimate will meet tomorrow and the Tammany bloc will fight for a lot of appropriations that have been tentatively trimmed.

The only explanation of the lightening of the still confused credit situation was that the bankers were too deeply involved in holdings of city securities to permit a pay day to be passed.

The budget, as it goes to the printers, will total $556,621,300, according to Col. Paul Loeser, assistant to the budget director. This is a net reduction of $74,744,997 from the final figures for 1932, Mr. Loeser said. Economies of $12,408,850 are still pending.

Bond Payments Delayed.

With the smoke of the last two days cleared away the figures themselves told the story of just how deep the board of estimate had slashed. The "bookkeeping economy" of making fifty year bonds out of four year subway bonds totaled approximately $50,000,000. The budget director had taken about $16,500,000 out of the budget before it reached the board of estimate.

Therefore, the total contribution of the board of estimate to what the bankers call "honest economy" to date is only about $8,000,000.

Meanwhile an "anti-economy campaign" is in the process of organization by the department heads whose appropriations were hard hit at Monday's budget meeting. They hope to see the Tammany bloc restore numerous political jobs which have been "tentatively" lopped off.

McKee Proposals Amended.

The "tentative" resolutions of economy tell the story of the budget makers. Almost all of Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee's reduction proposals that won adoption were burdened with amendments. Those amendments will be used at tomorrow's meeting which is to be attended by heads of departments bent on fighting to save every cent they can—for themselves.

Among the 12 million dollar economies up for consideration tomorrow is the "tentative" proposal to retire all city employés over 70 years old. Tonight it was learned from a board member that the Tammany bloc would "vote solidly not to take away a single job from the old men."

The Tammany bloc, always zealous to protect its patronage, can keep Mr. McKee and his two supporters, the borough presidents of the Bronx and Queens, from cutting anything out of the budget merely by refraining from voting. They demonstrated that last Monday.

Ten Cent Fare Discussed.

A ten cent subway fare, according to information in Wall street would solve New York's major credit troubles. The ten cent fare is the keystone to the entire situation. It would lift millions of dollars from the city's debt structure and permit the city to resume its public improvements which have been at a standstill since early last summer. The bankers, therefore are better satisfied than they have publicly appeared over the fifty year subway bonds plan, as it is the consensus that the long term bonds will bring an increased fare.

There are now outstanding three subway bond issues of 52 million dollars each. One of these, maturing in December, 1933, is in the hands of the public. The other two are in the city's sinking fund.

STEPHEN BETHLEN.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Former Premier Count Stephen Bethlen escaped today from what the police declared was an attempt to assassinate him.

The incident took place in a crowded courtroom. A policeman said he saw Louis Eskudt, private secretary to the former minister of agriculture, approach the count with a dagger in his hand. The policeman seized Eskudt, who denied drawing the knife and said he always carried it for his own protection.

Eskudt once served a prison term for bribery. He frequently had described himself to friends, the police said, as a victim of the Bethlen régime.

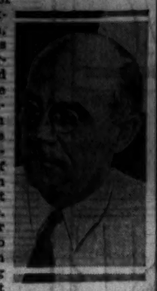
MEETING OF TAX STRIKE LEADERS BARS REPORTER

Mayor Seeks to Stop Their Radio Talks.

While public officials delivered a series of attacks yesterday against the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, which, they charge, is the leading organization behind the tax strike which has withheld 200 million dollars in revenue from local governments, leaders of the organization held a meeting at the Palmer house.



JOHN M. PRATT.

A newspaper man who went to the meeting room found among those present John M. Pratt, paid secretary of the association, and James E. Bistor, one of its officers, in whose name the Bistor suit attacking the 1928 and 1929 tax rolls was brought. The refusal of the United States Supreme court to review this suit, in which the Illinois Supreme court sustained the tax rolls and dismissed the objections made on behalf of Bistor, was hailed on Monday as a death blow to the tax strike.

Reporter Is Turned Away.

Mr. Pratt, recognizing the newspaper man, sent Mr. Bistor to intercept him. Mr. Bistor explained that th meeting was private—for district leaders of the association.

"It looks like your ship was sunk," commented the reporter.

"Well, it does look that way, doesn't it?" replied Mr. Bistor in a tone which sought to convey the impression that he still held hope.

"Well, you brought a lot of taxpayers into this drive of yours. Aren't you going to let them know what it's all about?" he was asked.

"This is a private meeting," replied Mr. Bistor.

"I'd like to stay so we could tell the taxpayers about it," said the newspaper man.

"It's a private meeting," replied Mr. Bistor as he strode away.

Seeks to Bar Radio Talks.

Mayor Cermak led off the barrage against the taxpayers' association by instructing Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman to draft a plea to the federal radio commission, asking that Mr. Pratt and other officials of the association be barred from continuing their radio talks, in which the mayor charged they have advised taxpayers not to pay their taxes, and have solicited them to join the association and pay membership fees for its support.

"The radio commission can bar these people from the radio," said Mayor Cermak. "They are obstructing government through advising people not to pay their taxes, and they accept money when they know that they cannot obtain a cut in taxes."

The county board yesterday ratified the action of its finance committee on Tuesday in instructing Hayden N. Bell, county tax attorney, to seek judgments against owners of property on which $200,000,000 in taxes are delinquent. This action will be based on the United States Supreme court's final disposition of the Bistor case, on the principles of which most of the tax objections are based.

The county board also adopted a resolution requesting Attorney General Carlstrom to go into court and seek an injunction restraining taxpayers' associations and others from seeking to prevent payment of taxes through litigation based on complaints like that turned down by the courts in the Bistor case. A similar resolution was adopted by a teachers' organization. The County Employés' Benefit association passed another similar resolution yesterday.

NORTHWESTERN LIFE SELECTS NEW PRESIDENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Michael J. Cleary of Milwaukee today was elected president of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company to succeed the late William D. Van Dyke, who died June 7 of this year. The election took place at a meeting of trustees at the home office here.

Howard D. Thomas, Milwaukee, manager of the farm loans of the company for many years, was elected a vice president, and Fred W. Sargent, Chicago, president of the North Western railroad, and Ethan A. H. Shepley, St. Louis, Mo., member of the law firm of Nagel, Kirby & Shepley, were elected trustees.

Executive officers of the company at a quarterly meeting this afternoon submitted figures to the trustees showing the financial condition of the company.

Notwithstanding the general business depression, the figures show that the total income of the company for the first nine months of 1932 was $140,211,330, which is but one-tenth of 1 per cent less than it was for the like period of 1931, and $5,000,000 larger than the income for the first nine months of 1930. The excess of income over all disbursements for the first nine months of 1932 amounted to $15,083,162.29. There has been a distinct pickup of business in the last seven weeks.

The gross assets of the company on Sept. 30 of this year exceeded the billion dollar mark by more than a million dollars.

SWANSON FINDS NEW STOCK LOANS MADE BY INSULLS

Refuses to Disclose the Names of Brokers.

Information that additional brokerage houses received loans from or sold their stock to Middle West Utilities company was obtained by State's Attorney Swanson yesterday. The prosecutor refused to name the brokerage firms involved, or the amount of losses to Middle West, but it was disclosed on Tuesday that Samuel and Martin J. Insull sank $8,000,000 of the company's money in A. B. Leach & Co., Pynchon & Co., and Hill, Joiner & Co., all brokerage houses

Subpoenas duces tecum may be obtained to ascertain the purpose of the huge loans to brokerage houses, which were subsequently written off as total losses. Another report that the Insulls speculated through an account maintained by one of their Middle West subordinates at Munds, Winslow, Potter & Co. also is under investigation and a subpoena duces tecum may be obtained for the books of that concern.

Delay Sampsell Case.

Evidence of "loans" obtained by Marshall E. Sampsell from the Central Illinois Public Service company while he was its president was not presented to the grand jury yesterday because the "Insull staff" was occupied with the details of preparing for Samuel Insull's extradition from Greece.

The prosecutors were informed by their colleagues, Charles A. Bellows and Andrew J. Vlachos, who are in Washington, that certain technical errors were made in depositions taken from Andrew B. MacCaughney, partner in Jackson Brothers, Boesel & Co., and Paul Arndt, cashier of Russell, Brewster & Co., brokers. Assistant Prosecutors John O'Hora and Voyle Johnson plan to take these depositions again before Chief Justice John Prystalski today, when depositions also will be taken from Frank Webb, former chairman of the board of the Terminal National bank, and Washington Flexner, head of the Lincoln Printing company.

Seek Presidential Warrant.

These and a deposition to be taken from Oliver E. McCormick, treasurer of Middle West, on Friday will be rushed to Springfield for the governor's certification and then sent to Washington, where application is being made for a presidential warrant for Samuel Insull. Both Samuel and Martin J. Insull are charged in indictments with larceny and embezzlement.

Interest in Samuel Insull's political contributions while he was at the height of his power was revived yesterday with the disclosure in a federal document that such contributions were made as early as 1916, when they totaled $30,000.

The document is a statement of facts, filed by the government in connection with the indictments against Attorneys Daniel Schuyler Jr. and Charles Weinfeld, on charges of violating the income tax and perjury laws. The indictments were dismissed in 1923. The government alleged that the lawyers tendered "accommodation bills" for legal services that were not rendered and that Insull covered up his political contributions in this manner.

DENTIST IS FOUND GUILTY OF FRAUD BY INDIANA JURY

Dr. Samuel A. Bell, a Hammond dentist, was found guilty yesterday by a jury at Valparaiso, Ind., of defrauding North township, which includes Hammond, of $5,000 with false bills for dental services supposedly rendered to the poor. The conviction carries a penitentiary sentence of two to fourteen years and a fine of not more than $1,000.

Attorneys for Dr. Bell said a new trial would be requested, and if this is not granted an appeal will be taken. Judge Grant Crumpacker set Nov. 10 as the date for arguments on the petition for a new trial.

The indictment of Dr. Bell and Erick Lund, a township trustee, was returned in June, 1929. Lund has been convicted, but has appealed his case. It was alleged that they conspired to put in the false bills and to collect from the township treasury.

INSULL HAS HIS TWO PEDIGREED DOGS ON BRITISH FARM KILLED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Two pedigreed dogs which were inseparable companions of Samuel Insull when he lived at Pincents farm, at Theale, near Reading, have been destroyed by Insull's order.

The veterinary from Reading received instructions to go to Pincents farm and sound the horn of his automobile three times on his arrival so that he would be known.

The gardener showed him the dogs, a 3 year old airedale and an 8 year old Sealyham, and asked him to destroy them. The surgeon shot the animals, which were buried in a grave which had already been dug in the garden.

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 19.—With reasonable certainty of a few days of respite, Samuel Insull today leisurely surveyed his ruined utilities empire from a leather sofa in the lobby of his quiet but luxurious hotel and pondered methods of legal strategy to delay his apprehension by American authorities as long as possible.

According to Greek legal experts tonight, there are many loopholes and much skirmishing ground on which the clever galaxy of lawyers—American, British, and Greek—which Insull is expected to assemble here, could defer actual execution of Insull's extradition to Chicago to face charges of embezzlement and larceny, even when the formalities are complete.

Will Stall for Time.

To all evidences now the weapon which Insull will employ is a stalling for time. The old man was highly interested in newspaper reports that state department officials had refused to issue a federal warrant against him on the grounds that the data on the offense which he is charged were not complete enough.

Another point on which Insull's lawyers will fight after the treaty between the United States and Greece is formally exchanged is whether a requisition for Insull can retroactively be demanded.

The impression here is that Insull's advisers think that if he can gain two or three months by stalling in Greece he will be in a better position, if and when returned to Chicago, to wage his fight against the Cook county courts and "his many enemies," as he calls them.

Denies Greek News Reports.

Greek newspapers had a great deal of information about the Insull case today which the old man took pains to deny. It was reported here that an attorney for Insull, named Anderson, is en route from the United States to Greece to consult with Arthur Page and Cristos Ladas, Insull's British and Greek lawyers.

Insull also was reported in the newspaper Ethnos as having said that his report to the Greek police about the danger of his being kidnaped did not refer to Cook county authorities, but to his "enemies." In his statement, however, Insull made it clear that his information was to the effect that "Chicago authorities" were planning to kidnap him.

Insull has now stopped smoking cigarets and has gone back to cigars. He also has given up drinking numerous cups of Turkish coffee, which he found kept him from sleeping. He walked around town this morning in his white linens and stopped at the Bank of Athens to get more money.

Insull said today that he had perfect confidence in the Greek police being able to protect him against kidnapers. Punmakers here are saying that "Insull has insullated himself in Athens."

World Telegraph Parley Honors Samuel Morse

MADRID, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The technical skill of United States inventors was praised today by Angel Galarza, former director of safety, before a plenary session of the international telegraph conference. The session was held in honor of Samuel F. Morse, who laid the groundwork for telegraphy one hundred years ago.

AUCTION HOME FURNISHINGS OF INSULL JUNIOR

Secrecy Shrouds Sale at Art Galleries.

Household furnishings believed to have come from the home of Samuel Insull Jr., 1242 Lake Shore drive, were offered at auction yesterday at Grant's Art galleries, 25 South Wabash avenue.

In yesterday's newspapers an advertisement appeared announcing that the "exquisite furnishings and art objects removed from the homes of Mr. J. Sidney Burnet, formerly at 1500 Lake Shore drive, and a prominent gentleman of Chicago (name withheld by request) would be auctioned at 2 o'clock that afternoon and each day following throughout the week.

Seek to Hide Identity.

Inquiry was made at the art gallery in an effort to determine the name of the "prominent gentleman," but both the manager and the auctioneer said that the information could not be given out.

Later in the day it was reported that Samuel Insull Jr. was the gentleman to whom the advertisement referred. Mr. Insull is now in Paris. His secretary said that he had no knowledge of an auction. Mrs. Insull could not be reached at her home and attendants said that they knew nothing of a disposal of furnishings.

Dudleys to Share House.

It is understood that Raymond C. Dudley and his family, now at the Drake hotel, plan to occupy the entire first floor and part of the second floor of the Insull house on Lake Shore drive, while Mrs. Insull will reside in the remaining part of the second floor.

It is believed that the furnishings which were auctioned came from the portion of the house which was vacated by the Insull family.

At Any Rate, Mr. Barrett Is No Longer a Prosecutor

On Tuesday it was disclosed by President Willis McFeeley of the Oak Park village board that he had fired Prosecuting Attorney Thomas W. Barret Jr. Last night, however, Mr. Barrett presented his resignation to the council in nine typewritten pages, explaining the reasons that impelled him to quit. The council refused to allow the reading of the document, but accepted the resignation. Clarence A. Willard Jr. was appointed prosecuting attorney to fill the vacancy.

Stomach Pain Ends. Can Eat Anything Now

"For four years I suffered with my stomach. About a month ago I began using ACIDINE," says Dorothy L. Usher, Minneapolis, Minn. "Today I am a well woman and am eating everything. ACIDINE has made my life worth living again."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy, starchy foods that cause trouble. ACIDINE stops burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, ends gas, headache, sleeplessness from acidity and helps digest starchy foods and meats.

Don't run chances of dangerous painful troubles from acidity. Get ACIDINE today from your druggist and note quick relief from sourness, pain and belching. You can eat, drink and smoke as you like. Maker guarantees results that satisfy you or money back.

PREPARE TO USE 'GAS' TAX FUNDS IN RELIEF WORK

State Commission Asks Action by County.

Steps were taken yesterday to increase the funds available for unemployment relief through use of Cook county's share of the state gasoline tax. The measures permitting diversion of this money for relief purposes became law with Gov. Emmerson's signature on Tuesday.

During the day the Illinois emergency relief commission requested the county board to supply a statement showing what gasoline tax funds are on hand in the county treasury and the board adopted a resolution promising to furnish the figures.

When it is determined what funds are available the county board has the power to divert them to the bureau of public welfare to be spent through the bureau's relief stations. The money will not pass through the hands of the relief commission.

100 Seek Grocery Orders.

Meanwhile 100 men and women remained in the Irving Park relief station at 4764 Milwaukee avenue after it closed last night announcing that they would stay there until they receive orders for groceries. Twelve members of the station's staff remained with them. There was no violence and no intention of resorting to the police, relief workers said.

The situation arose, it was explained by Mrs. Mitchell Dawson, who is in charge of the station, because the emergency relief commission on Oct. 1 put into effect a 50 per cent reduction in orders for perishable food to be given to families on the relief rolls. The reduction was made, the commission said, so that its funds would cover the administration of relief during the entire month.

Previously needy families had received two grocery orders each month. For October, however, only one order was issued to each family.

Eight hundred applicants for additional orders appeared at the Irving Park station yesterday morning and their spokesmen announced they would remain until they got the orders. By evening their number had dwindled to 100 and when these said they intended to remain for the night Mrs. Dawson decided to permit them to do so.

Mayor Urges Welfare Gifts.

Mayor Cermak in a statement yesterday urged citizens of Chicago to contribute to the Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook County, Inc., which is conducting a campaign for $7,500,000 to help the poor and sick who do not receive unemployment relief. He described the needs for this winter as acute.

Speakers before luncheon meetings of the Austin Lions club and the Highland Park League of Women Voters outlined reasons for adoption of the $20,000,000 state relief bond issue at the election on Nov. 8. They declared that approval of the bond issue by the voters will prevent an increase in the general property tax of the state.

2 "Stoplight Bandits" Confess 18 Robberies

Two youths under arrest at the West Chicago avenue police station confessed last night to eighteen robberies. They are Stanley Bassa, 19 years old, 1950 Holt street, and Casimir Ostapa, 18 years old, 2405 North Hamlin avenue. They preyed on motorists who stopped for traffic lights.

CHURCH OPENS 3 FOOD STATIONS FOR UNEMPLOYED

Dr. Myers Given Aid by Manufacturer.

With the support of Kenneth Smith, president of the Pepsodent company, the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers of the Immanuel Baptist church yesterday announced the opening of three free food supply stations for the unemployed.

The original kitchen in the church at 2320 South Michigan avenue, which Dr. Myers has operated throughout the 38 years of his pastorate, has been reopened and new kitchens have been established at 1149 West Van Buren street and at 1434 North Wells street.

Feeding 7,000 Daily.

"America's first need and duty is to feed the hungry," said Dr. Myers. "So long as a man is hungry, nothing else can matter much. Although we have just started, we are feeding 7,000 men and women daily. As the season advances the demand for food will increase. In order to meet that demand it is going to be necessary to seek voluntary subscriptions in addition to the generous support that is being given by Mr. Smith.

"Our plan is to feed the men in the morning and the women in the afternoon. Our menu provides meat, bread, coffee, and pie or fruit with potatoes, vegetables and soups as they are available. For instance, we require 5,000 loaves of bread a day and 400 pounds of coffee.

Give Aid to Householders.

"Our overhead is the lowest possible. Aside from two supervisors the only wages are those to workers who are now available for 50 cents a day. In addition to the daily meals at the kitchens, we aim to aid as many deserving householders as possible in their homes."

Last year Dr. Myers worked out a plan for bringing surplus crops from the farms for distribution among the needy.

HUNGRY SCHOOL CHILDREN'S FUND RECEIVES $200

Gospel Tabernacle Gives 1,000 Cans of Soup.

More than $200 in voluntary contributions reached the Hungry School Children's fund yesterday to aid in financing free lunches for needy children in the public schools. These came from 42 contributors.

From Rockford, Ill., came a gift from J. H. Buhlinger, a traveling salesman who wrote: "I caught your story in this morning's paper here in Rockford. Enclosed find a check for $2 and apply it to this school you write about."

"Sorry Can't Send $1,000."

"I am sorry I can't send $1,000," wrote the contributor of one of the $1 gifts.

"We wish you continued success in this splendid work," wrote the Jean Ellen Goodman Benefit club, which sent $25.

"I am sending this money in honor of my mother's birthday," wrote another. "I am hoping that this small contribution will provide a few simple, nourishing meals for some poor child."

A gift of 1,000 cans of soup stock was turned over to Miss Frances L. Swain, head of the household arts department of the board of education yesterday by the Chicago Gospel tabernacle for use in the free lunchrooms in the schools.

Can Food from Farms.

"Through THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE I learn of the noble undertaking in behalf of these needy little lives," wrote Paul Rader. "We have been canning all summer at the tabernacle, the food received from farmers, and I take great joy in sending you 1,000 cans of fine soup stock.

"I am delighted that our great newspaper should give itself so heartily to relieving the suffering of the people."

FILE OBJECTIONS TO PARTS OF NEW BUILDING CODE

Several objections to provisions in the new building code governing the construction of school buildings were registered yesterday at a public hearing, the first of a series to be held on the proposed ordinance. The new code was prepared by a citizens' committee and represents five years' work.

Robert Knight, deputy building commissioner, declared that the code definition of a school is misleading and should be clarified. He called attention to a provision under which, he claimed, a twenty story building would have to conform entirely to the school regulations in the code if two floors of the building were used for school purposes. Changes in the section covering semi-fireproof buildings were asked by school board representatives.

These objections will be ironed out in meetings of the citizens' committee and the results will be discussed at the next public hearing, to be held on Wednesday, Nov. 2. The engineering section of the code also will be discussed at that meeting.

TAKE JAIL TERMS TO ESCAPE NEW HOLDUP CHARGES

Robert Canino and Joseph Concorno appeared before Judge Thomas J. Lynch yesterday in the Criminal court on the charge of robbing Dr. Forest R. Moulton, director of concessions for the 1933 World's Fair, of $30 after overpowering him on April 7 in the entrance of an apartment building at 851 Washington boulevard, Oak Park.

The defendants asked jury trials, and their cases were continued. As they stepped out of the courtroom they found several Oak Park detectives in the corridor, waiting to arrest them on additional charges of robbery. They broke away from the detectives and hurried back into the courtroom.

"Give us a break," one of them told Judge Lynch, "and we'll plead guilty."

Dr. Moulton agreed to reduction of the charges against them to petit larceny. They then pleaded guilty and were sentenced to a year each in the Bridewell. The other robbery charges will be waiting for them when they get out, Lieut. Harry Wilson, Oak Park chief of detectives, promised.

FOUR ARE INJURED IN ROGERS PARK AUTO COLLISION

Two men, one of them 70 years old, suffered skull fractures and two others were less seriously injured in an automobile collision in Rogers Park last night in which both cars overturned.

The victims, all of whom were taken to the Rogers Park hospital, were Philip Soby, 70 years old, of 4410 North Hermitage avenue; Francis Minaro, 34, of 5739 Rhodes avenue; Fred Hartman, 48, of 1648 Pratt boulevard, and Emil Muench, 44, of 1604 Darrow avenue. Soby, Minaro, and Hartman were going east in Touhy avenue, with Hartman at the wheel, and Muench was driving south in Hilldale avenue when their cars collided. Soby and Hartman suffered skull fractures.

One death increased the automobile fatalities in Cook county for 1932 to 905. The victim:

James McDermott, 49 years old, of 4133 West End avenue. Fatally injured last night when he was struck by a hit and run automobile driver in Crawford avenue at Division street. He died in St. Anne's hospital.

Second Victim Struck by Saw Flywheel Dies

Forrest Hatfield of Oak Glen died yesterday in Hammond, the second victim of an electric saw accident. Several days ago he and Arnold Konietz, also of Oak Glen, were sawing wood when the flywheel of the machine whirled off, hitting both of them. Konietz died within a few hours.

"Before DATED coffee I refused a second cup... but now I drink 5 cups a day"

SCIENTIFIC AUTHORITY

Present scientific knowledge establishes the facts that the average man or woman has a coffee "tolerance" of fully 5 cups a day and that this amount of coffee for the average person is healthfully stimulating.

"Tolerance" means the ability of one's body to receive and utilize and enjoy without the slightest bad effect. But—that coffee must be fresh! The regular drinking of stale coffee has bad effects on the digestion.

Copyright, 1932, by Standard Brands Inc.

Is Coffee your Weakness? Then here's wonderful news for you.

You needn't deny that craving any longer. For science now says that coffee that is fresh is good for you—even up to 5 cups a day!

It's the rancid oil in stale coffee that is harmful—that is a frequent cause of headaches, indigestion, sleeplessness and "nerves."

The average man or woman has a "coffee tolerance" of 5 cups daily—drinks 5 cups a day with benefit to health—so long as it is fresh.

That is why Chase & Sanborn give you DATED coffee . . . An expiration date on every pound. Rushed straight from the roasting ovens by swift motor trucks . . . No can remains on your grocer's shelf after its date has expired.

No wonder Chase & Sanborn's wins the coffee lovers! . . . Dating brings it to you at the very peak of its flavor. Dating makes it good for you.

Now you can linger delightfully over your coffee, indulging in that tempting second cup. If it is Chase & Sanborn's DATED Coffee, it's good for you!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AFTER THE BISTOR DECISION.

The refusal of the United States Supreme court to review the decision of the Illinois Supreme court in the Bistor case will put an end to tax striking in this community if the victory is pressed home.

In justice to those who have paid their taxes the delinquents must be obliged to pay if they can. Taxpayers who have contributed to the cost of schooling for their children and for police and fire protection have been receiving less than they paid for because others did not carry their share of the cost. That injustice cannot be remedied too quickly.

If the delinquent properties are certified for sale by the County court as promptly as possible there is little doubt that some owners who can pay will do so rather than see their titles impaired. Additional revenue will come from owners of mortgages who could not step in to protect their investments by paying the taxes as long as the assessments were under protest in the courts but are permitted to do so once the court proceedings are concluded.

How much money will come in from these two sources cannot be accurately estimated. No doubt the tendency of some public officials will be to exaggerate the amounts which will now be paid. The fact is, as any one familiar with real estate conditions in Chicago will testify, there are many properties which cannot possibly meet the tax bills which they must bear as long as spending by the local governments is continued at anything like the pace of recent years. The only immediately available remedy for the tax delinquency of such properties must be a reduction in spending which will permit a general reduction in taxation.

THE HIGHER CRUELTY.

In the heart of the downtown area of Chicago a store has been taken over by anti-vivisectionists as a propaganda center. It is their purpose to have laws enacted which will make it extremely difficult if not impossible to obtain animals for experimental and instructional purposes in the medical schools of the state. A lurid window display suggests that many of the animals used in the schools are pets which have been snatched from their child owners by ruthless monsters in operating room gowns.

If that were true, which it is not, and if the animals were subjected to great suffering, which they are not, the use of animals in laboratories would still be justified as few things in this world can be justified. Even those in whose minds the life of a dog is more precious than the life of a human being would discover, if they but examined the record, that animal experimentation has served to conquer the plagues which afflict the lower animals as it has also served to conquer the plagues which afflict mankind.

There is a grim irony in the location which these sentimentalists have chosen as their headquarters. They have set up shop in the heart of a great city. They do not seem to sense, even vaguely, the plain fact that there could be no urban life as we know it if animal experimentation had not been practiced in the past. Only through animal experimentation has it been possible to conquer the great plagues which a few centuries ago prevented the existence of great cities.

Without animal experimentation we would walk in fear of plague, of typhus, of typhoid, of malaria, and yellow fever. Diphtheria would still take its toll of child lives. Surgery would be primitive and anesthesia unduly risky. Much of our knowledge of physiology and of life processes, upon which the progress of medicine in the future depends, would be lost to us unless, indeed, men instead of guinea pigs and dogs were used in the laboratories.

The question arises whether any of the good people who are financing this promotion of ignorance and suffering ever eats a beefsteak. If so, it would be interesting to know how they justify the slaughter of a steer that they may eat its flesh while opposing the painless slaughter of a few dogs. The death of the steer will keep a few people alive for a few days. The death of the dogs may keep hundreds of thousands of people alive for fifty years.

DON'T VOTE FOR THIS HAAS.

The Supreme court has directed the election commissioners to place the name of Joseph F. Haas on the judicial ticket for November 8. Every voter should remember NOT to put a cross opposite that name.

The man who now goes by the name of Joseph F. Haas was known as Joseph F. Mall all his life until it occurred to him that the late Joseph F. Haas was one of the most popular men and greatest vote getters in local politics. And Joseph F. Haas is dead. So Mall adopted this name by legal process obviously in the expectation that when he ran for office in a primary or election there would be many voters who would be deceived into voting for him, thinking Haas was alive and running for office.

The Chicago Bar association has instituted proceedings to disbar Mall, alias Haas. We cannot doubt the effort will be successful. A lawyer who has no respect for his proper name and adopts another in order to deceive voters or to borrow the reputation earned by another man is lacking in the ethics which should be demanded of all practitioners of the law.

But even more emphatically Mall, the bogus Haas, has proved his unfitness for judicial office. What sort of justice will be dispensed by a judge who has resorted to such a trick to get votes not intended for him? What cause is safe in such hands? Every voter, in spite of the long ticket and the important offices to be voted for, should remember the name of Joseph F. Haas in the list of Republican candidates for Municipal judge and leave the square opposite that name blank.

WHEN THE GOVERNMENT GOES INTO BUSINESS.

The relations of the government to Seatrain Lines, Inc., furnishes an instructive chapter in political science and economics.

The corporation operates a number of ocean-going freight car ferries. It obtained a loan from the federal treasury of $2,360,000 to construct two ships which were to be used in the New York-Havana trade. The loan was a particularly favorable one. The interest rates are low and the borrowing represents, so it has been said, 75 per cent of the whole cost of the ships.

The theory on which these loans have been made by the government is that they serve to stimulate the American shipbuilding industry and to advance American foreign trade. Accordingly Seatrains obtained a loan to build ships engaged in foreign service but with the saving provision that if foreign business was insufficient application might be made for using the vessels in coastwise trade.

And that is what happened. The ships had scarcely been launched when the application for permission to operate them in domestic business was filed and that permission has been granted. Accordingly the ships now take on loaded freight cars at New York and discharge them on tracks at New Orleans for movement to the southwest. The rates charged are the rates prescribed for rail-ocean-and-rail or ocean-and-rail traffic, but without the added cost and delay of breaking bulk and reloading into freight cars.

Merchants and manufacturers in the central states were already at a disadvantage in the southwestern markets in competition with eastern rivals who could avail themselves of coastwise ships. Under the new arrangement the rates on certain commodities from, say, Hartford, Conn., to Dallas, Tex., will be materially lower than from Chicago to Dallas, although the distance from Chicago is less by something like a thousand miles, and even the rail haul alone under the Seatrains arrangement is not much shorter.

Obviously if these ships can be built by private capital, under fairly competitive conditions, and can give service at lower prices, nothing in the world ought to prevent this saving from being made, even though it be at the expense of another section of the country. But, equally obviously, nothing of the sort has happened. The government has taken the money of taxpayers in the central states to create a competition for them.

Editorial of the Day

[Leningrad Krasnaija Gazette.]

Despite all slanderers, America remains the most highly developed country technically in the world. Let us regard the election technique. What tremendous progress! If in industrial technique American capitalism has begun to sound a retreat and to look upon the machine as an enemy, this is not true of merican politicians. Formerly candidates for smaller offices tried to win the sympathies of voters and personally visited farming districts, driving a small cart. They spoke with the farmers, praised the housewives, and kissed the babies. Presidential candidates visited only the larger cities and addressed the village population from the back platforms of their trains.

Today campaign speeches are broadcast over the radio, published in newspapers, or delivered in the talkies. New candidates are advertised like soap or cigarets. Formerly an audience listened an hour or more to the speech of the candidate; today an address taking more than fifteen minutes is considered unsatisfactory. As regards bribing voters, here the technical progress has been great. Formerly thousands were spent. Today millions are necessary. Today the election will be decided by the best technical machine, for there are no principal differences between the two candidates.

The difference between the industrial north and the "slave trading south" was liquidated long ago through the industrialization of the south. The question of prohibition has also lost its harshness after Candidate Hoover devised a formula leaving each state to decide this question for itself.

But concerning repressions against the revolutionary movement and attacks on the proletariat there are no disagreements. Only the questions of foreign policy and foreign trade policies remain. In these trade questions all depends upon the connections which the respective candidates have with certain capitalistic groups. Both the Democrats and the Republicans foster the interest of American imperialism. Democratic Candidate Roosevelt accuses Republican Candidate Hoover of destroying American foreign trade through the introduction of a high tariff. He also accuses the Republicans of countenancing speculation permitting the sale of foreign loans in America, the result of which is that the savings of Americans are endangered.

Roosevelt's tactics are clear. Trade decreases, the crisis rages, the interest on foreign loans is not paid. The voters are dissatisfied. He is attempting to direct this dissatisfaction against his rival. It is characteristic that while Roosevelt attacks the policies of the Republicans still he gives no positive program of his own except a few vague promises to care for the interests of the wide masses.

Hoover answers with a statement about a new prosperity. In a conference with capitalists and industrialists he said that the harshest period of the financial crisis is past; that gold is returning to America; confidence has been restored; in short, paradise has again returned to America. It is true that this does not correspond to reality. With Hoover's speech the press publishes a report telling of the bankruptcy of the largest American traction service (Interborough). But Hoover is accustomed to this. It is necessary to support that speculative boom chosen by Hoover for election propaganda and for which so much government money was expended. And here technique is also playing a large role.

The victory of either Hoover or Roosevelt will not decide the fate of the American nation. Neither the unemployed nor the workers will profit by a change of Presidents.

The fight for the presidential chair is a fight for state patronage. Only the American communist party is using the electoral campaign to mobilize the workers who will decide their own fate by destroying the constitution and its supporters, the Hoovers and the Roosevelts.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. — W. M. S.

AND BESIDES THE SPLENDID NOBLENESS of spirit exhibited in sticking in the last ditch and dying in a hopeless cause there is another great comfort in following our peerless leader, Norman Thomas. The Republicans are insisting on the Democrats giving them odds of three to one in betting on the election, and lots of them are holding off waiting for odds of four to one. But with us, ah, we bet two bits on Norman Thomas yesterday against five dollars. And we can do better than that. They'll bet us ten dollars against a dime that Norman Thomas won't win. Even more, they add insult to injury and say they'll bet us ten dollars or twenty dollars against a sack of peanuts, a sour apple, or a suspender button. Anyhow, we Norman Thomassers can get all the bets we want, and when it comes to odds we can write our own ticket. Thereby again proving there is a bright and silver lining to every cloud.

ODE TO MANKIND.

No matter what your distant origin,
Whether begot of Adam's primal sin,
Who, mid the poppy scent of Eden's bowers,
Loved fruit of good and evil more than flowers;
Or bred in tropic jungles, whence some ape,
Ambitious, made his epochal escape—
If, cursed and scourged, from Paradise you fled,
Or from the wilderness by yearnings led—
In either case you showed uncommon wit,
And, fallen or risen, made the best of it.

Out of chaotic mists, out of the slime,
Out of the ruthless glacier's path to climb,
A cell, a simian, a troglodyte;
Or out of dust, created overnight
In God's own image, but to err and fall,
And yet survive and triumph over all—
Let clashing creeds debate upon the plan,
I sing your praises, O primeval Man,
Perhaps a brother to the ape, the clod,
But kinsman, too, of angels and of God.

I sing your praises, masterful Mankind,
That from your adversities acquired a Mind,
That, ere your exile, from the Garden stole
A dream immortal that became a Soul;
Whose Body, Mind and Soul, a Trinity,
Seek, and will seek, that last forbidden Tree
Of Knowledge, in which quest you delve and fly,
View the invisible with searching eye,
And weigh and analyze and measure, thus,
The atom and its sister, Arcturus.

And yet you falter when less bountiful
The harvest, and a temporary lull
Of fortune falls; and atavistic fear,
And ancient doubts and questionings appear,
Remembering not disasters that befell,
Yet vanquished not, the sons of Israel,
Remembering not how flood and pestilence
Were met of old as acts of Providence,
In meekness and submission, yet with faith,
Bold and contemptuous, in the face of death.

Where are the prophets of those elder days
Who warned you of your erring, evil ways,
Yet promised to the penitent reward—
Gray-bearded sages, servants of the Lord?
Perhaps the selfsame rabble banished them
That crucified the Man of Bethlehem.
Perhaps you see not, with your piercing eye,
Important things beneath the enticing sky,
And, harking to the spheres, hear not at all
The inner voice that is so still and small.

By Armageddon and by Calvary
Leads the long pathway of your destiny,
Scarred but not conquered by the flaming sword,
And not condemned, but chastened by the Word,
You shall bow down your head in humbleness,
Sometimes, to expiate and to confess;
And you shall lift your head in pride and say,
"Greater achievements wait another day:
The earth is mine and all the fruits thereof,
Subdued by might, and made secure by love."

AND, SAY THE SCIENTISTS, it would take 2,000,000,000 of earths the size of the one on which we live to form a continuous spherical shell, if placed side by side, big enough to envelop the sun at the same distance the earth is from old Sol. Which is a thought that ought to make even the father of twins or the pompous owner of a new, shiny roadster feel just a little bit small.

WE WERE AMAZED, SURPRISED, STARTLED, AND DUMFOUNDED when we read the course of study arranged for the new brewing academy in Chicago. As we read the list we gasped with incredulous amazement. According to the brewing academy beer is made from barley, malt, hops, yeast, and water. It is simply astounding, for the temperance and prohibition spellbinders to whom we listen open mouthed tell us that beer was made of widows' and orphans' tears, the cries of little children, the hard earned money of the poor, the mortgage on the old homestead, and the sobs of poor old mothers. And the brewing academy says beer is made of barley, malt, hops, yeast, and water. Well, somebody's trying to fool us, that's what!

Still, the campaign has several weeks to go. R. H. L.

DIETS FOR PELLAGRA.

So far as concerns prevention of pellagra, the year 1932 has reached its closed season. The disease starts making its appearance in the spring and not many new cases develop after July. The cases that begin in the late spring and early summer are the result of prolonged use of an improper diet for six to ten months preceding the outbreak. Therefore what was done and particularly what was eaten during the winter of 1931-'32 is the cause of the pellagra that developed this summer. It is now in order to lay plans for a winter diet that will prevent pellagra during the next summer.

Drs. Wheeler and Sebrell tell us that if any one of the following foods, or group of foods, makes up a fair proportion of the diet, pellagra will be prevented: Yeast, the germ of wheat, cereals, and breads made by grinding whole grains and leaving all of the germ in the meal of flour; fresh beef, canned corned beef, liver, canned salmon, canned haddock, tomatoes, turnip greens, canned English peas, milk, buttermilk, evaporated milk and dried milk. [The preventive principle is in the milk rather than in the fat. Therefore for this purpose skim milk and curd is about as serviceable as whole milk, and more serviceable than butter and cream.]

The following foods are good pellagra preventives, but are not to be ranked with those given above: Dried beans and peas, eggs, canned spinach, green cabbage, canned string beans.

Other foods are being tested. The indications are that collards are preventive of pellagra. Mustard greens, turnips, other meats, and sweets are being tested.

The following foods have been proved to have little or no power to prevent pellagra: Cornmeal, wheat flour, rye flour, oatmeal, molasses, cane sirup, sweet potatoes, mature onions, carrots, rutabagas, salt pork, lard, cottonseed oil, butter, and gelatin.

If research should prove that the principle in grain is found only in the germ, and that the germ of all grains contain it, the simplest way out is to go back to breaking up the grain with a stone bowl and cooking it while fresh, as the Indians, Mexicans, and others still do; or by grinding it in a crude mill such as a heavy coffee mill.

One wonders why our teachers of cooking have not led the people back to the old methods of growing yeast in the home, and taught them new methods of cooking yeast and making appealing foods rich in it.

If the final report on collards is to the effect that eating this vegetable would prevent pellagra, it would be easy to persuade the people to plant a supply sufficient to carry them through the winter. Turnip greens and perhaps mustard greens will live in the open until early winter.

The medicinal cures for developed pellagra are of no value. One suggested in Egypt, sodium thiosulphite, is still on trial in that country. But the diet cures give good results in all but the late cases.

CRAMPS IN THE LEG.

Mrs. W. E. R. writes: Kindly explain the cause and cure of leg cramps. My son is strong and healthy, has played tennis all his life, is 26 years old, and has now become a victim of cramps if the match is a hard one. Is there anything in the diet line that would be beneficial?

REPLY.

There are many causes for leg cramps. The most important by far is Buerger's disease. Another is overexposure to heat for several hours, causing excessive loss of salt in sweat. Another is chilling. The use of tobacco may be a contributing cause. Why not have your son stop using tobacco? Before a hard tennis game and during its continuation let him drink a weak, salt solution of ordinary drinking water.

RICKETS OR SCURVY POSSIBLE.

A. J. K. writes: My son, aged 6, perspires excessively at night only. His head becomes soaking wet and his pillowcase, where his head rests, is also entirely damp. Can this be cured and what is causing this perspiration?

REPLY.

Rickets should be investigated; also scurvy. The probability is that he needs to change his diet and do something, the need for which will be shown by the investigation. Cure can be expected.

TOOTH REMOVAL MAY AID.

A. H. B., M. D., writes: My father became subject to very severe seizures of epilepsy in his forties. In his sixties they began to diminish in frequency and severity until they ceased at about age 75. He died at age 85. I believe that in epilepsy coming on in middle life pyorrhea holds away.

REPLY.

LOST AND FOUND.

Piano, Ill., Oct. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I had a valuable Irish setter hunting dog that strayed away about six months ago. After searching the country for several miles around I gave the dog up for lost. Now I find a man ten miles distant from my home has the dog, and he and his family have become greatly attached to the dog. He claims he picked up the dog last spring in a starved and dying condition and spent a considerable sum to get the dog in condition again. He says he will not give up the dog under any circumstances. 1. Have I lost my title to ownership of the dog? 2. Can I recover him? 3. Would I have to pay back money he spent on the dog? J. C. K.

1. No.
2. Yes.
3. Technically, no, but we would advise you to make a reasonable offer.

SHARING ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My aunt and uncle were living in California and made wills to each other stating that in case of the death of one the property would revert to the one surviving. My aunt died and my uncle was accidentally killed about one month after her death. A near relative of the aunt took charge and lived in the home for about two years. My father, who is a brother of this uncle, died in 1931, leaving myself and brother as heirs, as I see it. I have written to this relative, but get evasive replies, and the attorney who was named administrator does not answer at all. The aunt and uncle had no children. 1. How can I find out the condition of the estate? I also wrote the Probate judge, who replied that the estate was about to be probated and referred me to the administrator, who does not reply. 2. Can this relative come in for anything under the circumstances, being my father's brother was the last to die? 3. Can I demand an itemized accounting of the estate? 4. From whom? R. W. H.

1. Employ an attorney to forward the matter for investigation.
2. Not on the facts as you state them.
3. No. The executor or administrator accounts to the court and you can secure a copy by paying the clerk of the court, but there is no obligation to account to you.
4. See No. 3.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 20, 1916.

CHICAGO. — President Wilson last night in the stockyards pavilion brought to a close a strenuous day of campaigning in Chicago with an appeal to naturalized citizens of the United States to become thoroughly American in thought, word, and deed. He demanded that they first of all learn the language of this country, for without it, he declared, they could not fully appreciate what the United States stands for. It was a tremendous outpouring of men and women. About 15,000 crowded into the pavilion and a crowd of 10,000 was estimated to be on the outside fighting the police for admission.

LONDON.—Lloyd's announces that the British steamer Alaunia has been sunk and that its captain and 163 members of the crew have been landed. All the 243 passengers had been landed previously. While no official announcement has been made regarding the nature of the accident to the Alaunia, it is unofficially reported that it struck a mine in the English channel. The Alaunia carried about 11,000 tons of merchandise, mostly war supplies, but no munitions.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Ranking Teutonic diplomats, in a position to be familiar with the movements of the German merchant submarine Bremen, today conceded the loss of the U-boat, which is now a month overdue. The fate of the Bremen is unknown to them. All they know is that it set out for America from Bremerhaven and that it should have arrived at an American port soon after the middle of last month.

LONDON. — Gradually the French are drawing their front closer to the town of Peronne, on the eastern bank of the Somme river in France. After the advance of Oct. 18, along a mile front between Biaches and La Maisonnette, on the west side of the river, an attack launched yesterday was rewarded with further gains, which virtually brings the French to the bank of the stream and less than a mile from the city.

BERLIN.—Austrian troops have reconquered positions north of the summit of Monte Pasubio, in the Trentino, and have repulsed Italian attacks, says the official statement from Austro-Hungarian general headquarters. Strong hostile detachments which concentrated before the Rolte ridge were held back by the Austrian fire. On the rest of the front there were artillery duels at several places.

BERLIN.—German troops took the offensive in Volhynia and captured Russian trenches on the west bank of the Stokhod, it was announced officially. Russian attacks near Bubnow were repulsed with heavy losses.

BERLIN.—Field Marshal Alexander H. R. von Kluck, who commanded the right wing of the German army in its sweep toward Paris in the fall of 1914, has been placed on the retired list at his own request. He had never returned to the front since he was wounded by shrapnel fire in March, 1915, while inspecting advanced positions. The field marshal was 70 years old last May.

CONVERTED TO HOOVER.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Here is one convert to the Hoover camp. Normally I am a Republican. Six months ago I decided to go Democratic should an outstanding and capable nomination be made for the presidency. Five months ago I saw myself turning socialistic and making a "protest" vote for Norman Thomas. Today I am a firm believer in Hoover. His two speeches did it.

Somehow through the ether he put across his personality, his sincerity, his statesmanship. Somehow I caught a new picture of our maligned, abused President; gradually found myself less quick to blame our economic sorrows upon him; swifter to resent the imprecations and maledictions of others upon him.

Why? First of all, he has wiped the fog and grime of my ignorance as to the real causes for the depression from my mind. Secondly, he has proved to me that an President he has done everything in human power—ungifted as it is with second sight or prophetic vision—for the welfare of the country. The shakiness in his voice as he spoke of the tragedies of his people in the Des Moines speech was eloquent testimony of his sympathy. Third, he has offered concrete evidence that he can and will lead us to victory in the constructive measures already functioning through his instrumentality.

Out of four adult working members in our family only one has a job—and that, part time. The future is blacker for us, as a family, in an economic sense, than it has ever been. I shall vote for Hoover because I believe that he can and will make it bright again.

ANNA E. BERSON.

GOOD RIDDANCE.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Today's news item indicated that Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie institute, who four years ago campaigned for Hoover, is now supporting Roosevelt because of his opposition to national prohibition. He says that for twelve years he has been fighting for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Why, then, in the name of decency did he not in 1928 support Alfred E. Smith, whom every one recognizes as the greatest champion for the correction of this great mistake and who more than any one else has crystallized the present sentiment against it? The Republican party can thank God for the riddance of such men.

FRED ABRAHAMSEN.

SOCIETY JOBS.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Speaking editorially of Gov. Roosevelt this morning, you say that he was once assistant secretary of the navy, and you refer to that office as "one of the society jobs of Washington." Possibly you do not recall that Theodore Roosevelt, the famous "T. R." was assistant secretary of the navy under McKinley. Also, as you must know, Theodore Roosevelt Jr. was assistant secretary of the navy under Harding and got nicely tangled up in the Harding scandals, and as a result was defeated by Al Smith for the governorship of New York. No wonder the Republican board of strategy took alarm and decided not to bring young Teddy back from Manila to besmirch his cousin. If he were alive today the elder Theodore Roosevelt would not be supporting Hoover, for substantially the same reasons that he refused to support Taft when the latter was nominated for reelection.

A. F. DURAND.

A THRILLING SLOGAN.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Stop that Republican rally with this double play: Horner to Roosevelt to Beer. SHELBY L. MASON.

GOV. ROOSEVELT ON "AXES."

Elkhart, Ill., Oct. 8.—Gov. Roosevelt has pledged himself, in the event he is elected, and in so far as he is able, to see that the taxpayers of this country get a dollar's worth for every dollar they pay to the government in taxes. The promise leaves at least one taxpayer utterly cold. It arouses no glow of grateful response in this taxpayer's breast.

Is it possible Gov. Roosevelt does not realize that what the taxpayers of this country want is the dollar, not the dollar's worth? That they are tired of having their money spent for them? That they prefer to do a little spending themselves? It is safe to predict that any candidate elected in November who fails to grasp this simple fact, which should be fairly obvious by now, will be made to understand it at the end of his term of office, whether he be elected for two or four or six years.

LOUISE LAWRENCE.

NOT A STEAMSHIP.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—In a recent news item with a Peoria date line you stated that the "Steamer Gouverneur, powerful federal towboat, is docked at the U. S. engineer suboffice here awaiting orders to proceed on the up-river trip."

The story following gave a very interesting description of the boat, which was referred to in each case as a "steamer," although the writer stated very clearly that she was "powered with a 600 horse power Diesel engine." This towboat should be referred to as a motor ship, as this is the official designation of a large boat powered with a Diesel engine.

Your mistake is perhaps excusable as there are very few motor ships in this vicinity. It may be of interest to you to know the "giant towboat" Herbert Hoover is, through a mistake, officially registered as a steamship. The registration plate bears the name "S. S. Herbert Hoover" instead of "M. S. Herbert Hoover" as it should be.

B. R. HUNTER.

BUT NEWSPRINT IS NOT MADE FROM POPLAR WOOD.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The "Editorial of the Day" in today's TRIBUNE is highly constructive and practical. I have rapidly growing poplar trees and a couple of years ago I did my best to try to interest a dozen of the large publishers and users of print paper in planting such trees in the central west or corn belt on lands not suitable for other purposes. One of these was THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Not one of them was in the least interested. They did not even reply to my letters.

I have estimated that in the corn belt there is enough land suitable especially for the growing of poplars for wood pulp sufficient to total as many acres or square miles as the entire state of Illinois, and I have not yet been called on that estimate. How much better to have it producing wood pulp instead of nothing as at present. H. ROY MOSNAT.

NO CUSHION.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 14.—We are merely duplicating the conditions which destroyed ancient Rome. I quote from chapter 2 of Finlay's "Greece Under the Romans:"

"Constantine revised the census of all the taxes and carried their amount as high as he possibly could. Every measure was adopted to transfer the whole circulating medium of the empire annually into the coffers of the state. No economy or industry could enable his subjects to accumulate wealth, while any accident, a fire, an inundation, an earthquake, or a hostile incursion of the barbarians might leave a whole province incapable of paying its taxes, and plunge it in hopeless debt and ruin." COMPTON TURNS MORE LIGHT ON THE COSMIC RAY

Tells of His Expedition to Study Phenomenon.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, professor of physics at the University of Chicago, last night told what he had learned about the cosmic ray on a recently completed expedition to tropical and arctic regions, during which he covered approximately 50,000 miles. Speaking before an audience in Mandel hall at the university, he cast doubt upon two theories which hitherto have enjoyed considerable credence in scientific circles.

After pointing out that the origin and nature of the cosmic ray still is unknown Dr. Compton told how he had used the earth as a gigantic magnet and mountain peaks as his laboratories to observe the effects wrought by this mysterious phenomenon. He said his findings support the theory that the cosmic ray bears a charge of electricity, but do not yet establish it as a fact.

Two Theories Challenged.

This statement has an important bearing upon two theories which have been advanced by celebrated scientists. One of these theories is that the cosmic ray is produced in the building up of atoms, which would indicate that the universe is perpetually renewing itself. The other theory advances the opposite belief—that the cosmic ray is produced in the destruction of atoms and that the universe is running down.

Both of these are based on another theory—namely: that the cosmic ray is electrically neutral. If this is proved to be untrue scientists agree that neither of the first two theories is tenable. And Dr. Compton has performed experiments which tend to show that the cosmic ray is not neutral, but charged.

He Studies the Effects.

"I am frequently asked, 'What is a cosmic ray?'" Dr. Compton said last night as he began his lecture. "I always give the same answer—'I don't know.' I am also asked, 'Where do cosmic rays come from?' and again I answer, 'I don't know.'

"Then what is there to talk about tonight, you may wonder. Well, there is plenty. We can talk about the effects of the rays. For it is by observation of their effects that we get a knowledge of their nature."

He told how the physicists of many years ago had observed the effects of cosmic rays but had believed them to be produced by radioactive substances in the earth. Chief among these effects was the turning of air into a conductor of electricity. It was thought that by sending instruments to a considerable altitude it would be possible to get beyond the reach of these radioactive emanations.

Early Experiments Told.

Accordingly an electroscope was carried to the top of the Eiffel tower and it was found that the rays were less noticeable. When instruments were sent to greater altitudes in balloons, however, the rays became more intense.

In the light of new knowledge these results are explained as follows, Dr. Compton said: When an instrument is elevated a few hundred feet off the ground, the cushion of air absorbs the rays from radioactive elements in the earth and thus reduces the reactions of an electroscope. But when the instrument is carried still higher it gets into a region where cosmic rays are more intense.

Thus, Dr. Compton said, the old school physicists were partly right. Some rays do come from the earth, but not all. Those which they had left out of their consideration were the cosmic rays.

Cosmic Ray Established.

Experiments with chambers inclosed in lead, through which the rays from radioactive substances could not pass, established the existence of the most penetrating radiation known—and it was called the cosmic ray. Most scientists believe that this ray comes not from the earth, but from somewhere in the atmosphere, from the sun, or from interstellar space. Many consider the latter theory most tenable.

When the two theories about the tearing down and building up of the universe were advanced it became essential, Dr. Compton said, to learn whether the cosmic ray was electrically charged or electrically neutral. The relationship between magnetism and electricity is such that it was considered possible to determine this by experiments with magnets. The best magnet for this purpose is an enormous one—the earth itself.

Goes to Several Lands.

Accordingly, Dr. Compton set out last March from Los Angeles and made observations in Hawaii, the Fiji Islands, New Zealand, Australia, Panama, Peru, Mexico, and the arctic regions. Data also were obtained by cooperating expeditions in the orient.

This was the principle on which he conducted his investigation: Lines of magnetic force are constantly passing around the earth between the north and south magnetic poles. These lines of force deflect the needle of a compass and all substances electrically charged, but they do not affect substances which are electrically neutral. Dr. Compton found that the cosmic rays were much denser in the arctic circle and at the southern tip of New Zealand than they were near the equator. He believes that this indicates that cosmic rays are deflected toward the magnetic poles of the earth and therefore are electrically charged.

LAURA STRAUB AND TOM POWERS.

Opens Next Week

Tom Powers and Laura Straub, stars of the stage play, "Another Language," now at the Harris theater, will make a personal appearance at the third session of the Chicago Tribune School of Cookery next Thursday afternoon during the entertainment program preceding the home economic lectures by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood.

The cookery school opens Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Trianon ballroom, 6201 Cottage Grove avenue, and will continue four afternoons on the south side, the school moving to the west and north sides of the city during the following two weeks. Sponsored by the school, Marye Dahnke, director of the home economics department of the Kraft Phoenix Cheese company, will speak from W-G-N this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock on the June Baker program. Her subject will be "Cheese for Autumn Menus."

TESTIFY PASTOR IN POISON CASE COURTED GIRL

Oklahoma Prosecutor Rests Case.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The state's case against the Rev. S. Althea Berrie, largely a narrative of the romance of a married preacher which, prosecutors asserted, ended in the murder of his wife, was virtually completed today.

Before the state rested, with the reservation that it might call a handwriting expert later, the jury had heard a bedside visitor declare she saw the 52 year old preacher slip the wedding ring from the hand of his dying wife last March and had listened to medical testimony that there was "positive" evidence of poison in her body.

May Not Take Stand.

Berrie, who in a recess today declared: "It's looking good, don't you think?" may not take the stand, attorneys indicated. It also was understood the 19 year old Sunday school teacher who became his bride soon after the first Mrs. Berrie died would not testify.

"I saw him take his wife's wedding ring off," testified Mrs. M. R. Spencer, who said she was visiting the dying woman at the time.

Taylor Rogers, state chemist, and Dr. William H. Bailey of Oklahoma City, testified to poison in Mrs. Berrie's body.

Sentimental notes and verses which Berrie allegedly penned to 19 year old Ida Bess Bright before the first Mrs. Berrie died were read to the jury, and women connected with a Muskogee rooming house declared they had known the preacher as a roomer named "Stephens."

Police Chief Witness.

John Wolsey, who as chief of police questioned the pastor and his bride in the first stages of the murder investigation, declared: "He said he met her at the rooming house from about Christmas time up until the first Mrs. Berrie's death. He told me he told Ida Bess he was going to get a divorce."

Several bankers testified the handwriting on a "suicide note" which the preacher said he found in a family Bible was not, in their opinion, that of Mrs. Berrie. A Kansas handwriting expert is on his way here.

INVENTOR GETS 1 TO 20 YEARS FOR ROBBERY

Louis Longo, 36 years old, who pleaded guilty to robbing two Chicago policemen and a hotel detective, was sentenced yesterday to serve 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. Judge Prystalski issued a stay of mittimus until Oct. 31 so that Longo might obtain a patent on a new type automobile polish he told the court he invented.

"I know I did wrong in robbing the policemen," Longo told the judge. "I'd appreciate it if you would allow me to remain in the county jail for a couple of weeks so that I can obtain a patent for my polish."

Longo's victims were Policemen Roy Kent and Guy Willoughby and Frank A. Brasselle, a house officer of the Hotel Sherman. All went to Longo's flat at 948 Edgecomb place Oct. 25, 1931, to arrest him as a suspect in a robbery at the Hotel Sherman. The policemen took two revolvers from him, but Longo produced a third weapon and disarmed the officers. He also took $3 from Willoughby.

SAVANT'S STORY OF KORAN WINS HISTORY LAWSUIT

Hold Lawyer Doesn't Have to Pay for Books.

Prof. Martin Sprengling of the oriental institute at the University of Chicago, head of the Semitic languages and literature department, gave a lecture on the Koran, a lineage and life history of Mohammed, its author, and won a lawsuit yesterday before Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey.

The professor appeared in court as a witness for Robert E. Barclay, an attorney, who was the defendant in a suit brought by the Standard Historical Society of the World, a Cincinnati concern. The society, publisher of "A Standard History of the World," written by Israel Smith Cairo, who is advertised as a member of the American Historical society, charged that Barclay had refused to pay for a $79 set of the history in ten volumes after signing a contract for its purchase.

Defends His Action.

Barclay defended his action charging that the history was inaccurate and out of date, and alleging that its author was not a member of the historical society. On Monday he summoned as his witness Sufi M. R. Bengalee, a Moslem missionary, who asserted that some of the statements attributed to the Koran and published in the history had been taken from the Arabian Nights.

"The Arabian Nights is a series of folk tales compiled from the Arabic by a Frenchman named Galland from 1704 to 1712. Before that time occidental historians had no access to them," Barclay explained to the judge. "While the Koran had been the Bible of all Islam for more than 1,000 years before that."

Yesterday Prof. Sprengling denied assertions of Attorney Walter Moss, counsel for the publishing concern, who said that all history is open to argument and that one historian's version is as good as another's."

Writer of the Koran.

"The Standard history says that Mohammed was the writer of the Koran, while scientific research has disclosed that the book could not possibly have been committed to its present form in the Arabic until at least 20 years after Mohammed's death," the professor said from the witness stand.

"Mohammed, historians have proved, was an ignorant, almost an illiterate man. His method of creating the Koran was one through which many of mankind's earliest knowledge was kept alive long before it was transcribed to paper. He passed his learning by word of mouth to disciples who retained it word for word in their memories.

"The conclusive proof that the Koran was not actually written by Mohammed is the fact that several incidents related in the book took place after his death. It is generally agreed that the original version of the Koran was written 20 years after the prophet's death.

"The authenticity of the Koran is seldom questioned," the professor continued. "If a historian can read Arabic he is able today to read the book exactly as it was first written."

Mohammed's Wives.

Judge Casey interrupted the witness.

"Tell us," he said, "about Mohammed's wives. Several witnesses have testified that the history stated positively that he had 18. Bengalee said his prophet had 9. Just what is the truth?"

"A careful historian makes no positive statements concerning questions upon which there is doubt," said Prof. Sprengling. "Some students say that Mohammed had from 9 to 20 wives. There is some doubt also about the blood of his mother. It is held by some teachers that she was a Christian Jewess. Others, and there are a larger number of these, say that she was a simple Arab girl."

Here Judge Casey signaled for the witness to stop.

"There can, at least be no further doubt concerning this history. It is bad. The suit is dismissed and the complainant must pay the costs."

THIEVES' ERROR PROVIDES POPP WITH NEW SHOES

Three Negroes bumped into Joseph Popp at Lake and Paulina streets last night, and when they had disappeared Popp was minus a brand new pair of shoes, taken from his feet, and a wallet containing $25.

Popp, who lives at 1446 School street, hiked shoeless to the Warren avenue station. Policeman Ed Tighe and Harry Palmer invited him into their squad car and drove to the scene of the robbery.

A block away they found Popp's wallet on the pavement. Popp examined it. The main pocket, which had contained $4, was empty. Nervously he examined one of the smaller pockets, then uttered a whoop of joy. The thieves had overlooked $21. Mr. Popp bought himself another pair of shoes.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

LOOK at these big, husky, keen-edged blocks of rubber.

They mean more to your safety today than ever before, for the simple reason that there are more tread-bare, gripless, slick and slippery tires on the road today than at any time in history.

If you want to stop when danger threatens — if you want to be sure of grip instead of slip in emergency — there's just one thing to do about it.

Give your car the protection of the safest and best tread that money can buy —the time-tested Goodyear All-Weather.

You can see why this tire is safer, because you can see the sure-footed, hold-fast traction in the center of the tread, where it belongs.

You can check your judgment against the world, by remembering that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer named Tilbury as bailiff and he and his wife, an ill bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister Rachel are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The coroner's inquest is held. Murder by person or persons unknown is the verdict. The Tilburys are left Caroline's fortune, on condition that they search for the Holy Grail in the ruins of an ancient abbey on the estate, which Caroline believed to be her father's wish communicated to her from beyond the grave. Miss Braselton denounces Natasha. Neil questions Caroline's butler.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

THE FIRST ARREST.

"You don't think it possible, then, for either Tilbury or his wife to have been absent from the house without your knowing?" Neil went on.

"How could they have been, sir? Bristol's twenty miles away—but if it was at the bottom of the lane it would be the same. There wasn't a quarter of an hour that we couldn't hear him being sick or something, and Mrs. Tilbury was in and out the kitchen the entire time."

"You admit you did consider the possibility, though, even before you knew about Miss Bundy's will?"

"I did, sir, and that's a fact. It all comes of having a down on the man—no real reason, either, for till yesterday I couldn't see how he could benefit by having the mistress out of the way. According to my arguments, he'd have lost a good thing."

"One point more. Was the car garaged as usual?"

"That I can swear to, for I helped put it up. Tilbury drove in to the village before lunch, and when he came back he was already feeling so queer he asked me to lend him a hand. I locked the garage door myself, and hung the key up in the back lobby, where it always stays. In the morning I wanted to get at a drop of petrol, and there was the car as I'd left it, clean, not a splash on it."

"Could it have been taken out secretly during the late afternoon or evening?"

"Could it have been taken out secretly during the afternoon or evening?"

"Hardly, sir, without our noticing. The kitchen window faces the garage, and one or the other of us was in the kitchen practically every minute. Now there's only cook and me. We don't even use our dining room for meals."

Neil pondered the information despondently. At last he asked if Crabbe knew of any reason for his mistress' being in Bristol of her own volition.

"No, sir. Bristol's a place I've never known her to go near, except maybe for a drive in that direction, all the years I've been here." He paused, and a curious expression came over his self-contained features. "In spite of all I've told you, I don't mind owning the thought of those two keeps nagging me. Look at them—three months ago just the sweepings of the road, as you might say, and now the owners of all this!" He waved a bony hand toward Stoke Paulton. "I can't help wondering if they could have planned the murder and got an outside party to carry it out—though that would mean they knew all about the will, wouldn't it?"

"You think they could not have known?"

"It seems she never said a word on the subject—and I'm positive none of us mentioned it. Why, Pritchard never spoke to them if she could help it, and Mrs. Hickson the same; and they were off the premises the whole afternoon when the will was drawn up. Yes, it's one too many for me, sir. Sometimes I've had a notion that Tilbury can read people's minds, or what's worse, that he puts ideas into their minds. If it didn't sound foolish, I'd say the mistress was bewitched."

Bewitched! It was Neil's own instinctive belief, crudely put.

"Anyhow," went on the butler, "I'm seeing the last of him and his tomorrow morning. I wouldn't stay under that roof another day, not if they was to double my screw. They'll not be waited on by me."

When they separated Crabbe leant for a moment over the door and spoke in a low tone. "If you're seeing the young lady, sir, you might drop a word of warning in her ear. Tell her there's a lady—I'll not mention names—who's out to do her mischief. That's all, sir. In case you should want me again, I'll let you know where I go from here."

There could be no doubt as to whom Crabbe meant. Emily Braselton again! What had she said to him? Was it dimly possible she had something up her sleeve which she was even now preparing to spring?

Hurrying to the inn to talk matters over, he received a distinct shock. Natasha declined to see him. Why? Had he unwittingly placed himself in the same category with Gisborne and forfeited the small claim he had on her confidence? This was evidently the case—unless . . . But he shut his mind to the appalling alternative. That, at all events, was an idea he steadfastly refused to entertain.

Gisborne, following his intention, had gone to London to interview the dead woman's solicitor. Late in the day he returned, in a perplexed frame of mind. Neil met his train, and on the way home learned all he had to say.

"O, yes, we threshed the whole thing out. I think Powyss was relieved to get it off his chest. I've seldom seen a man more outraged than he is—for, as I guessed, there's not a chance of upsetting that absurd will."

"No way of proving anything crooked?"

"There is nothing crooked. Legally, Carrie was as sane as you or I—sane, but deluded, as Powyss expressed it. Don't imagine he didn't exhaust every argument against such a disposal of her property. He says she finally got quite annoyed with him and threatened to call in another man. She wouldn't even consent to deliberate a little longer, as he begged her to do. No, her mind was made up. She was obsessed with the idea that she might die at any moment and that if she didn't make necessary provisions her plan would never be carried out. In the end he was obliged to draw up the document she dictated and get it witnessed."

"But he had misgivings?"

"Naturally. He felt certain these people were influencing her, even though she was unaware of it. When he read about the murder it rushed on him at once that she had in some way been victimized and got rid of. He was in Essex, laid up with rheumatism at the time, but as soon as possible he hurried down here, as much for the purpose of looking into the case as of informing the Tilbury pair of their inheritance. He declares they showed every sign of amazement, but he wasn't taken in by that, of course. He got the servants aside one by one and questioned them, also paid a visit to Graves—but while he's still not satisfied, he's driven to conclude there's nothing he can do."

"Has he no theory about the murder?"

"He didn't have—but now, it seems, that Braselton woman has been to him with some cock-and-bull story. He was very close about it, wouldn't give anything away, but all the same——" Here the speaker looked embarrassed and fumbled with his tobacco pouch. "I would feel easier in my mind if Natasha would come out with whatever she's keeping back. For there's something she's hiding. Every action of hers proves it. Have you seen her today, by the way?"

Neil, with the blood mounting to his face, admitted he had not.

"Humph! I don't half like it. I've had the feeling for days of walking on the brink of a volcano."

On reaching the vicarage they learned that during the afternoon an inspector from Scotland Yard had called to see Natasha and been with her for an hour or more. The news had spread like wildfire. Rachel, who had been summoned to the outskirts of the village to visit an ill parishioner, returned to find a crowd of curious loiterers assembled around the inn. On ascertaining the cause of the excitement, she waited until the quiet plain clothes officer emerged, then sent up an urgent appeal to be admitted. The girl, shut in her room, would see no one. Neil fared likewise, and Gisborne himself, sternly resolved to storm the citadel, had no better luck. When he came back to the vicarage he attacked his sister almost violently.

"See here, Rachel! I've known all along there was something between you and Natasha. No good denying it. Now, once and for all, are you going to be as great a fool as she is and hold your tongue when a simple explanation might clear things up?"

"But it wouldn't, Giles!" Her eyes were full of misery. "O, can't you understand how I'm placed? If I say anything at all, it may only have the result of—of making it worse!"

The admission, wrung from her, told her hearers what they most dreaded—that she, perhaps with greater reason than themselves, was desperately afraid. . . .

It was not known how or when Natasha left the George. When Neil tried once more, later in the evening, to see her, she was not in her room. Gone for a walk, maybe, the manageress suggested with a rude stare and shrug. He hung about till midnight, but still the girl had not returned.

That same evening, on the point of boarding the channel boat en route for Dunkirk, she was recognized, detained, and taken in charge.

"I never have to look up the date of Halloween," remarked one amused mother to me yesterday. "I can always tell it a week away by the condition of my kitchen spoons after they've been borrowed for use in 'pumpkin' excavations."

But perturbed as we may be at the sudden reappearance of crooknecked spoons and not-too-clean knives in our well ordered utensil drawer, their arrival means something else besides just the near approach of the eve of ghosts and ghouls. It bespeaks the heyday of pumpkins for another purpose—the creation not of gay or gruesome "jacks" but of vastly appealing pumpkin edibles.

Actually the pumpkin, also known in some parts as the pomion, is a descendant of the gourd family tree, and if taken, as it always should be, when but a youngster, it may be used in nearly all of the ways recommended for the vegetable marrow or the summer squash.

For instance, hold off the season's first pumpkin pie for a spell while you array before the family such hunger boosters as pumpkin soup, pumpkin pudding, stuffed pumpkin, mashed, boiled, baked, and fried pumpkin—or let them glory in pumpkin au gratin.

Pumpkin cookery methods are simple—the trick all lies in selecting the golden orange fellows when they are still tender, thick meated and sweet flavored. For your simplest luncheon dish or meat accompaniment select a half grown pumpkin and boil, whole, in salted water about half an hour or until tender to the prick of a fork. Cut in sections and remove the seeds. Place in a hot serving dish and season with salt and pepper, finally pouring over fresh melted butter.

Or instead of bringing the pumpkin to the table in sections, mash until fluffy with seasoning and a little butter and place in a serving dish. This is also a start for a baked recipe which boasts real hunger appeal. For this, after mashing and seasoning the pumpkin, add two tablespoons minced parsley, turn into a buttered baking dish and bake with a cover in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] half an hour. Then turn out onto a hot garnished plate and slice at the table, serving with melted butter.

Cheese—the good, sturdy American variety—makes a happy complement for pumpkin dishes. For a delectable au gratin dish, select a young pumpkin and cut it in rounds three-fourths inch thick. Arrange the slices in a buttered baking dish, alternating layers of pumpkin with layers of highly flavored tomato sauce. When the dish is three-fourths full, add a generous layer of finely grated American cheese and finally a husky topping of fine dried bread crumbs. Place in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] and bake, covered, till the pumpkin is tender (about thirty minutes). Remove the cover in the last ten minutes and allow the crumbs and the bubbling cheese to acquire a rich golden brown.

Still another favorite is prepared in this fashion: Select a small pumpkin and peel it, then cut in halves, removing the seeds. Place the halves in salt water for twenty minutes, then drain, dry and sauté ten minutes in melted butter seasoned with salt, pepper, and a sprinkling of allspice. Drain the slices, place on a fireproof platter and over each sprinkle a thick layer of peppy grated cheese, bits of butter and a crumbling of fresh bread. Now place the platter under a broiler fire and toast slowly for ten minutes. By this time the pumpkin should be tender, the cheese lusciously melted and the crumbs toasted to a turn. Garnish the plate with fresh cress and serve at once.

Finally for a stuffed pumpkin special. Again choose grown pumpkins and plunge them into boiling water and cook for 12 minutes, then cut in halves, or in quarters if halves are too large for a serving. Now with a spoon scrape out the meat, getting as much as possible, but being sure to leave a wall thick enough to stand up by itself. If the seeds are large, remove the largest, then squeeze out some of the extra moisture through a sieve. Now to 4 cups of pulp, add 1½ cups bread crumbs, 2 small peeled and chopped tomatoes, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, 1 cup minced ham or shell fish meat, 1 tablespoon minced onion and a dash each of thyme, salt, and pepper. Heat a tablespoon of meat drippings in a frying pan and add the above mixture. Simmer for ten minutes, then mound this filling into the pumpkin shells. Dot with butter, dust with bread crumbs, and bake in hot oven until brown and spanking hot.

Leontovich to Play Lead in Ballet Story

Tells Life in Imperial Russian School.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 19.—Eugenie Leontovich, who starred as the dancer in the Broadway company's stage run in "Grand Hotel," has been signed by Felix Young, independent producer, to play the star rôle in a picture which unrolls the life story of a queen of the ballet of the pre-war imperial Russian ballet school.

The film in its theme and settings may become something of a companion piece for M. G. M.'s lavish production of "Rasputin," at least its backers would be pleased if it did, and unless M. G. M. shows a little haste in finishing "Rasputin" with the three Barrymores, Miss Leontovich may have her version of St. Petersburg court life before the public first.

Adolph Bolm, internationally known ballet master, who trained in and directed the old Russian court ballets, is associated with the production. He is training the ballet, supervising the scenes for accuracy and technical exactness, and is also associated with Scenarist Anthony Veiller in preparing the story. They expect to begin shooting as soon as Miss Leontovich returns from her trip to New York to assemble the costumes. The film has been tentatively named "Jeanie."

They gave a farewell luncheon for Ernst Lubitsch, who leaves for Europe Oct. 29, at the Paramount studio yesterday, but when one fifth of the invited guests arrived they found that no seats had been set for them, or arrangements made in the studio dining hall. The overflow guests, failing to be chilled by a cold reception, hunted up dining quarters in another part of the building, and organized their own Lubitsch farewell, at which parodies of the scheduled complimentary speeches by Lubitsch and his studio superiors were delivered with many laughs that Mr. Lubitsch might or might not have enjoyed. It was the best ribbing match since Donald Ogden Stewart got peeved at Groucho Marx and walked out of the West Side Asthma club.

While he was saying his good-byes [until February] around the studio, Lubitsch took time to say that he believes Helen Hayes and Miriam Hopkins are the two most dynamic actresses on the screen.

Mrs. Richard Bennett, the former Aimee Raisch, is reported recovering nicely from an operation for the removal of her appendix at Good Samaritan hospital.

Mary Brian gets the job that Carole Lombard wouldn't take—playing opposite Jimmy Cagney in Warner-First National's "The Inside."

They're keeping it a secret about the story Gouverneur Morris is helping to write in M. G. M.'s "Writers' Alley." It's a mystery story, and Tod Browning, who turned out most of the eerie Lon Chaney subjects, as well as the more recent "Freaks," is Morris' collaborator.

Jimmy Bush, who used to be a child actor in Mary Pickford's pictures, is now playing a part in Paramount's "Wild Horse Mesa" with Randolph Scott and Sally Blane.

The Warner studio has acquired exclusive movie rights to take pictures of the Notre Dame-University of Southern California football game in Los Angeles on Dec. 10.

THAT DREADED TIME!

The old story. "Cora's sick!" She doesn't know science has found the way to block the usual pain. Midol, the discovery of specialists, ends such suffering. It doesn't merely relieve the pain, but removes all possibility of such pain. And it does this for women who once had to spend the day in bed! Midol is a remedy that goes straight to the seat of this organic pain. You can't get the same results from any headache remedy. Midol is an absolute check for all that pain throughout the period. Midol means that any woman can carry on in absolute comfort. And it is perfectly harmless; it is not a narcotic. At any drug store; ten tiny tablets in a smart little box. Simply ask for Midol.

The Twenties Is Setting of a Good Novel

"Never Enough," by Leane Zugsmith. [Liveright.] Published today.

LEANE ZUGSMITH'S talents have been slowly maturing with each book. In the present novel, "Never Enough," she reveals distinction and power as a novelist. Because of the curious structure, "Never Enough" is a rather difficult novel to get interested in, but once the first few chapters are read it is extremely difficult to lay it down.

LEANE ZUGSMITH.

"Never Enough" is a canvas of America during the period from 1920-1930. It includes eight major characters as well as a vast number of minor ones who serve only to oil the machinery of the plot. In some way or other these eight characters cross one another's lives and alter them either mildly or drastically.

Cliff Robinson is a political boss in New Jersey. He has no perceptible code of morals, either political or personal, and indulges in the shadiest and most dangerous transactions, ruining or impairing the lives of those who stand in his way. His affairs with women are casual and cheap. He gradually loses what sense of discrimination he had in his deals with men and women as well as his political party and steadily deteriorates physically, emotionally, and mentally. He almost gets caught in an investigation but manages in time to skip out.

Mae, one of the women who cross his path, has deserted her husband and child for a lover and comes to New York willing to take what life offers. She receives good luck and bad luck courageously. Through the help of Cliff she manages to earn a livelihood on steamers that ply from America to Europe.

Sally, a brave and jolly young girl, falls in love with Thurber, who insists that he has the family disease, consumption. Sally's stratagem to open his eyes to his neurotic condition works, and the reader thankfully watches a drama of tenderness and charm.

Another of Cliff Robinson's light o' loves, Frances, is an assistant buyer in a hat store. Her roseate dream in life is to have a husband, a little house and a baby. Her sordid and pathetic tragedy is a long way from her cherished and life-long illusion.

Mary Louise is an actress from Louisville who makes her job in life the dramatization of her own experiences. She leaves a husband who has sacrificed many things, including his health, to her beauty. The false glamour of her career is so exquisitely controlled that she never faces real tragedy. Her misfortune is hypocrisy.

The tenor of Fred's life is determined by his wanderlust. He does not know what he wants, where to go or what to do. His pitiful uncertainty ends in a strange unexpected shaft of light.

All these characters, except for Sally and Thurber who seek and find beauty in life, are petty and unlovely. They nevertheless possess a reality that is almost startling. There is not a single person in the book that rings false. The dialogue is handled so competently that the reader can detect every shading of character and would be able to identify the speaker even without the name.

The unusualness of the structure is apparent from the first page. The author shifts swiftly and often without any transitional device from one character to another. At first the effect is disconcertingly confused and choppy, but as the eye and the mind become adapted this structural device serves effectively the purpose of suspense. With the diverse characters and themes and with a choice of structure that might, under less capable hands be disturbing, the author achieves, curiously enough, an impression of unity.

Perhaps the one conspicuous fault in "Never Enough" is the intrusion of periodic comments on the time. These interruptions are objective and seemingly supposed to represent the temper of the time. For instance there are chapters [only a page or two in length] on Loeb and Leopold, the Sacco-Vanzetti case, and Judd Grey; in many cases the author simply prints the authentic letters. The information imparted by this device has no relevancy nor significance in the main narrative. Nevertheless "Never Enough" is a good novel, distinguished by realism, sincerity and technical competence.

Model for St. Luke's Fashion Show

Miss Lydia Swift, one of the most attractive of this year's debutantes, is to be a model in St. Luke's fashion show next Tuesday at the Stevens hotel. Miss Swift, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Swift of Lake Forest and 209 Lake Shore drive, posed for this picture in the drawing room of the Swift residence on Lake Shore drive. Miss Swift is to make her debut at a dinner dance on Dec. 27 at the Casino, the party to be given by her parents and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Senior for Miss Swift and Miss Mary Senior.

Hold Exhibit of Lithographs and Paintings

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibition of tempera paintings by Emanuele Romano and of lithographs by William E. Schwartz will open today in the Knoedler galleries. Schwartz is a Chicago artist whose work is dark, impetuous, imaginative and forceful. His lithographs are as full of character as are his paintings. In the present group the mathematical elements are amazingly allowed to run loose, with a resultant array of cubistic, geometric and abstract compositions that almost terrify you with their complacent perfection. In spite of the negligent amount of human error discernible, his exhibit is interesting.

The paintings by Romano are on a different scale. His is a careless genius, free and generous. Various currents in his work bring Picasso and Utrillo suddenly to mind, but there are only a few modern artists who have not imbibed something from those wells. Romano has a fine sense of composition, a clever technique and something to say.

By all odds his most amusing and successful study is the "Portrait of Mrs. K." She is a resigned and relaxed individual with a haunting charm based on impassivity. "The Bridge, Cassis," is delightful. "The Algerians" are an interesting pair and "The Well" takes us to Jerusalem and a narrow street up and down which walk women carrying water in jars upon their heads. "Trapeze" shows us a woman acrobat from an awkward angle that undoubtedly presented itself to the artist as a fascinating problem in foreshortening. "Peljcans," "Self-Portrait" and "Country Dancers" are three other paintings that rank high in the show.

The exhibition will continue to Nov. 10.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us, and the other fellow, too.

This season, and all seasons, summer excepted, there is need in many a home for extra heat in the bathroom. This is especially true where there are babies or young children in the house, and the builtin type of auxiliary heater which you can have installed in your wall is a big comfort. Not all of us have thermostats to start our heaters before we are up, and not all bathrooms are warm early mornings, late evenings, or even as warm as the rest of the house during the day. There are also excellent portable auxiliary heating units for the bathroom.

Gay and Informal Atmosphere Marks First Debut Party of the Season to Be Held in Town.

BY JUDITH CASS.

COMPARISONS are odious, always, but to say that there never has been nor never could be a nicer debut party than the one Miss Louise Dewey had yesterday isn't a comparison, really; it is just a statement of a fact that was agreed upon by most of the guests at the party.

The debutante is so pretty and charming and her mother and father, the Charles S. Deweys; so cordial and hospitable, and their lovely house on State parkway looked so festive, and the whole atmosphere was so gay and informal that this first town debut of the winter set a high standard for such affairs.

The flowers were gorgeous and there were so many of them that even the stairs leading to the landing where a Polish stringed quintet, in dashing costumes, played were banked with them.

The Polish orchestra was not the only reminder of the recent years the Deweys spent in Poland (Mr. Dewey was financial adviser to Poland after being in the treasury department at Washington), for hanging in the reception hall are two stunning portraits by a Polish artist—flowers hid his signature, and although his name sounded like "Slimjimski" when Charles S. Dewey Jr. said it, that couldn't be it—one of Mrs. Dewey and another of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey together, and among the guests were the Polish consul general and several of the attachés of the Polish consulate, and some of the members of the Polish colony here.

The young Poles and some of the attachés of the Jugo-Slavian consulate, and two of the assisting debutantes—the Misses Mary Senior and Barbara Eldridge—were doing much to promote the "entente cordiale" between the countries in one corner of the dining room, for at one time the two attractive young American girls literally were surrounded by about eight of the young foreigners.

The debutante, who is as blonde as her mother and elder sister, Suzette [Mrs. Frederick M. Alger Jr.] are dark, wore a gown of apple green velvet with a yoke and short, full sleeves of starched lace of the same lovely shade, and carried a round bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. Dewey wore white chiffon embroidered in silver dots the size of a half dollar, and carried orchids.

Sister Comes from Detroit.

Mrs. Alger, who had come from Detroit with Mr. Alger for the party, wore black, as did four of the five assisting debutantes—Miss Senior, Miss Eldridge, Miss Jean Schweppe, and Miss Nancy Traylor. Miss Marjorie Goodman, who just arrived at home in the morning from a trip east, wore blue. Assisting Mr. Dewey was "Bud" Dewey, who was up from his work in the experimental laboratories of the Bendix works in South Bend for the occasion. The men of the family, including Ben Alger, formed a sort of receiving line in the reception hall.

Mrs. Francis Johnson and Mrs. Ult B. Grannis, the debutante's godmothers, presided at the tea table, which was decorated with gold candelabra and vases holding red roses that matched in color the red leather seats of the chairs. Mrs. Grannis, smart in black with a touch of white, and with orchids on one shoulder, was kept busy, for she poured coffee, but Mrs. Johnson, lovely in gray, also with orchids on one shoulder, wasn't so busy, for she was pouring chocolate, and, although probably every woman there really wanted a cup of rich chocolate with whipped cream, most of them took black coffee. Yesterday's party was ruinous to "figgers" if one indulged in one-half the delicious sandwiches, cakes, nuts, and candies that were served.

A few of the hundreds of friends who

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932 By Ida Ridley Co., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

A BLACKMAILER PAYS.

"I was introduced to Mr. Proctor at his club last night by Weeks. After agreeing to handle a rather delicate matter for me, I made an appointment for early this morning. I arrived here at his office at 8 o'clock," continued Schaeffer, "and found him sitting just like that. You'll find my fingerprints on the telephone. I called headquarters at once."

"Not much doubt that it was murder," commented Prof. Fordney, "though the motive apparently wasn't robbery—there's several thousand dollars in the opened safe and nothing seemed disturbed, but I'll have to get into that safe drawer to make sure."

"Look," cried Schaefer. "Here's the key to it—I just found it in the waste basket. Proctor must have known what the intruder was after and in refusing to give it to him he was killed."

Fordney unlocked the compartment and brought forth a bundle of papers.

"Looks like you're right," he said. "If the rest are like these first two, there's enough information here to blast the reputation of some of our 'very best' citizens. Mr. Proctor obviously was one of our better blackmailers. Find anything over there, sergeant?"

"Yes. Looks like a clew. See these cigaret stumps, professor? Well, there are no burnt matches here and Proctor has no lighter in his pockets! Are these yours Schaeffer?"

"No. I smoke nothing but cigars."

"Perhaps, though I doubt it," broke in Fordney. "Maybe you'll get more out of Mr. Schaeffer at headquarters, sergeant. Take him down."

WHAT JUSTIFIED FORDNEY?

Stylish Evening Wraps Startle with Glamour

BY RHEA SEEGER.

HOW your blood pressure is going to climb when you take a few hours to preview the glamorous new evening wraps! They are dashing, swashbuckling affairs, long, enveloping velvet creations, most of them with all the splendid colorful dramatic values filched from romantic stage settings.

You'll need a liberal supply of smelling salts, for some of the wraps will make you swoon with envious longing when a cunning and clever sales person brings them out, one by one for your personal inspection.

Say what you will about shriveled budgets, depression, allowances and practical shopping caution, if these utterly irresistible beauties don't make you sit up and spend your shekels recklessly, you are beyond stirring.

The colors alone will drive you a bit mad with envy . . . thick, luscious velvets of vermilion, with deep cavalier capes shirred and shirred and shirred until the capes stand stiffly at attention around your slender waistline. There are also long sinister looking black beauties made in the same manner. The wide, flaring and high standing collars will frame your face most effectively.

There are many beguiling models, without a bit of fur, that will find their way into the wardrobe of the gal with a slender clothes allowance . . . long sleek looking affairs of deep sapphire blue, medieval shades of deep plum and maroon, and regal purple, all fashioned exquisitely.

But when you do insist upon fur trimmings you certainly get some breathtaking creations . . . for instance, rather improvident designers use mink and blue fox with a gay abandon on some thrilling evening wraps that are decorative and splendid enough to swish into any friendly formal festivity . . . you can wrap the regal folds of purple velvet around the sparkling metallic brocade of your most formal evening gown, and as if that wasn't swank enough, the lavish designers added a pelt or two of fox for extras.

The practical minded but appreciative dancing females are going to snap at the newest black velvet and velveteen creations. You can buy them with or without fur trimmings . . . you can find them with or without collars. You will have difficulty in deciding between a dozen or more greatly desirable models, each a perfect find for the dress parade parties that loom ahead.

One long and sweeping model has full puffed long sleeves, long slenderizing lines that will make you look like a tall poplar. A huge puffed black velvet bow nestles coquettishly high on your left shoulder.

Another unfurred black velvet affair goes in for Victorian sleeves, the puffy kind that perk distractingly in points or perks on the tip of each shoulder. This one model happens to be a double breasted number that buttons high and widely across your chest with a gigantic glittering button of brilliants, and that is all the contrast the entire coat-wrap can boast about . . . however, what it lacks in ornamentation is lavishly supplied in silhouette, for only a genius could contrive the air and subtlety that this particular Victorian evening wrap whispers about knowingly, and persuasively to the appreciative shopper.

White Broadtail Fashions the Yoke on Black Woolen Coat from Heim

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Yokes of fur finish are upon many of the dressy coats that are seen around Paris. A fur yoke, or fur sleeves, constitutes the principal novelty in fur application. Flat furs, or semi-flat furs are used for these trimmings, since long haired furs would be too bulky. Astrakhan, broadtail, beaver, nutria and seal are the big five of fur yokes and sleeves seen on French daytime coats.

When a coat has a fur yoke, this yoke is likely to be in an unusual shape, and not just the ordinary round or square yoke of tradition. The Heim coat, shown in our sketch today, has one of these odd shaped yokes, done in white broadtail. It covers the shoulders and extends over the sleeve top on the right shoulder whereas on the left side it stops short at the armhole. Above the yoke there is a big draped collar of white broadtail that is closed on the left shoulder.

The coat itself is made of smooth soft black woolen, with a streamline body that wraps over in front and closes on the left side as do 60 per cent of the French coats this season. It is held shut by a button, just under the closing of the broadtail collar, and has a rabbit ear tab of cloth tweaked out beyond the button. Three spreading tucks extend from the button across the front of the coat, and the sleeves have three tucks at top and bottom.

Women's Athletic Club Musical.

Advance reservations for the Woman's Athletic club's first morning musical at 11 o'clock today indicate that there will be a capacity crowd at both the program and the special luncheon to follow.

Jacques Gordon and Harold Van Horn, the artists, are to be luncheon guests at the table of the president, Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley. Other luncheon hostesses will be Mrs. Alfred C. Tyler, program chairman; Mrs. Frank Barbour, Mrs. Le Roy Kramer, Mrs. Percy B. Eckhart, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, and Mrs. Welch Dickinson and Mrs. Jefferson Jackson, who are to have a joint party.

Mrs. Bartholomay, chairman of the press committee, announces that the first of the Friday afternoon teas in the club lounge following the symphony concerts will be held on Nov. 4.

Although it is a counter attraction to the Woman's Athletic club luncheon, there will be no lack of attendance at the luncheon the Lake Shore League of Women Voters will hold at 12:30 o'clock at the Drake hotel.

Mrs. James W. Morrisson and Mrs. George Bass, two speakers whom the political minded fashionables delight to hear, are to debate on the Republican and Democratic parties respectively, and since the debate will not begin until after luncheon has been served, no doubt many of the women who will be at the Woman's Athletic club in the morning will drop in at the Drake to hear the speaking. The annual meeting and election of officers of the Lake Shore league will be held at 12 o'clock, preceding the luncheon.

Junior League Sale Today.

Although the Junior league second hand clothes sales were started just about two years ago, they already have become something of an institution, so there is little doubt that the sale to be held today at 157 North Michigan avenue will be a great success and that the end of the day will see the girls in charge wearily but triumphantly counting up a nice sum of money for the league's charities.

The girls have been collecting men's and women's clothes, accessories and novelties of all sorts for several weeks and we're told that today's customers will find a large selection to choose from. The rooms in which the sale is to be held are more suitable than the quarters used formerly. They have several entrances and exits and the girls hope to eliminate the crowding and pushing which made the other sales such riotous affairs.

Mrs. Ellen W. Reagan, formerly of Riverside, and Mario Saint Cyr of Rome are to be married quietly today in the chapel of a Catholic church in Rome. It will be a simple ceremony with no guests present except the bridegroom's father and Mrs. Reagan's three youngest children, Miss Barbara Goddard and Herbert and Benjamin Reagan.

The bride and bridegroom are to travel through Italy on their wedding trip and will go to France for a short visit with his family. They plan to spend their winters in Rome and to come to Riverside for the summer months. The bridegroom is a well known musician and author in Paris and Rome.

Service Club Revue Tickets.

Mrs. Scott Dow Jr. has more than rehearsals for the Service club revue to worry about, for in addition to practicing her own specialty number in the show she has the more difficult duty of ticket chairman to fulfill. There are still some seats unsold for the revue, which is to be held tomorrow and Saturday nights at the Goodman theater, and she hopes that they'll be disposed of before the curtain goes up on the first performance.

Empty seats at a Service club show are practically unheard of, and the girls are wistfully thinking of the good old days when they filled the huge Civic Opera house from the main floor to the upper balconies.

Miss Beatrice Borland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, says modestly that the talk she is to give on "Experiences in Persia" at the Geographic society's annual post-vacation luncheon on Saturday at the Stevens hotel will be just a very light and unimportant addition to the speeches of the older and more renowned speakers on the program.

It is well known, however, that the invitation to speak before this society is something of a compliment to the young woman's powers of observation. Although Beatrice and her sister, Harriet, took reels of film on their trip around the world two years ago there will be no pictures to accompany her little talk.

The two girls, by the way, have collaborated on a book about their travels, which is to be published next spring. The writing was done by Beatrice and the maps and photographs by Harriet. It is not a serious travel book, but a gay, humorous piece, replete with the more comic happenings on their journeys. The title hasn't been decided yet, but the publishers seem to think that "Snooping Around Asia" might be a good one.

Dinner Tonight for Mr. Wilbur.

President and Mrs. Robert H. Hutchins of the University of Chicago will give a dinner this evening for Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, preceding his lecture in Mandel hall on "Is Democracy Safe?" The guests will include Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Waller Borden, Prof. and Mrs. Charles E. Merriam, and Prof. and Mrs. Arthur H. Compton.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Calhoun Smith of Lake Forest are going to give a supper party on Friday, Nov. 4, in the urban room at the Congress hotel for Mrs. Smith's sister, Miss Eleanor Litsinger, and the girls who will assist that afternoon at Miss Litsinger's debut reception. Miss Litsinger is expecting her roommate at the French school in New York, where she finished last year, Miss Alice Howell, to come from Cleveland for the debut.

Miss Elizabeth Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Perkins of 3 Banks street, is leaving Sunday for Boston to study there this winter, having studied English history on the alumnae fellowship of Smith college in London last year.

The brilliant Miss Perkins, known to her many friends as "Perky," and Miss Martha Higley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Higley of Hinsdale, have taken a quaint old house on Beacon Hill for the winter. Miss Higley, who is a niece of Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, is studying economics at Radcliffe.

Lawrence M. Viles is to move tomorrow from his apartment at 1530 State parkway to one at 1209 Astor street.

News About the Travelers.

Miss Catherine Molloy of the Lake Shore Drive hotel and Mrs. Carleton Scribner of Deerfield are arriving in town today from a six weeks' European trip. Miss Molloy's father, David J. Molloy, went to New York to meet them.

Mrs. Michael Spades and her son, Myron Spades, of St. Augustine, Fla., are spending the autumn at the Drake.

Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins of 199 Lake Shore drive will return this weekend from a short stay in New York.

Mrs. Alfred D. Plamondon of the Belden-Stratford hotel has gone to spend a few weeks at French Lick, Ind. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Plamondon, has returned from a visit with her mother, Mrs. Henry Frederick Hoffman of St. Paul.

Mrs. Ida Norris Spence of Toronto, Ont., Canada, announces the engagement of her daughter, Margaretta, to Lyman M. Drake Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman M. Drake of Wilmette. Miss Spence was graduated from the University of Toronto and studied for a year in France. Mr. Drake is a graduate of Dartmouth. The wedding will take place early next spring.

The board of the Infant Welfare Thrift shop has cards out for a donation tea to be held next Monday at the shop at 1461 East 55th street. Friends of the Kenwood Social Service club and the Hyde Park Infant Welfare, joint managers of the shop, have been asked to bring "white elephants" and to inspect what the board considers one of the most efficiently operated shops in Chicago.

One of the most interesting letters received by the "When Chicago Was Young" players is one written by a dressmaker who worked on the gown worn by Mrs. Potter Palmer at the reception for the Infanta Eulalia at the Palmer residence in 1893. She asks that her name not be given, but she writes: "I distinctly remember that reception. At the time I was employed by the White-Howard company, importers, 1730 Michigan avenue. There the gown worn by Mrs. Palmer that evening was made, from imported materials. It was white satin, hand embroidered, in sequins and seed pearls, princess model, I think. The sleeves [I made them] would be the best means of identification. They were made short, of white tulle, puffed and trimmed with many bands or straps of narrow white satin, 'milliner's folds,' they were called. A satin bag, embroidered in the same design, completed the ensemble.

"Several years ago, at Marshall Field's, there was an exhibit of gowns worn by Chicago women during the World's Fair. In that exhibit were a number of Mrs. Palmer's gowns, but I looked in vain for the one worn at the Infanta's reception.

"Another gown I recall, worn at the same reception, was made for the lovely Mrs. Rose Farwell Chatfield-Taylor. That gown was made of material presented to her when, on her honeymoon, she visited India. The material was of white net, appliqued with beetle wings, outlined in gold thread. The huge sleeves were of gold color velvet. A most beautiful costume.

"During that season, summer of 1893, Mrs. Palmer had more than thirty gowns made at White-Howard's. One other which I hope you may locate was made there and worn by her at the opening of the 'Women's Congress.' That also was a princess model of a changeable silk of green and petunia shades, outlined in a fine scroll all-over design of narrow black satin lines. This gown and the reception gown mentioned were by far the choicest of that year's collection."

Mrs. Howard Linn is chairman of the committee in charge of the first night of "When Chicago Was Young," which is to be a benefit performance for Olivet institute.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr., who have been at the White House this week, left this morning for New York en route back to their home on the west coast. Mrs. Hoover accompanied them to the station for a final good-by.

Mrs. John R. Williams and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, went to New York last night and sailed today on the Bremen to visit the former's son-in-law and daughter, the American minister to Ireland and Mrs. Frederick Sterling, and to be present at the debut ball which their hosts will give for the late Mr. Leiter's niece, Miss Audrey Campbell, on Nov. 5, in the legation.

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Graham of Detroit are at the Shoreham hotel for a fortnight's visit.

The honorary Chilean consul in Chicago and Mrs. Max Ehlert are making a visit here with the latter's brother and sister-in-law and Mr. and Mrs. B. Alexander Singer.

Old Quarrels Look Foolish After Ten Years

Attitude Toward Life Apt to Change.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Ten year wait rewarded by her forgiveness! Such was the headline on a touching little story that appeared in the news recently.

Ten years ago the couple quarreled. They had been married in a certain little English church. When they separated the woman said she could not forgive—but if a change of heart ever ensued the man would know when he heard the church bell ring out a single note. A time was set for the possible reconciliation. On the Saturday preceding Sept. 11, their wedding anniversary, that single stroke of the bell would tell the man forgiveness was awaiting him.

For ten long years annually the husband visited the town, hanging around, awaiting the sign. And but recently on the tenth anniversary of their separation his patience was rewarded.

Nothing was reported of the nature of the difficulties between this pair that led to their long separation. Perhaps the woman felt deeply wronged, and with justice. We know nothing about that.

The eventual foregiveness, however, gives rise to speculation on how in ten years one's attitude toward life and mate change. Rather, toward what one may expect from life and from human beings. The pity of it is that we so often have to waste long years in acquiring the philosophy and the understanding that give to unimportant things their true value.

Looking back on a quarrel or a break of ten years ago it all seems now so senseless, so utterly futile. How could one have been so wrought up over an indiscretion, a hurt to one's pride, a blow at one's vanity, we ask. In ten years we are forced to learn that neither mate nor life can be ordered to fit a pattern we [faultily, perhaps] design. We learn about life in countless ways in a decade of living. We learn that tolerance and forgiveness are the most personally useful of human traits. Without them we neither bring happiness to others nor earn it for ourselves.

Point the Feet Straight Ahead When You Walk

Toeing Out Detracts from Your Appearance.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As we look back now that extremely short skirted era was a test, all right. But, at that, I don't think it was as hard on the youthfulness of a woman as today's long skirted one. She had an idea in the old days, at least, that she was fooling folk with the kiddish skirt. And a lot of other women were toeing out, so if her feet looked funny she had company in that respect and plenty of it.

But today, with no leg to speak of to distract the eye of man (and woman), the feet come in for a heap of starin'. That's one reason why we think this a harder period for the woman who'd like to appear younger. The other is that the lengthened skirt calls imperatively for a smart, snappy, young walk. Otherwise you're sunk into middle agedness, at least.

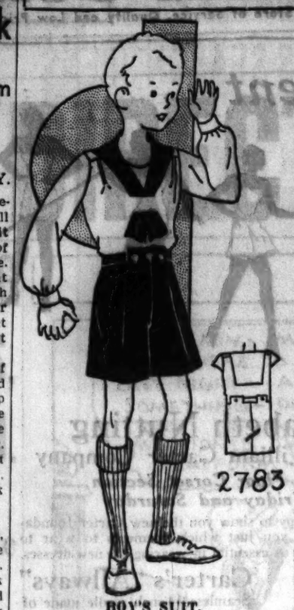
Women of the grandmother age, let's say, might be excused for the habit of walking with feet turned out. Many of them were taught to walk that way. Once taught and practiced for years, it's no easy trick getting the toes to point straight ahead. But women of the young matron age and younger certainly have not the excuse of faulty teaching to keep on turning those feet out at the ugly forty-five degree angle.

I warn you all that this walking business is going to be pounded into you by every beauty and health adviser from now on. The beauty preachers simply can't let you go on turning those feet out when you move, or when you stand still, for that matter. You can't get any lightness in your step if you turn the feet out. You can't come up and down on the ball of the foot easily. And the chances are ten to one you're now suffering some arch strain, if not out and out flat footedness from walking with the feet turned out.

You never saw a graceful woman, a smart stepping one, a chic person with feet acting that way. Feet have to be placed directly in front of you and walked on lightly to get any style in your movements. You've got to keep them pointing directly in front of you when you stand. In fact, it is better to turn in a little than out for appearance sake and for the good of your foot action.

Check up on those tootsies of yours and see if you're making them do right by your appearance. Stand them and walk them before a pier glass and don't let them off practice until you have them going straight ahead every time. It makes your feet look a couple of sizes larger to turn them out wide when you walk. And that ought to cure them, eh what?

Sailor Type Neckline of Practical Suit Is Becoming to the Small Boy



BOY'S SUIT.

Here is a smart suit for small boys and one that can be made at home. The trousers button to the blouse in a new manner and the sailor type neckline with the collar ending in scarf ends is one that all small boys like. Several suits can be made at home for the price of one ready made.

The pattern, No. 2783, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1¼ yards of 35 inch dark material, with 1¼ yards of 35 inch material and ⅝ yard of 35 inch lining.

Business Women Expect Record Crowd at Benefit

More than 6,000 tickets have been distributed for a benefit bridge party and fashion revue to be held tonight at the Palmer house by the Federated Council of Business and Professional Women of Chicago. The initial affair, held a year ago under the same auspices, broke all records for such an event in Chicago, and the council expects to surpass that success this year. Proceeds go to the organization's relief fund for business or professional women in need of assistance.

Says Schools Need More Machines to Test Hearing

More equipment is needed to test the hearing of Chicago school children, Dr. Frank G. Bruner, director of special divisions in the schools, told a meeting of the Deaf Oral Parent-Teachers' association yesterday at the Parker Practice school.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

First Appeal for Assistance.

"I have been out of work for two years not only because of the depression, but because of injuries I received in an accident. I have delayed asking for help as long as possible, but I have a family and cannot bear to see them suffer any longer. Can you get us a coal heating stove and some clothing? The children are girls—2, 8, 12 and 13 years old—and they are badly in need of winter coats. I have no overcoat, and wear size 40. My wife would appreciate a winter coat, too, size 38. W. O."

This man has been reluctant to ask for the aid he needs so urgently, but has pocketed his pride in order that his family will not suffer needlessly. He is deserving and will appreciate your assistance.

Chart Weights Not Applicable to Every Child

Youngster's Build Factor of Importance.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Around this time of the year when school children are having physical examinations it is well for parents to have a few things pointed out to them on the subject of overweight and underweight, especially the latter. And this is not alone a physical matter. Often a mother will be so disturbed because she thinks her child is underweight that she becomes over anxious in trying to correct the condition and inoculates the child with her own mental state. She may even get to the point where he is made to feel uneasy and even inferior.

So, if somebody who is weighing your child pulls out a chart, runs a finger down to his age or height and then announces, "Underweight," don't take it too much to heart. At least not until you are sure he or she is undernourished or underweight. It may be true, but a table of averages is not the test. After all, you know what some one said, "There's no such animal as an average child."

Each child's normal weight for him is determined by his build—by what heredity has endowed him with. The short, stocky child with heavy bones and heavy torso and heavy but rather short legs; the short, slender child with small bones; the tall, slender child with long legs and rather short body and medium bones may all at 10, we'll say, vary many pounds in weight, yet each be normal for his particular type of body.

It is right to try to determine whether your child is under or overweight, but don't trust to the figures in a table of averages. Take the advice of a good doctor and the result of your own observations of his physical type and condition.

And, incidentally, remember that many children grow in two directions—for a while upwards, that is, "falling and slimming," then sideways, that is, filling out.

THE STAGE

Mary Boland passed through Chicago last Monday, en route from Hollywood to New York, to resume the role she originated in "Face the Music," a musical comedy that prospered on Broadway last season. This show will be revived for a tour which may begin in Boston Nov. 15, although there are hints that it might have a première at the Apollo theater, Chicago, on that date.

"Face the Music" is a frolic that bears some resemblance to "Of Thee I Sing," although its satire is directed at corruption in municipal affairs. Its score was composed by Irving Berlin and Moss Hart. George S. Kaufman, co-librettist of "Of Thee I Sing," served as stage director of the production.

Miss Boland's last appearance in Chicago was in "The Vinegar Tree," a year ago.

Robert Henderson, actor and stage director, will succeed the late Jessie Bonstelle at the head of the Detroit Civic theater. His appointment carries out plans that had been made by Miss Bonstelle before her sudden death last week. Mr. Henderson intends to start a season of repertory drama with Miss Bonstelle's original company Nov. 11. He was the founder and director of the annual spring dramatic festivals at Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Theater Guild's production of John Lawson Howard's drama, "The Pure in Heart," will close in Cincinnati next Saturday night for revision of the manuscript. A première in New York will follow the rewriting.

Fred Stone will return to vaudeville, where his career began thirty-five years ago, at the Palace theater next Saturday. His daughter Dorothy and her husband will be associated with him in a program of characteristic songs and dances.

Daniel Frohman, veteran theatrical producer and dean of Broadway impresarios, will lecture at the Haven school, Evanston, Thursday night, Nov. 3, on "The Stage and Its Stars." His appearance is sponsored by Zeta Phi Eta, a fraternity in the school of speech at Northwestern university.

Sebald String Quartet Plays New Number

Bach Chaconne Arranged for Them.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In the course of developing a repertoire for the string quartet which bears his name, Alexander Sebald has entered the field of transcription. Some time between the date of his final concert last season and his first one at Kimball hall last night he took the Bach Chaconne, played by every violinist on earth as a solo without accompaniment, and rewrote it for the four strings of his organization, introducing it as the central item in this concert.

Mr. Sebald would therefore seem to classify among the benefactors of music, along with Mendelssohn and Schumann, who wrote piano accompaniments for the piece, and Busoni, who converted it into a piano solo. For with all its popularity among those who play the violin, a single, long, unaccompanied solo is not much more than a musical skeleton, perhaps the best articulated skeleton in the musical records, but still a skeleton. With some other voices to fill the outlines it becomes a notable figure. It is quite imaginable that now one could manage to feel some affection for it, whereas heretofore only the violinists have got up enthusiasm for its bare tones.

Mr. Sebald has done a good job with his transcription. It sounds. Unless all the portents are wrong, he has added a popular Bach item to the string quartet repertoire. For the rest of the program there were two quartets, Beethoven's opus 18, No. 1, in F, and Brahms' opus 51, No. 1, in C minor, thereby completing the list of the three Bs.

Cardinal Mundelein Gives Benediction at Home Anniversary

Cardinal Mundelein and Bishop Bernard J. Shell of the archdiocese of Chicago, yesterday participated in the 50th anniversary celebration of St. Augustine's Home for the Aged, Fullerton and Sheffield avenues, conducted by the Little Sisters of the Poor. Bishop Shell pontificated at the solemn high mass at the morning's service, with the Very Rev. Francis V. Corcoran, president of De Paul university, preaching the sermon.

At the afternoon celebration Cardinal Mundelein gave the benediction. The home is one of three in Chicago founded by the Little Sisters of the Poor. The St. Augustine's home was first located at 414 Chicago avenue, and its first hospitality was given to 20 aged women. Men were admitted in 1885. The present home was built in 1886.

The Little Sisters of the Poor are caring for 50,000 aged persons throughout the world. Among those who have received care at St. Augustine's home are many persons who once were both affluent and influential, but who have lost fortunes in depression periods.

DANDRUFF

Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get plain ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents. No matter how much dandruff you have, this simple remedy never fails.

NEW KIND OF SOAP WASHES CLOTHES WHITER

Makes washday easier, too

WOMEN everywhere are amazed to see how white the new kind of soap washes clothes. Some say linens come two to three shades whiter; and colored things come brighter, too.

According to women who have tried every type of suds, this new kind gives far more satisfactory results. For it puts new life and brightness into the wash. It gets things so white and clean-looking, it's a joy to hang them out on the line.

The whole secret seems to be in the suds. Rinso—the new kind of soap—gives lively suds that loosen dirt and make it float out. Clothes come white as snow—just by soaking. They last longer this gentle way.

This new kind of soap is very economical. A little gives a lot of rich, lasting suds. By actual test, Rinso gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Fine for dishes, too; makes grease go in a flash, yet is easy on the hands.

Try Rinso Free

If you don't use Rinso and want to try it, send a clipping of this offer with your name and address to Lever Brothers Co., Dept. T28, Cambridge, Mass. A full-sized package will be sent you without cost.

WEIGH DARROW PLEA FOR TWICE DOOMED SLAYER

High Court Again Takes Case Under Advisement

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The Illinois Supreme court today took under advisement once more the case of Russell McWilliams, twice sentenced to death for the murder of William Sayles, Rockford street car motorman, after hearing a plea made in behalf of the young killer by the veteran attorney, Clarence Darrow.

CLARENCE DARROW

In addition to declaring that Judge Arthur E. Fisher had legally erred in refusing a change of venue in the case after it was sent back to him after the first Supreme court review, Attorney Darrow discussed again the policy of sending youths to the electric chair.

Not Legally Drunk.

"In the meaning of the law," said Darrow, "this boy was not insane or drunk. What happened to him, and what happens to the youth of the land, will continue to happen until we know more about childhood. This was something stronger than liquor; it was life. This came upon him the same as typhoid fever would come; and it will come again on the youth until we know more about them. It was nature. McWilliams is the victim of that period of adolescence in the life of a boy."

State's Attorney William D. Knight denied that Judge Fisher had authority to grant a change of venue when the case was sent back to him. The status of the proceeding, he insisted, was that it was unfinished hearing.

Judge's Opinion Not Vital.

When the first death sentence was set aside, he declared, the lower court was directed to take evidence concerning the youth's character and reputation and to consider this evidence before pronouncing sentence. Because the judge, after hearing this evidence, was convinced that the death penalty should be inflicted was not a reason for reversing the lower court.

McWilliams, said the state's attorney, had asked leave to withdraw his plea of guilty only because he had not expected the death penalty when he pleaded. He was a mature man, knew what he was doing, and was afforded every opportunity to make a defense, had there been any defense, for the killing of the motorman. The state's attorney insisted that the case was one in which the death penalty was clearly indicated.

SAFE ELECTRIC WIRING URGED TO AVERT FIRES

Chicago housewives were urged to purchase safe electric cords marked by the safety label of the Underwriters' laboratories to guard against fires started by cheap and defective wiring in a statement issued yesterday by W. A. Jackson, commissioner of gas and electricity. More than 100 fires were caused last year by cheap electrical cords, Commissioner Jackson said.

"For several years," said Commissioner Jackson, "safety officials and electrical inspection authorities have been concerned by the constantly increasing number of fires and accidents for which poorly made or so-called bootleg types of cord are held responsible.

"As a result of this growing menace, officials of electrical departments in various municipalities went in an organized group to the manufacturers, and the result of our conference is that safe, well made electrical cord from now on will be identified at intervals of five feet by small, bracelet-like safety labels bearing the imprint of the Underwriters' laboratories."

COP AND SKUNK WAGE GAS DUEL; POLECAT WINS

Equipped with a shotgun, gas mask, and gas gun Policeman Henry Groh of Evanston set out yesterday to evict a skunk which had taken quarters under the garage at the rear of the home of Attorney H. R. Hurlbut, 1028 Hinman avenue, Evanston. Guided to the garage by Miss Jane Hurlbut, 19 year old Northwestern university student, Groh pumped gas into the skunk home for an hour and the skunk retaliated. At the end of that time Policeman Groh retired to the police station for further instructions. The matter was taken under advisement and an order sent out for roving police squads to keep a sharp watch for a "white striped squirrel."

WRITER DIES

F. W. O'MALLEY, FAMOUS AS SUN REPORTER, DEAD

End Comes in France, Home Since 1929.

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Frank Ward O'Malley, one of the greatest newspaper reporters of a glamorous era in New York, died today in Tours, France. He was a voluntary exile from the United States, and since 1929 he and his whole family, even his dog, lived in Europe, where, it seemed to him, life was saner than in the United States.

He was 56 years old and his death was caused by diabetes. Mrs. O'Malley and their two children, Ward and Kathleen, were with him when he died.

Not long ago he told Mrs. O'Malley that he wanted to be buried where he died, no matter where it was. He will be buried in Tours, where he had expected he and his family would spend many years.

In U. S. in September.

Only this fall he came back to the United States for one of his brief periodic visits. He sailed for "home"—Tours—on Sept. 15 from Baltimore, and as he departed at midnight he had a characteristic word for the ship news reporters.

"If anybody's interested," he said, "you can tell them I'm going back to Europe to spread American culture. I'm going over to the Riviera, where there isn't anything but scenery, and I'm going to teach those foreigners how to make their real estate holdings at least pay taxes by building hot dog stands and gas stations outside each castle, after the American fashion!"

Star on Old Sun.

"O'Malley of the Sun" was a phrase that was famous in New York of fifteen years ago. O'Malley was one of the star reporters of the old Morning Sun and his human interest stories were classics of their day and many of them remain as models for newspaper reporters today. He knew New York as few reporters knew it, and he wrote about it as few reporters have ever written.

Readers of the Sun were always able to spot an O'Malley story, whether it was signed or not. There was a quality of humor or pathos about his work that was unmistakable.

Master of Pathos.

One story in particular, out of the many great ones he wrote for the Sun, has remained through the years as an example of powerful reporting and news writing at its best. That was his interview with the mother of "Happy" Sheehan, a policeman who was murdered in Chatham square. Almost every textbook of journalism includes it today as an example of masterly handling of a story of pathos.

His story of an east side passover parade in 1917 and the finery of the duke of Essex street was another that delighted the readers of the day and is still quoted.

Found Slain in Home; Police Hunt Comrade

James Fordetta, 62 years old, habitue of Washington square at Clark and Chestnut streets and a marcher in communist parades, was found shot to death yesterday in a cottage he shared with Joseph Levecchi at the rear of 1044 North Franklin street. Levecchi was being sought by Chicago avenue police for questioning. Fordetta had been shot twice in the chest and once in the head. An inquest will be held this morning at 935 North Wells street.

BRITISH MOBILIZE WORLD AGAINST GOLD STANDARD

Seek Economic Empire of Sterling Nations.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Great Britain is planning a new economic empire to be composed of the sterling countries, which, by mutual tariff arrangements, will exclude from their markets the gold countries, notably the United States.

This was foreshadowed months ago, but the first definite move was disclosed last night, when the foreign office announced that the three Scandinavian countries and Argentina had been invited to a tariff conference in London to work out mutual preferences.

Seek to Include Russia.

It was learned today that Uruguay and Iceland also are coming, and efforts are being made to bring in the three Baltic states and even Russia, with whom a most favored nation treaty has been renounced in accordance with the British empire trade agreements reached at the recent Ottawa conference, but whose trade and friendship Britain is anxious to keep.

The idea is that all countries which have followed Britain off the gold standard and gone to sterling should combine against the gold countries, the most important of which are the United States and France. This would place the finance of all these countries under control of the Bank of England and the British treasury, which between them manage sterling currency.

U. S. Faces Heavy Loss.

America now has a large trade with the Scandinavian countries in automobiles, machinery, and similar products, but even now is suffering to the benefit of England because of exchange difficulties.

The British plan is a development of the idea suggested a year ago of an extension of the British empire to include the weaker European states under some scheme by which they would maintain nominal independence while tied to the British system.

It was suggested humorously today that Eamon de Valera's formula of an independent Irish republic inside the British empire might even be used to overcome the Monroe doctrine in cases like Argentina and Uruguay.

Canada May Face Election Over Empire Trade Pacts

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 19.—The possibility of the Canadian parliamentary fight over the British empire trade agreements precipitating the country into a general election looms large. The Liberal oppositionists continue to demand an election, and Maurice Dupre, solicitor general in the Bennett government, today announced the government's willingness to battle it out at the polls.

"We are partisans of the policy of quid pro quo," Dupre said in closing the debate this evening. "We may be wrong, we may be right. The country will decide and we are willing to go before the country in order to know who is right and who is wrong."

Would Dissolve Parliament.

The course would be for Prime Minister Bennett simply to ask the governor general to dissolve parliament, election writs would be issued, and the whole basis of empire affiliations and trade issues would immediately be thrown into the vortex of political stump controversy.

The government would stand or fall on the trade agreements, and, if defeated at the polls, would hand over office to Mackenzie King, Liberal leader. In that event the whole of the series of empire agreements, Australian, South African, New Zealand, and all the rest of them, would probably fall to the ground along with the Canadian pacts.

Foresee Bennett Defeat.

The possibility of the Bennett government being defeated in the election is considered rather great by Liberals, who point to the South Huron Liberal victory and reduced government majorities in other recent by-elections as election straws determining which way the wind is blowing. The fact is that any government would have difficulty being reelected in Canada in hard times.

Recall Russian Threats.

MOSCOW, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A dispatch from London reporting the temporary annulment of the British trade agreement with Russia was published in today's Moscow newspapers without comment, apparently having been received too late for editorial expression.

It was recalled, however, that during the imperial conference at Ottawa soviet newspapers threatened reprisals if Great Britain sought to place restrictions on Russia's purchases from Russia in accord with Canadian demands. In so many words the newspapers threatened that soviet purchases in Great Britain would be curtailed if measures were taken to keep Russian goods out of that country.

In view of the fact that the present agreement still has six months to run and the likelihood that a new understanding will be reached before that time, well informed sources here expressed the opinion that no serious breach of commercial relations between the two countries might occur.

The balance of trade between England and Russia has always been in this country's favor. Official figures show that Russia exported more than $40,000,000 in goods to Great Britain in the first eight months of this year and imported less than $34,000,000 worth from there.

SUICIDE WITH POISONED RUM.

La Salle, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Mixing poison with moonshine whisky, Anton Bassilay, 58, of Peru, ended his life after cautioning members of his family to refrain from the bottle. Financial worries were believed responsible for the act. He leaves a widow and eight children.

NEW DIRECTOR TELLS MAROON SPORTS POLICY

LOOK FOR LONG RUNS, PASSES, BY PURDUE, N. U.

It Is Easier to Score from Midfield.

Seats Sell Fast

APPLICATIONS for tickets to the Northwestern-Purdue game set a record for a single day's business at Northwestern yesterday. Nearly 3,000 were sold. There will be empty seats at game time, however, in the opinion of Athletic Director K. L. Wilson, because the early sale was far behind big games of recent years.

Among the spectators will be more than 30 high school football teams, whose coaches are anxious to have them study the Notre Dame style of play, as exemplified by Purdue, and the Warner system, presented by Northwestern.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Strange as it may seem, it's easier to score a touchdown from midfield than from the ten yard line. And Purdue and Northwestern, when they meet Saturday at Dyche stadium, intend to make touchdowns look easy.

Long runs for touchdowns are easier because of the position of the defense and the varied possibilities of attack. In midfield the secondary defense is not drawn as tight as near the goal line. The defenders must cover more territory, for the offense has more room in which to operate.

Cramps Pass Receivers.

Near the goal line, the long forward pass cannot be used. The approach to the goal not only decreases the territory in which the pass receivers may roam but the defense has all its men available. There is no expectation of a punt. There also is danger to the attack of a forward pass being incompleted over the goal line on first, second, or third down which eliminates subsequent chances to score as the ball changes hands immediately.

Which quite naturally brings up the subject of touchdown plays. There is a prevalent idea that all teams have certain plays, touchdown plays, which are used only near the enemy's goal line to shove the ball over. To a degree, this is true, for coaches reserve some plays for what is known as the scoring zone. But these plays are not necessarily and fundamentally trick plays guaranteed to fool the opposition.

They're All Touchdown Plays.

At least one coach in the Big Ten lost his job last year because he was constantly urged to show some touchdown plays and failed to satisfy. In theory all plays are touchdown plays. Notre Dame defeated the Army in 1930 by a simple off tackle dash with Schwartz carrying the ball for a touchdown gain of 56 yards.

Michigan defeated Ohio State last Saturday on two forward passes, the first from the 10 yard line and the second from the 30 yard line.

Purdue's offense has a better chance of success from midfield. Against Minnesota Carter ran around end 12 yards for a touchdown after his run around the same end, two plays before, had brought the ball to that position. Against Wisconsin Carter made Horstmann's short touchdown plunge possible by circling the end for a long gain.

N. U. Works on Blocking.

Coach Hanley this week is not preparing intricate scoring plays. Rather he is smoothing out the offense the Northwestern team now has, and the only way to make plays more effective is to sharpen up the blocking. If the interference cleans up the runner will gain.

Some runners can go on their own once they pass the line of scrimmage. In this class is Rentner, who rates as one of the most elusive ball carriers in the Big Ten. Speed, change of pace, and an excellent defensive stiff arm are Rentner's assets. Hecker and Carter of Purdue depend more on speed, although each can change direction without falling over his own feet.

Purdue and Northwestern employ considerable deception in attack. Olson made gains against Illinois' line because it frequently was deceived by

MAROON HOPES HIGH, DESPITE LOSS OF PAGE

Half Back's Ankle Likely to Keep Him on Bench.

The chances that the Maroons may have of defeating Indiana Saturday—whatever they are—took a dip yesterday when Dr. O. C. Molander, team physician on the Midway, announced that Pat Page Jr. probably will be unable to play. An X-ray of Page's injured ankle revealed no fracture, but the swelling had increased enough to keep the Maroon punting expert out of the forthcoming game.

Indications yesterday were that Coach Stagg does not intend to allow Indiana to take the play away from the Maroons. Two varsity teams worked throughout the afternoon on offensive play with Al Summers and Ed Cullen alternating at Page's full back spot. One team devoted itself to running plays, with Pete Zimmer leading the attack. The other squad flung passes right and left with some success.

Banquet for Players Tonight.

All bad news to the contrary, the Midway campus yesterday was getting itself built up for the big conference opener and the hope of a Chicago victory. Coach Stagg will banquet both the varsity and freshman teams tonight at Burton court, after which the freshman players have arranged a torchlight parade to Stagg field, where they will light themselves a bonfire.

Sanguine spirits on the campus, conceding that the Maroons have not yet been tested by conference standards, pointed to the comparative showings Chicago made against the Hoosiers in the two games played last year. In the scheduled match played in the middle of the season Indiana swamped the Maroons, 32 to 6. In the charity half game at the end of the season the Hoosiers had a hard time getting a 6 to 0 triumph.

Chicago lost the game largely because Vin Sahlin dropped the ball going over the goal line, after the Maroons had marched half the length of the field.

The Maroons now have practically the same squad as last year, plus adequate reserves, the hopeful ones point out.

How About Indiana Ends?

Less optimistic souls point first to Indiana's pair of 200 pound ends, Lyons and Dickey, who threaten to smother the Chicago flanks, where the Maroons are most vulnerable. They look also at such hope puncturing facts as Indiana's weight advantage in the line of nine pounds to the man; the passing of Sabik and Opasik; and the Hoosier performance in beating Iowa, 12 to 0, and tieing Ohio.

The extent of Chicago's improvement over last year, as yet an undetermined quantity, is the only answer to the pro-Indiana arguments and it won't be known until Saturday. Part of this improvement has been the spectacular open field running by Zimmer and the development of a throwing arm by the same gentleman.

Maroons Lead, 18 to 3.

Tradition, for what it is worth, will favor the Maroons. In the 21 times the schools have met, Chicago has won 18 times and Indiana 3 times, including the charity half-game last year. Up to last year Chicago had scored 457 points to 58 for the Hoosiers.

The Maroon defense this year has been fairly sturdy. Only one touchdown has been recorded against Chicago in three games. But Chicago has not yet faced sprinters like Jess Babb and Ivan Fuqua, Olympic middle distance star, who first came to national prominence in the Stagg prep meet of 1929.

Lester Blair, chairman of the football tickets committee, yesterday pointed out that it is still cheaper to buy season books for the four remaining home games of the Maroons, at $5.50, than to buy single seats for all four, at $1.65 a game. A crowd of 26,000 is expected Saturday.

INDIANA ON DEFENSE.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Work on defense against Chicago's flanker plays and whirlwind shift occupied Indiana university's football team this afternoon. Coach Hayes also tried to smooth out the passing attack, which is expected to be the principal form of offensive against Chicago.

CUPID, CARNEGIE WATCH HIM

Joe Kurth, Notre Dame tackle, and one of the best in the country, incidentally, will marry a school girl sweetheart in the near future, but first he has to help beat Carnegie Tech. Kurth, it is said, writes two letters every day, including Sundays and holidays, to Miss Virginia Ortlieb, 19 year old University of Wisconsin freshman.

Notre Dame 2d Team Is Fooled by Freshmen

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The Notre Dame freshman football team scored again today in scrimmage against the varsity second team. The shock troops outscored the freshmen, however.

Passes again produced the freshmen score as they completed a Carnegie Tech play for 20 yards. They scored again on a series of Tech line plays.

Mike Koken and Steve Banas got the shock troops out in front at the start of the practice with a pair of 50 yard runs. After this the freshmen tightened and stopped the varsity until Sheketski broke away for the third touchdown. Laurie Vejar directed the second team, the lineup of which was unchanged from that started against Drake last week.

AMERICAN BUYS FIRST SEATS FOR BERLIN OLYMPICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—The office of the German National Athletic association on Kurfuerstenstrasse just had a thrill that augurs well for the next four years.

The first seats for the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin were sold. An order reached the office from an American, Norman N. Rankow, who ordered seats for himself and family. Rankow also has the honor of having ordered the first seats for the Los Angeles event this year.

GIBSON SIGNS TO MANAGE PIRATES FOR 1933 SEASON

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP)—George Gibson, manager of the Pittsburgh baseball club, tonight signed a contract to continue in his job for 1933. His salary was not made public, but in baseball circles it is believed he received an increase, largely in reward for leading the Pirates into second place at the finish of the National league's pennant race.

Name Bobby Jones Atlanta Baseball Club's Receiver

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Bobby Jones, the former golf king and part owner of the Atlanta Baseball club of the Southern Association, was named temporary receiver for the club by Judge E. E. Pomeroy today. The Trust Company of Georgia, trustee for $500,000 worth of bonds of the Atlanta Baseball and Amusement corporation, which control the Crackers, filed the receivership proceedings.

Miss Virginia Ortlieb of Chilton, Wis., is studying dramatics at Wisconsin and insists when she is Mrs. Joe Kurth she will not let Mr. Kurth coach football. He must be a sports writer, she says.

Max and Garden Through, Jacobs Says, as He Sails

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, sailed tonight for Germany, where he will join the former holder of the world's heavyweight championship. Before he departed, however, he said Schmeling never again would fight for the Madison Square Garden corporation of New York.

"The Garden has never protected my fighter's financial interest," Jacobs protested. "Every time Schmeling has fought for the corporation his money is withheld, and he never gets paid until after ten days or two weeks—sometimes more.

"Furthermore, I've had nothing but headaches since the Garden started promoting the Schmeling-Walker bout. Why, I had to close the match not with one lawyer but with 14. Finally there was the ticket situation. At the last minute William F. Carey, president of the Garden, had to have some tickets for a special person, and he took mine away from me. What did I wind up with? Two seats in the third row and 148 in Montauk point."

ROSS FOR CHAMP IS A GOOD BET IF HE BEATS BAT

Stadium Bout Tomorrow Barney's Big Chance.

Barney Ross may not lick Bat Battalino at the Stadium tomorrow night, but don't let any one tell you it won't be a great scrap. Barney Ross, if you have forgotten, is just about the best young lightweight in the country. And he's chock full of ambition and ability.

Barney Ross may not win tomorrow night, but one of these days he will win a championship, for Barney has youth on his side. Each day brings Tony Canzoneri, the champion, and Battalino, the old guard, nearer the end. Barney'll be fighting when these boys are watching.

Battalino is quite a foe for young Barney. But if Ross can survive Battalino's perpetual motion fire, if he can keep his head when the going gets rough, he has an excellent chance to whip the former featherweight titleholder.

This Is Barney's Highlight.

This is Barney's most important bout. The truth of the matter is that Barney hasn't had a great amount of professional experience, at least if experience is measured only by the number of fights. Nor has he met any outstanding fighter except Ray Miller, whom he outpointed in ten rounds.

Ross' last fight in Chicago, when he knocked out Frankie Petrolle in two rounds, may be discounted. All that fight proved was that Barney can hit, which didn't need confirmation, and that Petrolle can't box and can't take it. Tony Canzoneri laid out Frankie in three rounds the other night to end the big time whirl of Billy Petrolle's younger brother.

This same Frank Petrolle is supposed to have licked the whey out of Battalino. So you can write your own ticket.

Bat Never Was Great.

Battalino never was a great featherweight, for he kept his crown by almost inhuman ability to wring off 10 to 15 pounds to meet the official requirements. Earl Mastro might have won the 126 pound title except for Bat's uncanny reducing. And Sam Plan and Art Winch might have managed that 126 pound champion. But Plan and Winch are satisfied now. They believe their boy Barney will dig up the lightweight title for the firm.

Battalino already has served to bring Billy Petrolle up to the status of challenger for Canzoneri's title. New York and Chicago saw Battalino hacked to pieces by Billy. But Chicago also saw Battalino swing on Petrolle and drop the veteran on his back in the first round of their bout here.

Ross Can Pound.

Ross carries a punch in each hand. He can hit 'em straight or hook sharply. Barney can box and he can and will step faster than shuffling Chris. Barney doesn't wind up to punch, and tomorrow night, Battalino, always wide open for short punches, will be tagged many times. The uncertainty is: Can Barney take a few punches on the chin and keep his feet? Barney's never been knocked down, and when that happens for the first time the boys frequently do queer things.

Chicago boxing, more than any one thing, needs a Chicago champion. Ross may bring a title to the loop. Just how soon he'll do it will be told tomorrow night.

Retziaff Meets Roper.

Charley Retziaff, who would have been the best heavyweight Golden Gloves ever graduated into the profession except he was counted out one night on a technicality, meets Jack Roper in the eight round semi-windup. This fight would headline almost any bill, including this one, were it not for Chicago's interest in Ross. Retziaff has been flirting with success for several years, getting better all the time despite his inability to learn how to hit with his left hand.

When Roper wants to put on pressure he can hit home runs as well as Retziaff, so in their eight rounds some one may come bounding off the carpet on the bridge of his nose.

All principals finished their ring work yesterday and will report at the commission offices tomorrow afternoon in fighting condition.

Alumni Boost Stagg as New Yale Football Coach

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 19.—It may amount to little or much, but there is now going on among the Yale alumni of Chicago a course of gossip amounting to what we newspaper boys call a "movement" which has to do with the return of Amos Alonzo Stagg to Yale as head coach of the football team of 1933.

MAL STEVENS.

There is some such talk to be heard in New York, also, but it is not very insistent, the idea seeming to be merely that the engagement of Mr. Stagg to coach the Yales more than 40 years after his leaving Yale would be a pretty tribute to him, a show of sentimental handsomeness on the Yale side, a mild rebuke to the people of Chicago who decided to unjob him, and, if not a help, then certainly no hindrance to the Yale football team.

Coaching Staff Not So Good.

The present coaching staff at Yale, of which Dr. Marvin, or Mal. Stevens is the head man, is not a very good coaching staff. The athletes who comprise the present squad are up to the usual Yale standard individually, which means that they have plenty of muscle, bone, enthusiasm and gumption, but they have not been put together into an effective team, and when that is true of such man-power, or material, as the coaches call it, the coaches must give the answer.

Yale teams usually start slowly and do not begin to gee until they come to the Army game. They almost invariably reach their highest point in the Harvard game. This year's Yale may do likewise, and they are expecting to give the Army an astonishing pushing around in the bowl at New Haven Saturday.

Of Course, It's Yale's Lookout.

Nevertheless, the Yale coaching staff is not very good. It has no intelligible ideas and a negative collective personality, and there is no doubt that many another head coach, with assistants of his own choosing, could produce better football teams than Dr. Stevens does.

However, this is intended merely as an estimate and not as a complaint, because I am not paying Dr. Stevens' wages, which I understand to be about $8,000 a year, and if he does not produce a dollar's worth of results for a dollar of pay, that is something for Mr. Yale, himself, to take steps about.

Neither am I trying to promote Mr. Stagg to Dr. Stevens' job. I am only trying to tell you about something that is pretty vague as yet, but which may become more definite and might even come to pass.

All Set for Real Drama.

The sentimental value of such a stroke as the one proposed need not be explained, because everybody who knows the way downtown must know that when Stagg went out to the new University of Chicago as athletic director and coach he was Yale's greatest athlete of the time and was a Yale missionary to the heathen. As he has always been a well behaved citizen his career has been a credit to Yale and has added to Yale's prestige during his forty some years in one job. He invented the shift [exceptions may be filed here], he produced great teams, and if Yale should now say to Chicago, "If you don't vant heem, I vant heem," that would be good American drammer.

Of course, Mr. Stagg may have gone by. The University of Chicago is not conducted by chumps, and it does seem doubtful that they would turn him loose under their local 70 year rule if he were still a first class head coach. That is something that Yale would have to consider, and no doubt will.

The incumbent athletic organization at Yale probably would not wish to see Mr. Stagg return to his alma mater. Mr. Malcolm Farmer is now the general athletic director, and after all a job is a job and Mr. Stagg, if he returned, probably would take over Mr. Farmer's job as well as Dr. Stevens' job.

What! No Beer?

Then, also there is the matter of Mr. Stagg's well known meddlesomeness about beer and the social customs of young men. You may remember reading a couple of years back that Mr. Yale, himself, had passed down the word to let the boys have all they wanted, on the theory that they certainly were not going to sit around and tell riddles for amusement. If they could get beer, then the more beer they consumed the less hootch they would be likely to absorb.

The beer policy has worked out very well, but if Mr. Stagg were to come back to Yale in a position of any influence he might throw up his hands and yell murder about the horror of it all and make every one sorry for his return. He might not understand the young Yales, although he thinks he knows all about young men.

Well, that is about as much as I can tell about the movement, as I will be so bold to call it, to bring Mr. Stagg back to Yale next year.

If he should come back he would find among his fellow members of the faculty Prof. William Lyon Phelps, an old classmate, who I believe played baseball with him on the varsity when they were very young.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY FIELDING YOST.

[As Told to Harvey Woodruff.]

MY greatest thrill as a football player was in the Lafayette-Pennsylvania game of 1896, when I played left tackle for Lafayette and we beat Penn, 6 to 4. It was the first time Pennsylvania had been beaten in three years and the first time any team had stopped the famous "guards back" attack originated by George Woodruff, Pennsylvania coach. Later in the same season Pennsylvania defeated Harvard.

Pennsylvania scored against us but failed to kick goal, so the score was 4 to 0. Then our Deerfoot Barcly got away on a 15 yard run for a touchdown and kicked goal, making the score 6 to 4. Then our problem was to keep Pennsylvania from going across again with this "guards back" battering ram.

Penn's Great Guards Make Tandem Play Effective.

Wiley Woodruff and Wharton were Penn's great guards, who headed, as interference, a tandem formation to crush our line or any other line it met. The great Overfield was at center for Penn and Jack Minds and Maurice were in the back field.

I was at tackle, where many of the attacks were directed, and they nearly killed me; at least so I thought, in trying to stop this play. The other tackle and all our boys were badly battered up, but we thought it was well worth it. I remember our rooters that night chanting, "What's the score, what's the score, 6 to 4, 6 to 4, Pennsylvania on the floor."

I won't say we were a better team, but we were an inspired team trying to stop this dreaded play, and, of course, the desire to down the unbeaten Quakers was an emotional inspiration.

Introduces "Tackles Back" to Speed Up Offense.

I first attended college at Ohio Northern, where there was no eleven; then two years at West Virginia and a year at Lafayette. Afterward I was coach at Ohio Wesleyan, where I started to use the "guards back" as I had seen it. Then it struck me that the guards, mostly big, cumbersome fellows with power, but not often with speed, might better be replaced by faster tackles and I adapted a "tackles back," which proved effective.

Dr. Harry Williams at Minnesota had a great "tackles back" offense. Director Stagg's famous "whoa back" play at Chicago also employed a tackle back on offense.

Fielding H. Yost went to University of Michigan as coach in 1901 and for four seasons the Wolverines did not lose a game. This was the time of Willie Heston and the so-called "point-a-minute" elevens. Yost became athletic director about 1921 and the head coaching position has since been filled by George Little, Tad Wieman and Harry Kipke. As athletic director Yost has built up Michigan's intramural system. Competitive sports and physical education buildings and facilities costing several million dollars have been erected under his regime from football earnings.

METCALF SEES ADVANTAGE IN ALUMNUS COACH

Remains Silent on Stagg.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ames, Ia., Oct. 19.—"Do you recommend a University of Chicago alumnus for the position of head coach of the Maroon football eleven for 1933?"

That was the question I popped point blank today at Thomas Nelson Metcalf, present director of athletics at Iowa State college who succeeds Director A. A. Stagg on the Midway next July 1.

With equal directness and with clear blue eyes looking straight at the questioner, Mr. Metcalf replied:

"I can see distinct advantages in such an appointment. If after a careful survey of the field, some Chicago alumnus should appear to have as good qualifications as some other candidate, I would favor him. There are, however, other qualifications which will be given more weight than merely being an alumnus."

Wants to Talk to Stagg.

"Is there any possibility, despite present opinion to the contrary, that Mr. Stagg might be recommended?" was the next question.

"Out of courtesy to Director Stagg, I would prefer not to answer that until I have talked to him. If it is the fixed policy of the university not to reappoint a member of the faculty after he has reached the age of 70 years, it would seem logical to me to apply this policy to the football coach, since he has regular faculty standing."

"Have you any one now in mind for the position?"

"I have not. It is my intention to make the most thorough possible survey of the field in an effort to obtain the best man for the position."

"When will this recommendation be made?"

"I hope the appointment can be made in time for the new coach to be on the ground for the spring practice session."

Metcalf Replies to Rumors.

With this basis of direct question and direct answer established, I told Mr. Metcalf frankly reports which had been given whispered rumor since his appointment. These reports were that the new Maroon athletic director was only lukewarm toward intercollegiate competition and would devote his greatest efforts toward athletics for all, or the so-called intra-mural system.

"My answer to that," replied Mr. Metcalf, "is that I am interested in a complete well rounded program of physical education. Such a program certainly includes strong varsity athletics which I consider an important incentive and stimulus to an effective program of intramurals and general recreation. Intercollegiate competition provides opportunity for the better athletes to engage in tests against men of their own ability."

Firm Against Proselyting.

From answers thus far made I told Mr. Metcalf I inferred he did not wish to discourage intercollegiate competition at the University of Chicago, which has a far smaller undergraduate body and therefore much less material from which to draw than most of its conference rivals. Then the question was put, "Do you favor stimulating Maroon athletics?"

"What do you mean by stimulating?" he asked. "If you mean going out after athletes by illegal recruiting or illegal proselyting I am against it. We want Chicago to be represented by the strongest possible teams within the rules. We want our athletic program to fit properly into the educational scheme. This means sensible schedules with natural rivals."

"Then how are you going to get, I should say interest, athletes?" I asked.

"The fine reputation of the University of Chicago as an educational institution should attract our share of athletes. Just because a boy is an athlete he should not be discriminated against, but should have equal opportunity with other students, either for self-support or partial self-support.

"The university is conducting an interesting and valuable experiment in the field of education. It is my hope that the department of physical education can make a valuable contribution to this purpose."

Here's Attitude on Jobs.

That an athlete is working his way through college is not ground for basic suspicion that he is being "helped" improperly, is a view shared by Mr. Metcalf. He draws a distinction between promises of jobs made to prep athletes before entering college, and the pointing out to them that there are possible jobs open to all students, either athletes or nonathletes, on an equal competitive basis.

There is no reason for concluding that Stagg's successor will inaugurate anything radical. His policy is more likely to be careful, as he feels his way to building up Maroon athletics, just as it has been here at Iowa State during his tenure of nine years. Iowa State is a member of the Big Six of Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Kansas Aggies. Iowa State's athletic system is well established and its finances in unusually good condition.

Mr. Metcalf will move with his family, consisting of wife, daughter, 14 years old, and son, 9 years old, to Chicago next July, when he assumes his new duties.

LONG SHOTS HAVE THEIR DAY AT HALF MILE TRACK

Nusakan Leads Failures Among Favorites.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Favorite players who have been rolling in wealth and winners since the fall racing season opened at Sportsman's Park took a most severe mauling out at the half mile track yesterday afternoon.

The choices could not gallop any faster than sorghum molasses run in January and as a result one outsider after another came bounding home finally to send the favorite players out of the gates talking to themselves.

Counterfeiters were also operating during the series of upsets. Two counterfeit $100 bills were cashed through the mutuels late in the afternoon. Track detectives, headed by John McFarland, made a number of arrests, but it had not been determined last night that the leader of the counterfeit ring has been captured.

Counterfeit $10 and $20 bills have been passed on Chicago tracks a number of times this season, but this was the first instance of bogus $100 bills showing up.

Serving Lad Pays $91.84.

The choice long shot of the day was Serving Lad, a most royally bred son of Black Servant-Lagoda, the latter a daughter of Stephan the Great. When he won the five furlongs second race in the last jump from Dr. Jillson, he paid $91.84 for a two dollar ticket.

The most disgraceful performance of all of the favorites came from Nusakan, which a few years back was one of the great sprinters of the American turf. Running among a lot of $1,000 selling platers, the cheapest band he ever faced, Nusakan was made an even money favorite. He was last in the field of nine in the 6½ furlong fourth race, beaten by nearly an eighth of a mile. The winner was Wild Child, which reeled off the distance in 1:22 1-5 and paid nearly 6 to 1 to those that backed her.

"Did He Break Down?"

When Nusakan finished so far back a noisy gentleman along the rail shouted out: "Did he break down?"

"No, he just broke all the players," shot back Sad Sam, the former bookmaker who now is trying to pick the winners.

In the best race of the day, the Grant Park Purse, which came fifth on the program, the outsider to win was Predict and the favorite to fall in this number was Full Up, which ran proudly out in front for six furlongs and then folded up and lost the decision by an eyelash in the last stride.

The series of upsets caused the stewards to frown out over their gold rimmed spectacles. They announced that Nusakan would not be allowed to start again at Sportsman's Park. A little later they announced that Jockey M. Dupuy and M. Harrison each had been suspended for five days for rough riding.

A Big Day for Stewards.

That's quite a big afternoon's work for the stewards. But maybe the players were a bit off in their calculations.

There was nothing in the dope book that could make Predict a 10 to 1 shot in the Grant park purse and Full Up an even money choice.

Full Up had quit in an earlier start here and was beaten in the final strides, while Predict had won his last start over the course and was coming from behind like the wind when he did it.

That's exactly what happened in the Grant Park. Full Up led all the way and quit. Predict came from behind and got the nod of the judges after his game rally.

Even Sad Sam came to the conclusion that his figures had told him a falsehood.

BRICKIES TO PLAY HOME GAMES AT MILLS STADIUM

All home games of the Bricklayers, winners last year of the western championship of the National Soccer league, will be played at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, it was announced yesterday. The Bricklayers will play their first game on the new home grounds against the McDuffs Sunday afternoon.

Two National league games will be played Sunday. The undefeated Maccabee All-Stars will meet the Olympias at Kuppenheimer stadium, 18th and Kilpatrick avenue. The Spartas will battle the Jugo-Slavs at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue.

A LA CARTE IS EASY WINNER IN EMPIRE FEATURE

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—A la Carte of the B. B. stable, capably handled by Jockey Walls, won the Ardsley claiming stakes at a mile and seventy yards at Empire City today. Rubio forced the pace to finish second, four lengths back and a length in front of Moine. Lullaby II and Stormy Dawn completed the field.

A La Carte rushed into the lead at the first turn and increased his advantage through the backstretch. Rubio moved into the second with Moine a length back.

They maintained this order on the lower turn. Walls held A La Carte under restraint and finished pulled up. Rubio and Moine staged a long stretch battle for the place, but the former held on under pressure. The winner was the favorite and closed at 3 to 5. The time was 1:46 2-5.

One of the smallest crowds of the meeting witnessed the race, which was contested under the most adverse conditions. The track was ankle deep in mud and a drizzling rain fell all afternoon.

KIPKE CONFINES MICHIGAN DRILL TO PASSING TEST

Petoskey Works Again at Full Back Post.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Rehearsal of the Michigan offensive program, apparently with the idea of thoroughly familiarizing Ted Petoskey with his new assignment at full back, again occupied the university football squad on South Ferry field today. This time the squad worked on nothing but passes, however, every available passer trying his hand at the throwing game and every man who has shown enough to warrant his being given a chance against Illinois next Saturday being employed.

Petoskey's use at full back for the second successive day indicates that Kipke quite definitely wants him there and is willing to sacrifice strength at end to keep him in the back field. Ward is the logical choice for left end, but the condition of his leg may preclude the possibility of his playing Saturday, and there is some question as to whether Cox can satisfactorily fill the assignment over the route. Cox may work on a part time basis, with Petoskey at end over the remainder of the 60 minutes. Regeczi then will move back to full and Westover will go in at half.

Removal of Fay and Heston from the picture places Herman Everhardus on the top rung among half backs. Everhardus' competition has been with Heston, and, with the latter out, he may turn in the same brilliant football he showed against Wisconsin last season. That performance also came with Heston out.

ILLINOIS SOPHOMORES STAR.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—With two varsity teams alternating at smashing the front line of a stubborn freshman squad, the Illinois football team went through one of the most encouraging and hardest offensive drills of the season today before the freshmen had their turn at carrying the ball from Michigan formations.

Frank Froschauer, Jack Craven Zeke Seamans, and Al Adams, sophomore half backs, were brilliant in the workout. Pete Yanuskus, Herman Walser, Capt. Gil Berry and Dave Cook were hard pushed to come up to the pace set by their younger team mates.

John Fisher and Casey Straw worked with Ivan Schustek and Paul Born on the ends. Straw is a veteran of last year who is just now regaining form. Chuck Bennis was again at center after a brief trial at end. Gordon Bailey was at guard with Hal Petty, Augie Kowalski and George Abraham. Harry Palmer, Bob May, Red Gragg, and Bart Cummings were the tackles.

OHIO WORKS ON DEFENSE.

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Ohio State today changed its football practice plans for the week and spent the afternoon drilling on offense with no attention paid to defense. Scrimmage was to have been held today, but the varsity drilled on old and new plays, working on them in a dummy scrimmage with the reserves.

Coach Sam Willaman plans several shifts in the Buckeye team, both in the line and in the backfield. Today in the backfield there was only one player who stayed at his position throughout the practice, and that was Carroll at right half. Hinchman and Keefe worked out at left half, Wetzel and Vuchinich at full back, and Oliphant and Cramer at quarter back.

BADGERS GET SHAKEUP.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's first and second football teams were merged today during another two hour session of scrimmage. Many players who thus far have been considered as necessary parts of the first team, were left on the side lines, Charles Goldenberg, one of the three men sent to the second team yesterday, was restored to the first team for a portion of the scrimmage today.

PITT STRESSES OFFENSE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Pitt today endeavored to iron out rough spots in its attack for the game with Ohio State Saturday.

Coach Jock Sutherland used the same combination today that played most of the game against Army last week. When the Pitt Panthers were trounced, 16 to 7, by Ohio two years ago, overconfidence was blamed.

This year every Pitt player expects a real fight, one that will decide whether they will be able to battle Notre Dame on equal terms the following Saturday.

McCann, White Tie for Lead in Billiard Tourney

Joe McCann of Detroit went into a tie for first place with Maj. White of Chicago in the Central division No. 2 pocket billiard tournament at Bensinger's Randolph room yesterday when he defeated Cowboy Weston, 100 to 50. In the other game Al Miller, Racine, Wis., defeated William Pettifer, 100 to 58. It was Pettifer's fifth defeat.

In the Central division No. 1 tourney at the Kleckhefer Recreation, Pasquale Natalie stifled Augie Kleckhefer's chances for victory by winning, 100 to 47, in 16 innings. Natalie leads the standing with four won and none lost. Leo Imolati, Omaha, nosed out Henry Kilgore, Chicago, 100 to 89, in the second game.

Two games will be played this afternoon and evening at both rooms.

JULIAN BEATS NUSS.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Coy Julian of Springfield, Ill., defeated George Nuss of Kansas City in the pocket billiards tournament in the southern section of the eastern division by a score of 100 to 35 today, after Nuss had won his first three games.

Julian required only 13 innings to complete his string and his high run of 51 was better than Nuss' total.

Jimmy Thompson of Tampa, Fla. won from L. A. Hacker of St. Louis, 100 to 33, in a 12 inning match. Thompson had the high run of 33.

Capt. Hass of Minnesota Out of Iowa Game

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The Minnesota football squad today was faced with the possibility of starting the Iowa game at Iowa City Saturday afternoon without the services of its captain and star half back, Walt Hass.

Hass was on the crippled list today nursing a severe aggravation to charley horse. He was clipped by one of his own men in a dummy scrimmage and today his leg was so sore that he could hardly walk.

Apprised of the injury, Coach Bernie Bierman immediately went to work on Proffitt, a sophomore, as a substitute for his captain. Proffit lacks experience but is the outstanding second string back on the squad.

Frank Larson remained at left end today in place of Tenner as the Gophers confined their drill on a rain-soaked field to a dummy scrimmage. That was the only change in the varsity lineup, Manders returning to full back.

The Gophers went through an intensive blocking drill before today's session got under way, but the boys still are far below Bierman's expectations in this branch.

IOWA SCRIMMAGES.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—George Teyro, quarter back; Herman Schneidman and Laws, half backs, and Bernard Page, full back, were in the first string back field for Iowa today after Coach Ossie Solem had juggled his ball carrying combination throughout the week.

Another hard scrimmage marked preparation for the Minnesota game, during which Leo Samuelson, first string tackle, turned an ankle. Don Dorsey, a sophomore, replaced him, but Samuelson is expected to start Saturday.

Solem indicated he would continue scrimmages through Thursday. He is dissatisfied with the team's offensive.

INJURY TAKES MARQUETTE U.'S BEST PUNTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 19.—Disheartening news for Marquette university football followers came from the Golden Avalanche camp today with the announcement that Walter Plewe, the star punter from Delavan, Wis., will not be able to play against Boston college in the intersectional game here Saturday.

Plewe, whose kicking kept Wisconsin and Creighton teams in continual trouble, suffered a shoulder injury in practice yesterday, but it wasn't until today, after X-ray pictures had been taken, that information concerning his disability was broadcast.

Wayland Becker, as a result, will be called back from his position at end to do Marquette's kicking whenever occasion demands in the clash with the easterners. Becker is able to get distance on his kicks, sailing them even farther than Plewe, but he lacks the ability to place them near the sidelines.

STOCK CARS TO FEATURE RACES AT EVANSTON

The rivalry among Virgil Livingood, Chicago's leading stock car race driver; Forest Hart of Dayton, and Emil Andres of Evanston, will be renewed Sunday at the Evanston Motor speedway, Lincoln and Devon avenues. Glen Smith of Midland, O., who already has scored 30 points in the midwestern stock car title race, also is entered in the race.

The races Sunday will be at 20 laps for the qualifying events, with the championship event at 40 laps. Twelve cars will be allowed to start.

Art Foley, Carl Young to Race at Calumet Bowl

Art Foley, winner of the feature race at Roby last week, in which Art Placky of Waukegan lost his life, will race Sunday at the new Calumet speed bowl, 169th street and Torrence avenue. Several other Chicago drivers will compete, including Carl Young. The complete program of distances will be decided at a meeting tonight of Jack Leech, the speed bowl manager, and representatives of the Race Drivers' association.

Navy Tries 1931 Plebe Star as Quarter Back

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Bill Clark, plebe quarter back of last year, today got a tryout at quarter back on the varsity football team of the Naval academy. It was one of the shifts tried by Coach Rip Miller for a team to face Princeton on Saturday. The entire Navy squad went through scrimmage against Princeton formations.

Western Teachers to Meet Three Undefeated Elevens

Macomb, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Western State Teachers college, undefeated in Little Nineteen competition this year, will meet three undefeated teams on successive week-ends. They are, in order: Augustana, Normal university, and Shurtleff. All are homecoming engagements.

COLLEGE SOCCER.

In the Wake of the News

FOOTBALL BETTING.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 19.—Betting on football games does not prevail among undergraduates to the extent that it did 25 and 30 years ago. Then it was considered a test of college loyalty to wager on the home eleven against the opposition, even to the extent of the monthly allowance from dad.

GEORGE HUFF.

We remember on one occasion when a Wisconsin fraternity telegraphed their brothers at Ann Arbor: "Will bet $300 Wisconsin beats Michigan Saturday." Came the reply: "Accepted, and will bet $300 more you lose the first bet." And the answer from Madison: "Accepted. Come to the fraternity house for dinner after game if you are short of money to get home." That was supposed to indicate great college spirit. Wagering was almost universal among undergraduates who had any loose change.

In recent years the practice has died away, although there still are sporadic wagers. Several colleges, notably Illinois, with Director George Huff, loved and respected by all students and alumni, as spokesman, appealed to students to refrain from wagering on college contests because he thought such action was harmful both to the sport of football and to intercollegiate relations. Other colleges followed this lead. Student publications decried the practice.

In those olden days the lobby of the leading hotel in a college town was crowded on the day of a game with visiting speculators and home eleven sympathizers. It was almost like a scene on the stock exchange or board of trade as the various "traders" sought or asked odds to secure the best price. The Park hotel in Madison was always an exciting spot, as Wisconsin adherents of those days were notable betters.

Here in the west we seldom hear of many heavy wagers on football contests like those between members of the stock exchange in New York whose collegiate affiliations often are Yale, Harvard, or Princeton. There are many smaller individual wagers between friends, and an increasing number of hat pools under varying conditions, often on the point score basis.

Amherst in Spotlight.

Amherst alumni in Chicago, of whom there are more than one might think, are enthusiastic enough to write this column concerning this fall's football eleven. Apparently there is a new spirit at the small New England college. The team is coached by Lloyd Jordan, one time captain at Pittsburgh under the Pop Warner régime and until last year Andy Kerr's assistant at Colgate.

Amherst has won three and lost one to date. Victories were over Colby, 13-6; Union, 12-0; Hamilton, 13-0. The lone defeat was by Princeton, 22-0. Amherst's fondest hope is to down Williams, its time honored rival of the so-called "Little Three." Williams won last fall, 33 to 7, but is not going as strongly this year.

MINERALITES TO FACE WAGNERS ON ALLEYS TONIGHT

Tonight's schedule in the Randolph Bowling league will bring together the Mineralites and the Wagner and Hanson team in what promises to be the outstanding match. The Mineralites hold a five game lead in the league, but face a team which last year won three straight from the present first place bowlers.

The second place Mell-O-Ice Cream squad meets the strong Burlingtons, a first division team.

In the individual averages Wright leads with 215, while Bach and Collier are tied for second place with 208. Other leaders follow: Reilly, 207; Boyle, 206; Klinger, 203; Geiser, 200; Traubinek, 200; Rusch, 200; Fliger, 200.

Tonight's schedule:

7 o'Clock Squad.

Walter Birk Candy vs. John Ruskin.
Continental Illinois bank vs. None Such.
Old Heidelberg vs. Mason's Peaks.
Mineralites vs. Wagner and Hanson.

9 o'Clock Squad.

First National bank vs. Bowlers' Journal.
Burlington vs. Mell-O-Ice Cream.
Chesterfield Tailors vs. Kallisdidit.
Live Stock Press vs. W. P. Mussey.

The standings follow:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Mineralite	12	0	Cont. Ill. bank	5	7
Mell-O-Ice Cream	7	2	First National	5	7
None Such	9	3	L. S. Press	4	8

N. U., Purdue Plan Lengthy Runs, Passes

his fakes to the half backs and the line was drawn out of position. Horstmann of Purdue gains best when he uses a spinner, faking the ball to the half backs. Both must depend on their linemen to open holes, but the work of the linemen is made easier if the opposition falls to charge aggressively, or is drawn in the direction of the fake.

Saturday's game is the football fans' best bargain in Chicago this season. It brings together two excellent teams, well balanced and, more particularly, two different offensive systems of play. Forty-two thousand seats are available. There has been no reduction in price, which remains at $3.30, except for children, who will be admitted for 55 cents.

Purdue will stake its undefeated record, while Northwestern will fight to remain one step behind the leaders. Indiana, although tied by Ohio State, will remain in the van if it whips the Chicago eleven, while Michigan expects to keep its victorious pace by licking Illinois.

PURVIS IN MOORE'S PLACE.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Purdue's right half back situation became an increasingly perplexing problem today as the Boilermakers continued their preparation for the game with Northwestern at Evanston Saturday.

Although Duane Purvis, sophomore, who has shared the right half back position with Doxie Moore, stands ready to start the game, the loss of Moore with a fractured collar bone has complicated the reserve situation. Vernon (Beany) Craig and William Riblet, sophomores, who tip the scales at around 165 pounds, are being groomed as replacements, but lack size and experience.

Build Defense for Olson.

The eleven that Purdue intends to start against Northwestern was given its first taste of scrimmage this afternoon. Emphasis was on a defense to stop the smashes of Ollie Olson.

Coach Kizer indicated that he would start the same back field against Northwestern that launched the Wisconsin game, with Fred Hecker and Duane Purvis at half backs; Roy Horstmann at full back, and Paul Pardonner at quarter back.

Purdue's original allotment of tickets for the game was exhausted this afternoon, but a new shipment was due from Northwestern to go on sale in the morning.

MICHIGAN STATE GAINS NEW LIFE FOR FORDHAM

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Special]—Hope that Michigan State will conquer Fordham in New York Saturday is aroused by the team's showing in practice this week, particularly in the final scrimmage today.

Coach Jimmy Crowley indicated that the starting lineup might be determined largely by today's drill. He has been experimenting with the huddle, abandoned last year, and indicated that both systems might be used against Fordham.

Teriak, Handy, Ferari and Buss, first string linemen, have injuries that may keep them out of Saturday's lineup, but Bernard McNutt, full back, whose shoulder injury has kept him on the sidelines most of the season, will be available

Meet Mr. G. Smith, 125 Pounds of Football Dynamite

The smallest regular football player in the Little Nineteen conference is Gordon Smith, left half back of the North Central college team at Naperville, a sophomore, who weighs only 125 pounds. He has been one of the most consistent performers in the conference for the last two seasons, and his work against the heaviest lines has been outstanding.

GORDON SMITH.

Last year he made runs of 45 and 30 yards from scrimmage against Lake Forest, ran two punts back for 30 yards apiece, and scored three touchdowns in the Wheaton game after runs of 55, 35 and 10 yards, besides gaining 40 yards on returning three punts. Against De Kalb, Smith made one run of 65 yards and on another occasion dashed 30 yards.

This year he has been the mainstay of the Cardinal attack and, although the team has not been as powerful as the one a year ago, Smith has been the same threat to rival elevens. In the Shurtleff game at Alton he gained more ground than any of the other backs, while last week against Wheaton he returned a punt 35 yards in the last two minutes of the game to start the rally which resulted in the first conference victory of the year for the Naperville school.

Smith, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Aurora, Ill., played basketball on the freshman team at North Central last year and was the regular shortstop on the baseball team, finishing second in hitting.

In his high school days Smith was a lightweight football star at West Aurora and later captained the championship basketball team.

An A student in high school, Smith completed his course there, worked a year, and, while maintaining a B average in his second year in college, celebrated his 18th birthday two weeks ago.

EXPECT 5,000 TO WATCH MILLIKIN MEET WESLEYAN

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—At least five thousand will see the homecoming game here Saturday between Illinois Wesleyan and James Millikin university. It is expected to be the largest crowd ever to witness a Wesleyan football game and to set the attendance record for the Little Nineteen conference this fall. Both teams are undefeated in the conference and the loser will be out of the running for the state championship. Millikin has not lost a game this season, defeating Butler, Crane Junior, and others, as well as tying Ripon, 0 to 0.

Wesleyan and Millikin resume a feud which originated in 1904. Since that time Millikin teams have amassed a total of 220 points to Wesleyan's 171. Since the organization of the Little Nineteen conference in 1912 Millikin has enjoyed an edge in victories. Wesleyan hasn't defeated Millikin since 1926, although there have been several ties.

Coach Elliott of Wesleyan continued experimenting today and moved Warner, a Lawrenceville boy, from the third team to first string half back.

BEARS CONQUER BROOKLYN, 13-0, IN CHARITY GAME

Intercepted Passes Bring Both Touchdowns.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Two intercepted passes enabled the Chicago Bears to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers in a charity exhibition football game tonight, 13 to 0. National league standings are not affected.

Luke Johnsos, in the first quarter, and Bill Hewitt in the fourth, intercepted laterals by Benny Friedman to score. Paul Franklin place kicked an extra point after Hewitt's 40 yard run to the goal.

More than 20,000 See Game.

More than 20,000 paid $10,815 to see the game. The net receipts were shared by three Cleveland charities.

Red Grange, although still suffering from a shoulder injury incurred in a game against the Packers ten days ago, appeared for the Bears for a short time because he had been advertised in advance as a co-attraction with Benny Friedman, captain of the Brooklyn eleven. Grange carried the ball twice, being stopped once for no gain and making a yard in the other attempt at the line.

Friedman Uses Passes.

Friedman played the first and fourth periods. He attempted seven forward passes, one of which, to Ray Novotny, was completed for a gain of 22 yards.

Bronko Nagurski led the Bear backs in yards gained with effective thrusts at the line.

TO REST TODAY

The Bears will arrive this morning from Cleveland. They will dispense with practice today.

However, tomorrow practice will start at 3:30 o'clock in preparation for the fifth game of the National league season with Staten Island at Wrigley field Sunday afternoon.

Johnny Sisk, who played the major part of the game with the Packers in Red Grange's left half back position, carried the ball six times from scrimmage for a total yardage of 23 or an average of about 3.8 yards. That just about clinches a steady job for the former Marquette university star.

LORENZ QUINTET WINS TWO; ADDS TO BOWLING LEAD

The Lorenz Knitting Mills team, with a 2,966 total, increased its lead in the Classic Bowling league to two games last night by winning two from the Baby Ruths while the De Barry Insurance five was losing a pair to the Moulding-Brownells.

The S. & L. Motors, with a high game score of 1,154, turned in a 3,188 total against the Edelweiss to sweep the series. Harry Klatt, with a 666 score, was high individual. Led by Jerry Peck, who had a 740 series, the A. J. Cermaks took three straight from the Olive Cans.

Waas and Schroeder, with a 3,152 total and a 1,107 game, won the odd game from the Green Rivers. Wally Freitag shot a 716 for the series.

Wilberforce to Play Lincoln Here Saturday

Football teams of Wilberforce university of Xenia, O., and Lincoln university of Jefferson City, Mo., Negro schools, will play at the American Giants' baseball park, 39th street and Wentworth avenue, Saturday afternoon.

Basketball Is Still Too Costly for Medill High

Basketball will not be resumed at Medill High school this winter, Sam Center, gymnastic instructor, who formerly coached the squad, announced yesterday. Center denied reports that Medill would compete in the Chicago Public High school league race after having dropped basketball last winter because of economical conditions.

"Conditions are still the same at Medill," Center said.

Tilden Tech, which is leading the public high school soccer race, will meet Crane Tech at Sherman park Saturday. Harrison Tech will play Schurz at Douglas park in another contest.

Ten boxing bouts will be held in the Loyola Academy-St. Philip dual meet at St. Philip gymnasium tomorrow night. Joe Lutkus, St. Philip 130 pounder, will meet Don Swoford, Loyola, in one of the bouts.

Hyde Park will meet the Englewood eleven Saturday at Normal park with three of its regulars on the sidelines. The trio, Earl Saldon, tackle; Leon Meyers, end, and Bud Lovell, full back, have been declared ineligible because of scholastic difficulties.

Phil Burling, Oak Park's star full back, who was injured last week, will be able to play against Evanston on Oct. 29, Coach Glenn Holmes said yesterday. Both Oak Park and Evanston drew byes in Saturday's Suburban league schedule.

Forty candidates reported to Coach Jim Tortorelli yesterday for the first heavyweight basketball practice at Tuley. More than 70 are seeking places on the lightweight team.

Steele Meets De Vito on Mat Card Tonight

Ray Steele will step into the Coliseum ring tonight for a finish battle against Joe DeVito.

Although DeVito has appeared here only a few times, he has made a reputation in other parts of the country and is considered capable of extending Steele. He claims victories over Joe Malcewicz and Henri DeGlane.

The rivals' weights are about even, with the Californian slightly taller. They will come in around 210 pounds. Ray hopes to advance nearer a return match with Jim Londos by trouncing DeVito tonight. He engaged in a draw with Londos a few months ago in Los Angeles.

Joe Stecher encounters his toughest opponent to date in Hans Kampfer. They meet in the semi-windup.

A match between Cliff Olson, formerly of the University of Minnesota, and Paul Harper, Southern Methodist university star, furnishes the collegiate atmosphere. It is Olson's first appearance here. He has won nine matches in a row since turning professional.

Wee Willie Davis of Virginia, takes on Joe Cox of Ohio, and Stanislaus Lurik, north side druggist, clashes with Joe Hubka of Dodge, Neb. The latter is a protégé of Stecher and is making his initial showing here. He is a Bohemian and replaced Jack Carter of Wyoming as the Chicagoan's opponent.

FIVE DE PAUL PLAYERS RETURN FOR ST. MARY'S

Only one player was missing from the De Paul football squad yesterday. He was Eddie O'Brien, half back, whose leg was injured in the Ripon game. O'Brien, however, is expected to be in shape for the trip to Winona, Minn., where De Paul will meet St. Mary's Sunday.

Five members of the squad who had suffered injuries reported back in uniform yesterday. They included Capt. Matty Steffen and Bill Oldani, half backs; Bert Lannon, center, and Johnny Sexton and Benny Reed, guards. They were kept out of last Saturday's game to recuperate for the struggle that is anticipated with St. Mary's. The Minnesota team has lost only one game this season.

Coaches Jim Kelly and Ben Connors sent the De Paul team through a long signal drill and announced a scrimmage for today against St. Mary's plays.

MRS. GLESSNER, SOCIAL LEADER 60 YEARS, DIES

Lived in Prairie Avenue Mansion Half Century.

Mrs. Frances Glessner, a leader in Chicago social circles for nearly 60 years, died yesterday in the family mansion at 1800 Prairie avenue, which had been her home for half a century. She was 84 years old. Mrs. Glessner had returned Tuesday with her husband, John J. Glessner, from their summer home in New Hampshire. Mr. Glessner is a director and official of the International Harvester company.

A lover and supporter of art, literature and music, Mrs. Glessner retired from active social life more than two years ago when her health failed seriously. Until that time she had conducted the Monday Morning Reading club in her home for 50 years. A personal friend of Theodore Thomas, founder of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and of Frederick Stock, the present leader, she was one of the most regular in attendance at the concerts and once each year entertained the members of the orchestra in her home.

Comes to City as Bride.

Mrs. Glessner was born in Springfield, O., and was educated at the Oxford Ohio Female college. She and Mr. Glessner were married Dec. 7, 1870, and came to Chicago immediately. Twelve years later they moved into the granite home built as the last work of Henry A. Richardson of Boston, conceded to be one of the greatest architects in America.

The house was built at Prairie avenue and 18th street, then the center of Chicago social life. Within a radius of two or three blocks lived many of the Glessners' personal friends, among them Mrs. H. O. Stone, the George M. Pullmans, the W. W. Kimballs, Byron L. Smith, the Marshall Fields, the Hugh McBirneys, Philo A. Otis, Thomas Murdock, T. B. Blackstone, the elder Philip Armours, Wirt Dexter, and Dr. Frank Billings.

The Glessners are among the last of the families that remained in the neighborhood despite the advances of business. Across the corner, where once stood the home of George M. Pullman, is now a vacant lot. The Kimball property directly across the street now houses the Architects' club, and next door to the Glessner home a window sign advertises rooms for rent. Most of their old neighbors —of their generation—are dead.

Gives Home to Architects.

The Glessner residence was presented to the Illinois Institute of Architects in 1924 by Mr. Glessner, but he reserved the right to use it as his residence until his death. In making the gift he made but one condition, that the house be "used to develop and encourage appreciation of good architecture on the part of the public and to afford opportunity for the training of young men to attain excellence in this profession."

The Glessners' summer home, which they have occupied five or six months each year, is the Rocks, near Littleton in the White mountains.

Besides her husband Mrs. Glessner is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Frances G. Lee of Chicago, and by several grandchildren. A son, J. G. M. Glessner, died several years ago. In memory of Mrs. Glessner the Chicago Symphony orchestra will play the Bach "Chorals-Prelude" in addition to the regular program this afternoon and Saturday night.

The funeral plans were not completed last night.

ARTHUR FRIEDHEIM, PIANIST, COMPOSER, DIES IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Arthur Friedheim, noted concert pianist, conductor, composer and teacher of music and a pupil of Franz Liszt, the famous composer, died today at his home on Riverside drive after an illness of two weeks. He would have been 73 years old on Oct. 26.

Mr. Friedham, a native of Petrograd, Russia, was regarded for many years as one of the outstanding exponents of Liszt's music.

Mr. Friedheim toured most of Europe and North America as a concert pianist. He played in Italy and Egypt during his years with Liszt and the succeeding years found him on tours through Germany, France, Russia, England and Rumania.

He was a teacher at the Chicago Musical college from 1898 to 1900 and at the Manchester Royal College of Music from 1902 to 1904.

Mr. Friedheim's compositions include a three act opera, "Alander and Thais," which was produced in Cologne in 1904 and at Leipzig in 1906, and a piano concerto in B flat major.

Shope Kriete, Kenilworth Boy Scout, Dies Suddenly

Shope Kriete, 16 years old, a grandson of the late Simeon B. Shope, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, died early yesterday of heart disease following an attack of indigestion, in his home at 325 Oxford road, Kenilworth. Attorney George H. Kriete, father of the boy, said his son planned to attend a Boy Scout meeting Tuesday evening, but complained of feeling ill. His condition became worse early in the morning and he died before a physician could reach the house.

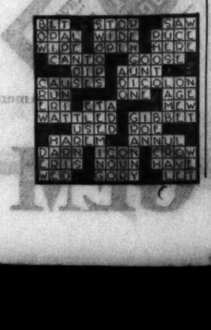
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



GARRISON, ONCE WAR SECRETARY, DIES IN JERSEY

Served Wilson Until They Quarreled.

Seabright, N. J., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Lindley M. Garrison, a well known member of the American bar and secretary of war in the cabinet of President Woodrow Wilson from March 5, 1913, to Feb. 10, 1916, died late today in his home here after a long illness.

The nurse at the house would not state the nature of the ailment that had caused his death. Mr. Garrison was a widower and left no children.

Lindley Miller Garrison was best known as secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet. He also was prominent in New York after the war as receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, later reorganized into the present B. M. T.

Born in New Jersey.

He was born in Camden, N. J., on Nov. 28, 1864, the son of the Rev. Joseph Fitsian Garrison, and was descended from old American families. He attended Harvard as a special student for a year and went to the University of Pennsylvania, where he received his degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1885.

In 1888 he was admitted to the bar in New Jersey. He practiced with increasing success in Camden until late in 1899 and the next year founded the firm of Garrison, McManus & Enright in Jersey City.

In 1905 Mr. Garrison went on the bench as vice chancellor. Chancellor Garrison was called from that post by President Wilson at the suggestion of Mr. Wilson's secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, to be secretary of war.

Mr. Garrison's abilities were so marked that he soon won the reputation of being one of the ablest men in the cabinet. He had the task of strengthening the national defense at a time when much of the world was at war and it was recognized that the United States might eventually be drawn in.

Breaks with Wilson.

Secretary Garrison and President Wilson were in accord on the necessity for greatly increasing the nation's military strength, but they came to a vital difference on methods and this difference resulted in Mr. Garrison's resigning early in 1916. Secretary Garrison advocated a "continental army" plan. This provided for a regular army of 140,000 men, a National Guard of 130,000 men, and a reserve to be called the continental army of 400,000, distinct from the National Guard and with a six year enlistment term.

Members of the continental army would be required to drill two months each year for the first three years, drawing regular army pay while with the colors, and would be subject to call within or outside the borders of the United States at any time in the entire six years.

This plan had the approval of leading army officers and was favored at first by President Wilson. The house military affairs committee, however, believed the public would not approve the plan and backed a proposal to depend for the army reserve on a partly federalized National Guard.

Secretary Garrison regarded this plan as ineffectual and as giving a false sense of security, but President Wilson refused to oppose it.

In a letter to President Wilson shortly before his resignation Secretary Garrison declared it was unsafe for the nation to "rely upon a military force that it does not raise, that it does not officer, that it does not train, and that it does not control."

MRS. N. H. BOLOTIN, WORKER FOR 20 CHARITIES, DEAD

Mrs. Anna Bolotin, 62 years old, 2633 North Spaulding avenue, an active worker in twenty charitable organizations on the west side, died in her home late yesterday of heart disease.

She is survived by her husband, N. H. Bolotin, and four children, Sidney, Benjamin, Bertha and Ruth Bolotin.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. from the Hebrew Theological college, South St. Louis avenue and Douglas boulevard. Interment will be in Waldheim cemetery, Forest Park. A delegate from each of the twenty charity organizations will attend the funeral.

MRS. ANNA ALLEN, 97, IS DEAD; BORN IN LAKE COUNTY

Mrs. Anna Allen, 97 years old, one of the first white children born in Lake county, died Tuesday night at Los Angeles, friends in Waukegan learned yesterday. She had lived on the west coast since 1920.

Mrs. Allen was born in Warren township, five miles west of Waukegan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jenkins, pioneer settlers. In 1882 she became the wife of Obed Allen. A year later they built the Gages Lake hotel, which for years afterward was a popular gathering place for prominent Chicagoans.

Surviving Mrs. Allen is a stepdaughter, Miss Bernice Allen, a teacher in Los Angeles. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in the Warren cemetery chapel.

Mrs. Minnie Warner, Old Chicago Resident, Dies

Mrs. Minnie Stearns Warner, 80 years old, of 118 Home avenue, Oak Park, died last night. She was an old resident of Chicago and Oak Park. Mrs. Warner was born in Rockford, Ill., and came to Chicago in 1868. With her husband, William C. Warner, now dead, she went through the Chicago fire. He was a prominent merchant, Mason, and founder of the Oak Park club. Surviving Mrs. Warner is a daughter, Mrs. Le Roy J. Zorn. Funeral services will be announced later.

RULING FORCES U. S. SEIZURE OF FARM CO-OPS

Court Holds They're Corporations.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati has handed down a ruling that coöperative marketing associations may be adjudged bankrupt under federal laws.

Among other things the court said this:

"There is nothing broadly eleemosynary in coöperative associations. They simply represent a banding together of producers for their common good and the motive of each is pecuniary gain."

In other words, there isn't any fundamental difference between a corporation and a coöperative. One has head and feet and the other has wings and tail, but they both travel toward the same goal. The aim of each is to make a profit.

Cheers Board of Trade.

This decision at Cincinnati was regarded as a cheerful bit of news among members of the Chicago Board of Trade, because of the decision arrived at by a special federal commission that the board of trade should be suspended as a contract market for sixty days as a penalty for refusing to admit the Farmers' National Grain corporation, farm board coöperative, to clearing house privileges. The board of trade has taken an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and the hearing is scheduled for tomorrow.

The board of trade in refusing clearing house membership to the Farmers' National declared that the coöperative was a corporation and as such was automatically barred by the board's by laws.

Advanced $400,000 by U. S.

In this case the farm board pledged a credit of $700,000 to the Ohio Farmers' Coöperative Milk association in the fall of 1929, advancing $400,000 immediately, on the approval of W. F. Schilling, dairy member of the farm board.

When the balance of the credit was refused later, on the ground that investigation had shown the loan to be unsafe, the Ohio Farmers protested that their credit had been injured.

The coöperative had already paid farmer members partially in scrip for milk delivered to cover costs of operating a retail plant in competition with local dairies during a milk price war.

When the plant was shown to be insolvent the farm board stepped in and took the physical assets to satisfy the farm board loan, thus leaving the farmers they had set out to aid with worthless scrip on their hands. The plant now operates under a receiver appointed by the courts for the farm board.

If the Cincinnati decision is upheld, not only will coöperatives be on the same basis legally as corporations but the farm board will have to step in and deprive the farmers of their property whenever a federal loan is in danger.

Applies to Grain Corporation.

This applies to the sixteen millions lent to the Farmers' National Grain corporation on warehouses, grain elevators, etc., as well as to the cherry growers of Michigan and Wisconsin, the vineyardists of California or the cotton planters of the south.

In time, Uncle Sam may yet be ginning cotton, squeezing grape juice, and selling his services as a grain broker, direct.

There is also this to consider. The value of the properties depend almost entirely on earnings and earnings depend upon farmer patronage. Once deprived of ownership of the facilities, farmers would not patronize the farm board controlled concerns. This was demonstrated in the case of the Ohio Farmers whose membership has dropped from 4,400 to 750.

Having lost its $500,000,000 revolving fund appropriated by congress—largely in futile speculation—the farm board is now foreclosing upon its coöperatives, the creation and fostering of which has always been declared to be the chief purpose of the farm board.

STERLING AGAIN BREAKS SHARPLY; RALLIES TO $3.39

New York, Oct. 19.—Prior to the opening of the foreign exchange market in New York there was a further sharp break in London which carried sterling down to 3.35 for cables. However, at this juncture support became apparent with the 3.37¾ the opening here. A rally resulted in sterling being quoted later at 3.39, as compared with a close of 3.41 yesterday.

There was a let-up in the demand for Canadian remittances with the result that Montreal funds were eased to 91.75, off ¾ of a cent.

Alton Line to Haul Trucks on Flatcars

BY SCRUTATOR.

What was said to be the first move of the western steam railroads to coöperate with trucking companies in the movement of freight was inaugurated by the Alton Railroad company, formerly the Chicago & Alton, yesterday. The railroad started a new service of hauling trucks and trailers by rail between Chicago and East St. Louis after the Illinois commerce commission had approved a new rate schedule under which the trucks can be moved more cheaply than over the highways.

"This is the first time that the western steam railroads have been willing to join with the trucking companies in a coördinated freight movement," H. H. Harland, president of the Interstate Trucking company, explained. "Several months ago the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee electric line started a truck ferry service between Chicago and Milwaukee and we have been using that service instead of running our trucks over the highways. We also have negotiations afoot with other steam railroads running into our Iowa territory for hauling our trucks."

Load Trucks on Cars.

Under the new Alton road service the trucking companies load their trucks and trailers on flat cars at the Chicago terminal and unload them at East St. Louis. They then run them across the Mississippi river bridge into St. Louis. The rates charged by the railroad range from $30 to $60 per truck, according to size and weight. The maximum weight of trucks and load is limited to 40,000 pounds.

"The new service and rates offered by the Alton mean that we can use the railroad a shade cheaper than we can operate our trucks over the highways. It has been a long fight to convince the railroads that the movement of freight can be coördinated between the roads and the truck companies.

Believes Service Profitable.

"While the rates made by the Alton are low, still we believe the road can make a profit because it can carry the trucks on flat cars that cost much less than freight cars. The truck companies load and unload their own trucks and trailers, which saves the expense of freight handling to the railroads.

"We hope and believe that the other railroads will adopt the truck ferry service. In addition to being to the mutual advantage of both the carriers and the truck companies, such coördination should remove much of the criticism that trucks use the public highways either to their detriment or to the inconvenience of motorists. However, the trucking companies maintain that they have paid their fair share of highway cost and maintenance by taxes, license fees and gasoline taxes."

Truck Service Recalled.

The new service inaugurated by the Alton recalls that less than two months ago the steam railroads announced that they would operate truck service between Chicago and Milwaukee and South Bend. This service was to be furnished by the Railway Express Motor Transport, Inc., a subsidiary of the Railway Express agency, which is owned by the majority of the class 1 railroads.

It would appear now, however that the railroads are leaning toward truck ferry service by which they can transport the freight of all trucking companies rather than establish their own truck lines. In this way the railroads can avoid the expense of truck equipment, as well as establishing a pick up and delivery service in competition with the trucking companies.

Lists 4 Ways to Ease Rails' Load of Rules

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Relief from strangling restrictions was urged as a solution of the railroad problem by Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Railway Business association and head of the recently organized Railroad Equipment Finance corporation, in a talk before several hundred members of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the Hotel La Salle yesterday.

"The original purpose of railroad regulation was to see that railroad rates should be reasonable and that railroad service, as well as rates, should be nondiscriminatory," Mr. Wheeler said.

Too Many Rules.

"To the original simple regulation has gradually been added a multiplicity of requirements, partly by law and partly by administration. Some of these are desirable and should be retained in the public interest. Many, however, were added on account of a former monopoly character of the railroads which has since disappeared."

Mr. Wheeler outlined four changes in the present regulation of the roads which he said would work to their benefit. These were:

1. Changes in the long and short haul clauses which would permit greater freedom in meeting competition with long water hauls.

2. Changes in the sixth section of the railroad act to allow one day notices in departure from published tariffs to meet motor competition.

Would Meet Competition.

3. Changes in section 15 which would grant the roads authority to set minimum rates which would help meet competition.

4. Proposals that water and highway competitors be required to charge only reasonable and non-discriminatory rates, that they publish their schedules and adhere to them.

Mr. Wheeler said that acceptance by former President Coolidge of the chairmanship of a committee to study the rail problems was a hopeful sign.

CLOSED BANK IN IOWA PAYS ITS DEPOSITORS IN FULL WITH INTEREST

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The Prairieburg Savings bank, rural community institution with deposits of about $300,000, which closed its doors about a year ago, paid its depositors 100 per cent plus 4 per cent interest after a court order today.

LOSS REPORTED BY MONT.-WARD; YEAR CHANGED

Montgomery, Ward & Co. operated at a loss of $4,297,763 in the nine months ended Sept. 30, officials announced last night. This compares with a loss of $2,692,687 in the same period last year.

While the company also showed a loss in the third quarter, operations in September resulted in a profit of $395,100. The loss in the third quarter was $1,030,028, as against a loss of $1,316,719 in the comparable period of 1931.

The company also announced that its fiscal year has been changed to end Jan. 31, instead of Dec. 31, as formerly. "The alteration," the company said, "has had the effect of bringing the midseason inventory adjustments in July, instead of June, as in previous years. Because of the great reduction in prices of merchandise, preinventory markdowns of an unusual amount were taken during July to reduce inventories to the lowered market values. For this reason July operations showed a loss of $1,395,499. The month of September showed a profit of $395,100."

Rail Price Cut Hinted if Big Orders Follow

New York, Oct. 19.—Steps to release large scale buying of rails and other steel products of which the railroads are major consumers were taken at a luncheon conference today at which Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, was host to the presidents of nine eastern railroads.

The program may involve a downward revision in steel rail prices from the basic level of $43 a ton which has been maintained since Oct. 1, 1922. Railroad executives have striven for a readjustment of rail prices and it is now believed that the steel producers are prepared to act, provided the railroads indicate a willingness to reenter the rail market at once.

Could Restore Industry.

According to steel executives, the railroads of the country, which have been buying cautiously for many months, will be obliged shortly to purchase rails and equipment calling for steel in large volume. This buying, which has been in suspense, could easily restore the steel industry, acutely depressed for more than 18 months, to a profitable basis. Such a revival of steel demand, it is pointed out, would also have a far reaching influence on other industries.

The present effort to accelerate the buying of steel products will be extended to the automotive and construction industries, it is believed.

No General Price Cut.

There is, however, little likelihood of a general reduction in steel prices. In fact, the recent tendency has been to stiffen the price structure, the large producers having taken the lead in resisting pessure from consumers for price concessions. The price of steel rails falls into a separate category.

According to some estimates, several hundred millions of dollars of steel orders have been held up in the last few months and are only waiting to be released when the heavy consumers are convinced that the time to buy has arrived.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 19.—Stocks looked up rather smartly in the late dealings today and observers ready with an explanation for every shift of speculative opinion thought the upturn was due to a report that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt would come out against the soldier bonus tonight. Strength in wheat was a helpful factor and advance estimates indicating new high figures for the year on freight carloadings for the week gave the carrier shares a boost.

Gains among the industrial leaders amounted to anywhere from a fraction to more than 3 points. Utility issues had another good day and some of the late pool favorites showed renewed signs of life.

Find Going Heavy.

Tobacco shares once more found the going heavy, although the selling which had borne down on the group for the better part of two sessions dried up toward the close. Brokers reported evidences of considerable covering by the short interest built up on the strength of impending cuts in cigaret prices by a number of the larger companies and uncertainties regarding the R. J. Reynolds dividend. At their worst the leading tobacco shares were from 1 to 3 points below yesterday's finals, but the close found most of them once more behind modest plus signs.

The rails once more pointed the way for the afternoon rally, with Union Pacific, Atchison, New York Central, and other high class issues of the department enjoying the best demand as in the previous session.

Advances 4 Points.

Delaware and Hudson advanced 4 points on a light turnover and Lackawanna moved up more than 3. Among western roads, Illinois Central was a favorite. Some of the leaders succeeded in pushing through the best levels of Friday's rally before enthusiasm in their behalf began to cool off.

The belated reversal in trend of the grain markets was reflected in rising prices of the farm implement shares, Case advancing nearly 4 points and International Harvester nearly 2. Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward also showed an improved tone.

Apparently the more important earnings statements coming out during the day had little effect one way or the other on trading sentiment. Indeed, both General Electric and Westinghouse pushed into better territory following the publication of their rather poor reports, the last named rising nearly two points. National Biscuit moved ahead a notch or so on payment of its regular dividend.

INSULL IRKED AT SEIZURE OF GIFT SILVER SET

What irked Samuel Insull most about the seizure of his real and personal property to meet the claims of creditors, according to a friend of the former magnate just back from abroad, was the taking of a set of silver once presented to Insull by Lord Somebody-or-other.

"The creditors as a whole treated me fairly," Insull is quoted as saying in Paris. "I have no complaints about any of them except the representative of one concern who insisted on taking even the silver."

Liquid Assets Seized.

La Salle street is also buzzing with another story about the taking over of Insull's property. According to this tale, one set of creditors confiscated Insull's "cellar." Here were assets entirely liquid but difficult to handle. The story says that an inner group of this set of creditors settled the problem by purchasing these assets for cash. Inasmuch as Samuel Insull was known in La Salle street as a teetotaler it is assumed that these assets were simply "hospitality."

Fishing Helps Business.

Mr. W. Bruce Pirnie is in a state of perplexity in which many business men would like to share. His business is gaining. In fact, the business of his company in the middle west has shown one of the largest increases in its history—a gain of nearly 50 per cent over last year.

Mr. Pirnie is president of the Montague Rod and Reel company. Sales of fishing poles in the middle west are running 50 per cent of last year, the company reports. Sales of the industry as a whole have shown an increase of 10 per cent from 1929 to 1932. As a result of the increase in sales the company's plants are operating at capacity. All this has been gratifying to officials, but it fails to explain away Mr. Pirnie's perplexity.

"I don't know," Mr. Pirnie's press agent reports him as saying, "whether people haven't anything else to do or whether it's because they realize fishing is a pleasant and inexpensive sport that they can afford in depression times."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 19.—The license of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago investment banking house, has been reinstated by the state security commission. The order allows the house to resume business in this state immediately. The commission found after a hearing that there was insufficient evidence to sustain the recent suspension.

EXPLAINS HOW HOME BANK IS TO MAKE LOANS

Manager Clears Up Vague Beliefs.

BY AL CHASE.

A. R. Gardner, executive vice president and general manager of the Evanston Home Loan bank, yesterday took time out of an all day conference with a group of the most likely applicants for jobs, sifted out of the thousands of applications, to tell in plain English, minus technicalities, how close the new federal institution actually will come to the public.

A. R. GARDNER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The repeated announcement both from Washington and Evanston that the ordinary citizen can walk in, demand a loan on his property, get the cash and build his house or pay off some debt, is a bit misleading, Mr. Gardner explained. In fact, when the original home loan bank bill was drawn up it was not intended that the general public should have any direct contact whatever with the various branch banks.

At the last minute sponsors of the bill changed their plans and provided for the individual who couldn't get any satisfaction from banks, building and loan associations or insurance companies.

Can Get Funds.

"The home owner who comes within the limits of the home loan bank act and who is unable to borrow money from any source whatever, can get funds from the home loan bank," said Mr. Gardner. "That doesn't mean, of course, that a lot owner can come in and borrow money for a new home. We'll make no construction loans.

"A lot isn't a home. If a man has a home and has tried to borrow on it and has been turned down by the bank or wherever he applied, he then, and only then, may ask for financial aid from the Home Loan bank.

"And right now let me urge folks not to go to the unnecessary expense of coming way out to Evanston, as some have done from long distances, to apply for a loan. They're merely wasting time and money. Anyone who is unsuccessful in obtaining a loan at a bank or elsewhere and wants to borrow from the Home Loan bank, should write to that effect to the Evanston Home Loan bank, at 2544 West Railroad avenue, Evanston, asking for an application, which will be promptly sent.

Will Investigate.

"On receipt of this application the Evanston Home Loan bank will make a thorough investigation as to why the applicant couldn't get a loan. Then, if we find he's entitled to the money and comes within the limits of the home loan bank act, we'll make the loan direct."

The Home Loan bank will charge

New York, Oct. 19.—Most sections of the bond market maintained a firm tone today in quiet dealings.

The most consistent strength was displayed by railroad issues, following reports of individual roads, such as the New York Central, of a continued upward trend in carloadings. Further improvement in the general freight movement report is expected Saturday.

While easing off in late trading to a level just under yesterday's closing, treasury bonds were outstandingly strong earlier. Two issues of the 3¾s went to new highs on a few transactions, while two others held to their previous 1932 tops.

Gains in Rails.

Chief gains in domestic railroad bonds occurred in such issues as Baltimore and Ohio 4½s, of 1960; Allegheny corporation 5s, due 1944; St. Paul 3½s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, New Haven refunding 4½s, issues of New York Central, St. Louis and Southwestern 2d 4s, Southern Pacific 4½s, with warrants, and others.

Many industrial bonds, both good grade and speculative, sold higher on limited transactions. Armour 4½s, which are specically secured by real estate, were taken in sizable amounts at prices ranging up nearly two points above yesterday's closing.

Municipals Are Steady.

The Municipal Bond market was steady today, aided by the stabilization of New York City obligations. Municipal bankers point out that the trend toward higher prices for prime municipals has not been disturbed.

Foreign bonds were not as firm as they have been recently. While there were no instances of pronounced weakness, losses were more numerous than gains for the first time in a week or more.

The supply of new issues of the best type is generally admitted to be smaller than the demand for them and the liquidation of outstanding bonds has almost ceased entirely. The weight of all influences in the market for the best bonds favors higher prices.

ALUMINUM CO. OF CANADA HIRES HUNDRED MORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 19.—Plants of the Aluminum Company of Canada, subsidiaries owned by the Mellon interests, announced today they were hiring one hundred more men, bringing new employés taken on since July to 300. Increased export outlets have led to the need for greater production.

The principal export demand being at the present time from Russia, the soviet is sending oil here to pay for the aluminum by a three-cornered transaction, an oil refinery taking the oil and paying the money for it to the aluminum company. The second shipment of Caucasian crude oil reached Montreal tonight.

U. S. TREASURY TO SELL $80,000,000 IN NOTES MONDAY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Secretary Mills today invited tenders for $80,000,000 of 91-day treasury bills to be sold to the highest bidder on Oct. 24. The bills, which will be redeemed at their face value, will be dated Oct. 26 and mature on Jan. 25. The proceeds of the securities will be used to retire treasury bills which mature on Oct. 26.

Uruguay Plans to Erect $1,000,000 Oil Refinery

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 19.—The government commission named to put into effect a national monopoly in Uruguay on sale of petroleum products and the manufacture of industrial alcohol and cement has announced plans for building a million dollar oil refinery and a $500,000 alcohol distillery. The refinery would convert into gasoline and its by-products crude oil brought from Russia.

Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. Issues Income Statement

Texas Gulf Sulphur company reports net income, before depletion, of $4,541,811 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, equal to $1.79 a share, as compared with $6,704,091, or $2.64 a share, a year ago. Third quarter profit, also before depletion, was $1,434,853, or 57 cents a share, against $1,384,423, or 54 cents a share, in the same period of 1931.

Charleroi Glass Plant to Reopen; Work for 350

Charleroi, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP)—N. L. Niece, superintendent of the Belle Vernon plant of the American Window Glass company, announced today that the plant will reopen Monday, giving employment to 350 men. The works have been idle eight months.

Underwood-Elliott-Fisher Reports 3d Quarter Loss

Underwood Elliott Fisher company had September quarter net loss of $305,812, against a loss of $103,753 a year ago. For the nine months net loss was $451,499, compared with profit of $995,712 in the same 1931 period.

DENIES FORD WILL BUY WHEAT, BUT IT BOOSTS PRICE

Agent of Car Maker Calls Rumor Preposterous.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Rumors that Henry Ford would announce he would buy 75,000,000 bu of cash wheat at 60c per bu and sell it to China on 7 years credit materially enlivened speculative interest in the market in the last few minutes of trading yesterday. The rumor taken in connection with a sharp bulge in stocks caused a rush of short covering and carried prices up around 1c from Tuesday's finish with the close at the top. Net gains were ⅞@1c with December at 49¼@49¼c, May, 54½@54¾c, and July, 55¾@56c.

Numerous versions of the Ford rumor late in the day had the effect of greatly stimulating buying of offers which advanced sharply. After the market closed, however, a dispatch from Detroit quoted W. J. Cameron of the Ford Motor company as calling the report "preposterous on its face," adding "There is no basis whatever for such a report."

Otherwise the market was dull and featureless.

Winnipeg Wheat Rallies.

The Winnipeg wheat market showed the first disposition to rally in several days with the May finishing ⅝c higher at 54⅝c, or ⅝c above the so-called pegged price. The December, however, was unchanged at 50c. The latter has held within a fraction of that figure for nearly 10 days. Reports were current suggesting a larger export demand had developed for Manitobas, but no figures as to sales were given.

Wheat prices in Winnipeg have held within a range of around 1c for over 10 days and during the same period the fluctuations in Chicago have been around 2c, with the action of the stock market the main influence in causing rallies. Bulk of the trading has been by the local element and by professionals, outside interest being unusually light.

Traders paid little attention to the action of sterling exchange yesterday which rallied sharply after breaking early. The Liverpool wheat market was also little affected.

Corn in Firm Close.

Corn prices held within narrow limits, but firmed up toward the last in sympathy with wheat and closed ¾@¾c higher. December was 25¾@27⅝c, May, 30⅜c, and July, 32¼c at the last. The seaboard reported somewhat less interest from abroad.

New corn has started to move in the west unusually early and the moisture content is low for this season of the year. Around 20 cars of new grain were received here yesterday and sold readily. Bulk of the receipts were from Illinois points. Arrivals of old grain showed a tendency to decrease. South Africa cleared 570,000 bu corn to Canada the last week. Since Aug. 1 the former has exported 12,302,000 bu to all countries, compared with 5,325,000 bu last year.

Oats finished ¼c higher in sympathy with other grains with the December closing at 16c and the May at 18½c. Rye gained ⅝@⅝c with wheat the December closing at 32⅝c and May at 36¼c.

SOUTH AFRICAN CORN SHIPPED TO CANADA

South Africa continues to ship corn to Canada, clearances to the latter country the last week being reported at 570,000 bu. Corn from South Africa is admitted duty free, while American corn pays 25c per bu, except for distilling purposes. Duty on the latter class of business is 7½c per bu. This week's total shipments were 995,000 bu, against 731,000 bu last week and 281,000 bu for same time last year. Since April 1 shipments of corn aggregated 12,302,000 bu, compared with 5,325,000 bu for the same time last year.

EGG FUTURES DECLINE

Egg futures declined sharply on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, weakening as a result of continued bearish storage news. The close was ¼@¾c lower. While receipts of eggs were about equal to last year, the movement of stocks out of the storage centers totaled about 50 per cent of the year ago movement. The shortage in the four markets was cut 21,000 cases. So far this month withdrawals of eggs have been very much less than last year. Liquidation was heavy in November and new selling was encouraged. Butter closed unchanged to ½c lower. The day's news was less favorable, 200,000 lbs less coming out of storage than last year. Sales: Butter, 39 cars; eggs, 276 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 11 cars. Prices follow:

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—COFFEE—Was quiet today and prices irregular as a result of a fair demand for No. 7 contracts and little interest in Santos. Trade houses and outside interests were credited with buying while other trade interests and Brazil sold. No. 7 contracts opened 1 to 5 points lower and closed 2 to 10 points higher. Sales: 3,000 bags. Santos opened nominally unchanged and closed 1 to 5 points lower. Sales: 6,000 bags. Closing quotations: Santos: December, 9.24c; March, 8.79c; May, 8.52c; July, 8.37c; September, 8.22c. No. 7 prices follow:

SOUTH SELLS COTTON ON ADVANCING MARKET

A good volume of southern selling was well absorbed, the market showing surprising resistance to the pressure from midday until the close, which was around the best price of the day, with net gains on futures in Chicago of 11@15 points and other markets up about the same. Spot cotton in New York advanced 10 points to 8.45c; New Orleans 10 points up also to 6.45c, or the same as New York; Galveston 8.20c and Houston 8.25c. Wall street houses were credited with being the heaviest buyers, and with the stock market firm the market took on a more bullish undertone.

Weather conditions were in the main more favorable. The government's weekly crop report said heavy rains during the week in the southern belt had delayed harvesting and there was considerable complaint of damage to the staple, and in some sections of the south there is a strong sentiment in favor of holding the cotton for a better market. Exports were 50,000 bales. Prices follow:

LONGS SELL LARD

October lard was pressed on the market in moderate volume by holders and was taken by packers, and the close was at net gains of 2½c. The more deferred deliveries were fairly supported and closed practically unchanged. Cash lard is moving out fairly, there having been liberal sales made of late, loose lard especially has been picked up and is selling only 5c under tierced product, while leaf lard was $4.25. Dry salted clear bellies met little demand of late and were offered down to $4.87½ without meeting any demand, while fresh loins were steady at 9@11c. Prices follow:

HOG SLAUGHTERING HEAVY

Under federal inspection from May to September, the marketing season for the fall pig crop, as reported by the bureau of agricultural economics, amounted to 16,284,000 head, which was an increase of 1,403,000 head, or 9.4 per cent over that of the same period a year ago. Slaughter for the entire marketing year October, 1931, to September, 1932, totaling 46,655,000 head was 3,097,000 head, or 7.1 per cent larger than the slaughter of the preceding marketing year. Because of the lighter average weights of hogs marketed in 1931-'32 the increase in total dressed weight of federally inspected hog slaughter over that of 1930-'31 was not so large as the increase in the number of head slaughtered.

PURITY BAKERIES REPORTS PROFITS FOR NINE MONTHS

Purity Bakeries corporation, for the forty weeks ended Oct. 8, 1932, reports earnings of $235,474, after interest, depreciation, federal taxes, and all other charges, and after dividends and undistributed net income accruing to present minority interests. This net income is equivalent to 29 cents per share on 805,045 shares of common stock. This compares with $1,364,605 earned in the first forty weeks of 1931, which was $1.70 per share on 805,044 shares of common stock then outstanding.

For the twelve weeks ended Oct. 8, 1932, net loss was $24,878.55, after all charges and minority interests, comparing with earnings of $173,721.27 or 22 cents per share earned in the corresponding twelve weeks of 1931.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 13,000.

The brakes were applied to sliding cattle prices yesterday, but hogs and lambs were still on the toboggan. Swine sold within 25@35c of the year's bottom. Lambs were only 50c above the low spot, while top steers, despite the recent sharp declines still stand $1.35, or 18 per cent above the low point in June. An abrupt let-up in cattle receipts had a good effect on the market. Yesterday's arrivals at 9,000 were 2,000 short of expectations.

The generous carryover from the preceding session caused some uncertainty at the opening, but sellers finally managed to bolster quotations in most classes. Strength showed in places toward the finish and the clearance was the best in more than a week. Spots were slightly above the unsatisfactory close of Tuesday's session.

Choice 1,324 lb steers topped the price list at $8.85, while the majority of steers of beef merit had to go at $5.50@7.75. Plain kinds ranged down to $5.00 and grassy stock sold at $3.00@4.00 in smaller lots. Little change was found in the market for butcher stock. Calves brought steady prices considering quality.

Hog Prices Drop.

Hogs lost 10@15c more in yesterday's session, the extreme top going down 15c to $3.65, with the general average off 10c at $3.40. Movement of supplies reached a livelier pace, but there was little competition because of the indifferent attitude of eastern buyers. Outsiders during the first three days of this week purchased only 7 per cent of the Chicago receipts. Large local houses have been the principal buyers.

Armour, Swift, and Wilson handled almost 10,000 hogs yesterday, getting most of this number here at $3.50@3.60. Five smaller packers bought 5,500 at the same prices, while city butchers took only 2,500 and shippers 500. Few strictly good grades remained in the holdover. Pigs outsold all other weights, with "roasters" averaging 50@80 lbs at $4.50@4.75, and 100 lb pigs at $3.75@4.00.

Lambs Off 15@25c.

Sheep receipts at 25,000 were excessive, being second largest of the year for Wednesday. Chicago handled 45 per cent of the total at seven leading markets, against 19 per cent a week ago. Outside points reported decreases, but this had little effect on the local market. Prices fell 15@25c more, handpicked native lambs selling at $5.25@5.35, while tops from the range lambs cashed at $5.50 and below. Better action was reported in the feeder division of the yards. Desirable feeding lambs went to country buyers at $5.25, averaging 69 lbs, selling at the same prices as top closely sorted slaughter stock.

INDIANA STONE REORGANIZATION TAKES EFFECT

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—In a letter sent today to stock and bond holders, the reorganization plan of the Indiana Limestone company was declared operative.

The reorganization committee, in making the announcement, said $12,128,000 of bonds, 89 per cent of the outstanding, and $3,584,000 of stock, 83 per cent of the stock, had been deposited since the plan was promulgated last March.

This was not sufficient, however, to secure a proposed new bond issue, and the committee has arranged for an extension of its secured bank loans of $645,000 for one year.

September Sheet Steel Sales Total 78,925 Tons

Total sales of sheet steel in September, as reported by the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers, were 78,925 tons, or 21 per cent of the aggregate capacity of domestic mills. Production was 89,817 tons, shipments 75,490 tons and unfilled tonnage on Oct. 1, 48,827 tons.

Cuba Authorizes Payment of $294,537 on U. S. Loans

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 19.—Orestes Ferarra, who is both secretary of state and treasury, today authorized payment of $294,537.93 to Chase National bank, New York, for amortization and interest, and the principal of public works certificates maturing Dec. 31.

SOLUTION TO A BLACKMAILER PAYS.
[Problem on page 15.]

As Schaeffer had been introduced to Proctor only the night before, Fordney naturally inferred he had never been in his office until that morning. Had this been true, how could he have known the key fitted the safe drawer?

Therefore, Fordney was justified in detaining him for further questioning.

CUNNING IS BUT THE LOW MIMIC OF REASON.
